I feel that with my experience in school affairs for the past twenty years or more, and having educated my children sufficiently that they are and have been successful teachers in the public schools of the County, and that I had no income except the labor of myself and family on a poor, sandy farm, I feel that I have sufficient knowledge of the requirements of the people along lines of present day school work in the rural districts of our County. There are several requirements of the State Department of Education that seem difficult to apply to the rural schools, which the law requires to be placed in operation, and become burdensome on the purely agricultural counties for lack of money, which brings to our minds the necessity of economizing, and first operate our schools for the full term and second to erect new buildings only when we have the ready cash to pay the bills promptly. It appears that the plans are made largely for the town and city schools, and are difficult to apply to the rural districts. For instance, we find boys and girls scattered all over the County who are above the primary grades and we are not financially able to transport all to high school. All I can promise to do is the very best possible under the circumstances. I think that my life's work will show that my interest is with the common people, and am doing and have done all in my power to assist the boys and grls who are striving to educate and prepare themselves for better citizenship. In fact, I have denied myself conveniences that other people enjoy in order that I might be more able to render better service in this work and we see quite a number who are not trying to take advantages of their opportunities in the way of better schools.

I am willing to abide by the decision of the majority and trust we shall nominate and elect men who are fully qualified to fill the several ofnices of the State and County, and who have the best interests of the County at heart.—J. Monroe Smith.

CHEVROLET NEWS

Lowering the fastest train time between the Pacific Coast and Omaha by approximately two hours, Mason Jurgensen, age 21, of 141 West Eighty-second Street, Los Angeles, drove a Chevrolet roadster 2020 miles between the two cities in 56 hours, 47 minutes. He was officially checked out of Los Angeles and in the Nebraska metropolis by Western Union executives.

This feat establishes an automobile record from the Pacific coast to Omaha.

Jurgensen stopped only to eat, take on fuel and change one tire on the way. He picked up a nail on the New Mexico desert, that being the ony mishap experienced on the entire trip. His record time as given above includes all stops en route.

The young pilot was accompanied on his dash two-thirds of the way across the United States by Joe Rolley of 941 West 41st Street, Los Angeles.

On the return journey to the coast Jurgensen added further glamour to his driving achievement by lowering the Omaha-Denver mark from 15 hours, 31 minutes, to 14 hours flat.

Harold Beyers, an Omaha boy, was passenger and relief driver on the way back, Rolley remaining at Omaha.

The youth's demonstration is more than a stunt. It is proof that transcontinental touring has become practical for the average motorist. Roads are good and danger has been eliminated as a factor. The young pilot spoke in high terms of his Chevrolet mount, giving it a clean bill in the matter of speed, power and roadworthiness.

"Transcontinental touring is a mere 'ride around the block' in these days of high-powered light cars and wonderful roads," Jurgensen declared.

ALABAMA PROTECTS POTATO GROWERS

The rapid spread of black rot and stem rot in sweet potatoes has caused increasing losses in Alabama, especially for the past two years. The loss in 1925 was $117,000. This growing peril will make further inroads into the sweet potato business unless checked by state regulatory measures.

The commissioner of agriculture and industries, as executive officer of the state board of agriculture, recently promulgated definite quarantine measures, in an endeavor to stop the wholesale spread of this pest which is now threatening almost total destruction of a ten million dollar industry in Alabama. Effective from this date, sweet potato plants can not be sold unless properly certified, following three inspections by state officials. A penalty is provided for offering for sale plants which have not been thus examined and certified.

WANTS MIMS FOR COLLECTOR

Shakespeare said: "There is a time in the affairs of men, which, if applied, leads to fame—neglected, leads to ruin."

Now we may wake up and see that a time has come when we farmers have a chance to elect one among ourselves as Tax Collector. Then the time in our affairs is here. The man to whom I refer is Mr. Alf Mims. He is a good honest farmer, and I see no reason why we should not rally to him and elect him. It is true that the gentlemen who are against him are good men, but Mr. Rockett has just served a term and should now be willing to step out of the way and let someone who has never had anything from the people get a look-in. The other man who opposes Mr. Mims has never had this office, it is true, but has been serving in a public way, and Mr. Mims is the only one who has never had anything at all from the people.

Think it over and see if there is any reason why you should not vote for Mims for Tax Collector.—A Chilton County voter.

FATE OF COTTON IS NOW WITH THE WEATHER

With the cultivation season at an end, the fate of the Alabama cotton crop now rests largely in the hands of the weather, boll weevils, and other insects. While insects will be a big factor, they, too, are influenced by the weather; hence the major factor in determining the final yield of cotton next fall will be the weather from now until early September.

Recognizing this situation, entomologists of the experiment station and extension service at Auburn point out that the cotton crop is now in its critical period and that the growers should not leave the crop to its own fate. They can not control the weather, but they can control boll weevils and other insects, and a dollar properly spent in insect control should return a big profit.

To exercise this care and give cotton the protection which economy demands, frequent and thorough examinations of each field should be made. When the number of boll weevils present warrants poisoning an application should be made immediately. It should be followed by other applications as directed by the county demonstration agent.

While chief interest in the insect group is centered on the boll weevil, the cotton hopper, or flea, appears to have done a great deal of damage so far this season. This insect is known to have destroyed a large per cent of the very early squares in many fields. Just what it will do in the future remains unknown, because it had never been regarded as a serious pest until recently, although it is a native of this section. It can be controlled by dusting with sulfur, using boll weevil dust guns and applying 8 to 10 lbs. of sulphur per acre.

Hunt and Company, of Chattanooga, were selected by the Board of Trustees as the architects for the college and critics agree that they have done extremely well in laying out a practical as well as a beautiful plan for a college. A hen is not supposed to have

Yet every time she lays an egg
She cackles forth the fact.

But none the less most roosters have Enough good sense to crow.

BRAZIL TO QUIT THE LEAGUE

The contention of its critics that the League of Nations is not and never can be more than a European political bond, is strengthened by the fact that Brazil has given official notice to Geneva of its resignation.

Brazil recently resigned as a nonpermanent member of the league council and now serves notice that she will withdraw her league membership as soon as contractually possible. Spain contemplates similar action. Costa Rica gave notice of her intended retirement from the league in 1924 and will be entitled to legal withdrawal in December.

The defection of Brazil doubtless will cause some embarrassment in Europe as it signalizes the retirement of South America from the league.

The defection of South American states probably will continue until the western continent is weaned from the league.

As for the maintenance of world peace, it is obviously better that the western world should organize on its own account in support of the Monroe Doctrine than jockey for position in the league. If Europe will keep out of the western continent, the western continent will find a convenient method for managing its own affairs. The Monroe Doctrine is the Locarno of the new world. The two Americas are coming to a better understanding. As soon as they realize that their counsel is not wanted in Europe, except for promotional purposes, the sooner international affairs will be put on a non-hypocritical basis.

Brazil differs from the United States only in its tardy discovery that a minority stockholder has nothing to do with the management of the plant. —Peoria, Ill., Transcript.

THE REAL ISSUE

The Chicago Daily News calls attention to the fact that one reason the National League baseball club of that city dropped from 2nd to 4th place recently was that a certain star player on the team was guilty of drunkenness and failure to keep in condition. The player was suspended and no longer wears a Chicago uniform. The News adds:

"If other players are guilty of similar infractions of discipline they should be dismissed at once. Drunken players win no ball games."

The latter statement is certainly true. Baseball has become an exact science, and to be a winner in his chosen profession the player must keep in first class condition all the time. What right living will accomplish is abundantly shown in the case of Walter Johnson.

And what is true of baseball is true, of course, of all other walks of life in which there is keen competition. This is so well established that repeating it seems like uttering a trueism. But there has been so much discussion of the effectiveness of prohibition of late and so much politics played with the question pro and con that we are in danger of losing sight of the main issue. The thing to be kept in mind first of all is that no man, whether he favors constitutional prohibition or whether he believes some other regulation more effective, can gainsay the fact that to be efficient and reliable we must keep from getting drunk.

LAND OF MODERN MIRACLES

In the United States there are 16,500,000 telephones, 17,000,000 have pleasure cars, 16,000,000 have phonographs, and 6,000,000 have radios. Radio business this year is expected to reach $600,000,000, a gain of $100,000,000 over 1925.

Until as many homes have radios as now have phonographs or phones, there is bound to be an unexploited, unfilled field in which to sell radio supplies and service. Every farm in the nation is a prospect for radio, for nothing puts the farmer in touch with the markets more quickly.

Governor Al Smith sent President Coolidge a fishing license but so far as is known neglected to include anything for snake bites.

A newspaper controversy has arisen in England on the subject of when the people of that country began the habit of taking a morning bath. J. K. Jerome, a novelist, started the controversy by stating that there were no bathrooms in London before 1886. This statement is indignantly denied by elderly folk, one of whom declares that in 1872 his family owned a tub that had a lid and strap on it and was used as a trunk when the family traveled.

EXPLANATION OF SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE ELECTION

The special election for Representative in the Legislature will be held in Chilton County on the day of the Republican and Democratic primaries, Tuesday, August 10. It will be a general election so far as it applies, only to the election of a Representative to fill out the unexpired term of W. M. Wyatt, resigned

The special election for Representative will be a different thing entirely from the primaries. Different ballots will be used. When a voter goes to the polls on August 10, he or she will be given a Democratic primary ballot (white) or a Republican primary ballot (pink) according to the preference of the voter. On these primary ballots the voter will mark the names of the candidates for the various offices for whom he or she desires to vote.

All voters, Democrats and Republicans, together with the primary ballots, will be given a special ballot upon which they may mark the name of the candidate whom they wish to vote for to fill out the unexpired term in the Legislature. Omar L. Reynolds is the Republican candidate. The Democratic candidate has not been announced yet.

The Republican primary ballot (pink) contains two names as candidates for Representative. These are Percy M. Pitts and John S. Dennis. They are candidates for the Republican nomination for the regular term as Representative, and have nothing to do with the special election in which Omar Reynolds is running. Either Pitts or Dennis will be nominated in the Republican primary on August 10 to be the Republican candidate in November for the office of Representative for four years beginning on the day after the general election in November. The term of the man who is elected in the special election of August 10 will expire on the day after the general election in November.

Omar Reynolds is not a candidate against Percy Pitts or John S. Dennis. Pitts and Dennis are running against each other. Up to the present time the Democrats have not named a candidate against Omar Reynolds for the unexpired term nor for the nomination for the regular term.

She Beat It.—The young bride had come out second best in her first encounter with cook book and gas range.

"Mother," she sobbed over the telephone, "I can't understand it. The recipe says clearly, 'Bring to boil on brisk fire, stirring for two minutes. Then beat it for ten minutes,' and when I came back again it was burned to a crisp."

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

A news item from Texas states that prospects of an unusually large cotton crop is causing the construction of many new gins in Texas. More than 100 new companies for erecting and operating gins incorporated between June 1 and July 15.

Teams of 12 to 20 horses are coming rapidly into favor for plowing, seeding, and harvesting in Montana and other "dry farming" areas where land is plentiful. In this way labor is used very efficiently and farming is done on a big scale.

The Burley Tobacco Cooperative Association of Lexington, Ky., has received 871,000,000 pounds and sold 730,000,000 pounds in the five years of its existence. The Association has 112,000 members in Kentucky, Ohio, West Virginia, Tennessee, Missouri, and Indiana.

The old sugar equalization board which was created during the war to exercise government supervision of the marketing of sugar in the United States was directed to dissolve in an executive order issued by President Coolidge and made public July 12. The board was incorporated in 1918 with $5,000,000 capital stock of government funds and is to return $11,370,621 to the Treasury.

Another religious feud is raging, this time in Fort Worth, Texas. Rev. J. Frank Norris, the intrepid pastor of the First Baptist church of Fort Worth has shot and killed a man who is said to have been one of his adversaries. The trouble arose over some harsh criticism by Norris, directed against the city administration, and prominent members of the Roman Catholic church. Like other instances of this kind, there is no teling where the end may be.

As The Printer Saw It.—"See here," said the angry visitor to the reporter, "what do you mean by inserting the derisive expression 'Applesauce' in parentheses in my speech?"

"'Applesauce?' Great Scott, man, I wrote 'Applause'."

"Nobody gave it to me. I had to fight for it."

AN IMPRESSIVE NICKNAME

The Montgomery Advertiser, referring to the activity of ex-Governor Comer in the present gubernatorial campaign refers to the distinguished gentleman as "Barnum Barlow Comer, Esq., leader of the Jim Dandy Meal Sack Wing of the Democratic party in Alabama." LIBERTY HILL-CEDAR GROVE

Our singing society met at Cedar Grove last Sunday afternoon. The singing was very good. Directors for the afternoon were Kermit Lowery, J. W. Lowery, Harrison Hayes, D. T. Melton, and Houston Melton. Organists were Mrs. Zelma Littlejohn, Mrs. Bonnie Rollins, and Miss Onzell Eiland. All members of Liberty Hill church are requested to meet next Saturday afternoon, July 24, at 2:00 p. m., for the purpose of electing a pastor for the coming year.—Sec'y.

PLEASANT VALLEY

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely. Although many were absent Sunday we had 87 present. We had several visitors, whom we invite every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Dock Martin is enjoying a few days vacation at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Martin.

John Pierce is spending the week with his uncle, Mr. Arthur Pierce, near Aberdeen, Miss.

Miss Ruth Ray is at home again after an extended visit to her grandmother.

Mr. Alonza Williams, a former resident of this community, now living near Birmingham, is visiting in this community.

Mr. John Yeargan and family spent the latter part of last week with relatives in Talladega and Oxford.—J. M. Pierce.

A FAMILY REUNION

At the home of Mrs. Williams on Sunday, July 18, gathered all of Mrs. Williams' children, to celebrate her 70th birthday. To say that the day was enjoyed is putting it mildly, for children always do like to gather at mother's, and mother is always glad to have them come. The day was spent in talking of each other's affairs since they were all together last. Cold drinks were enjoyed throughout the day. At the noon hour a sumptuous dinner was spread out under the shady oaks. Late in the afternoon the children began to depart for their respective homes, glad of the chance to spend one more day with mother. The parting was grave, as everyone knew that ere another year the chain may be broken. But nevertheless, all wished her many more birthdays.

All machinery used in cultivation should be stored in a dry place as soon as cultivation is over.

IN MEMORIAM

Mrs. Lara Aldridge, who died in Clanton May 4, was a charter member of the Ladies Aid Society of the Clanton Methodist church, and by her untiring work and faithful devotion to her church, won the hearts of every member. Although during the latter years of her life she could not be a regular attendant at the meetings, yet her influence was ever felt and she will be greatly missed. The following resolutions on her death were recently drawn up by a committee from the Missionary Society:

Whereas, it has been the will of our Divine Father to call from our midst our beloved friend, co-worker and charter member, Laura Aldridge;

Be it Resolved, That, in her passing, not only has the entire community suffered a distinct loss, but our society has lost one of its most faithful and devoted members; and that the memory of her loyal devotion and unselfish labors shall be to us an inspiration to carry out the principles, and strive toward the ideals to which she had devoted so much of her life.

Be it further Resolved, That we tender to her family our sincere sympathy in their bereavement, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to them, and a copy spread upon the minutes of our Missionary Society.—Mrs. Barney Roberts, Chairman of Committee.

Useless.—An ambulance driver, answering a hurry call for an auto accident, found nothing worse than an exasperated motorist and a car stalled in the mud.

"Say," said the driver, "I thought you said you wanted a pulmotor."

"I did," returned the car owner, "but how in the deuce are you going to pull me out with that?"

NOTICE—SCHOOL MEETING

There will be a school meeting at Mt. Pleasant school house Friday night, July 23. All patrons are urged to be present.—J. W. Lowery, Albert Culp, Trustees.

When a Tailor Made the Man

There used to be a southern born colonel of one of the negro regiments of the United States army whose first name was James. He was a small, dapper man, very dignified and very much aware of the importance of the position he filled. He was a great believer in athletics and he organized three baseball teams among members of his battalions and started a series of games for the regimental championship.

One afternoon two of the clubs were playing an important game of the series. The commander, watching from the side line, thought the rivals were not showing sufficient spirit, considering that the score was so close and the championship at stake. He decided to show both outfits that ginger was requisite. He yanked off his service coat, grabbed a bat and declared himself into the game.

"Now, then," he stated, as he advanced to the plate, "for just so long as I've got no shoulder straps on I want you men to treat me as if I were one of you. I'm not your colonel—I'm a player. Let's go!"

The pitcher sped the ball across the plate and the colonel cracked out a three-bagger. He tried to stretch it into a homer. As he turned third base on the dead run the coacher for his side opened up:

"Run, you pore lil' sawedoff, popeyed, bow-legged, homely white runt! Run!" he shouted. "Now slide old Jimboy, dadgum you—SLIDE!"

The colonel slid and got there. Then he went over and put his coat on.

LEO M. PETERSON WITH BYRD POLAR EXPEDITION

Mrs. Martin Peterson of Thorsby has submitted to The Union-Banner a copy of the Council Bluffs (Iowa) Nonpareil of Sunday morning, June 27, 1926, which gives a feature story of the important work of her son, Leo M. Peterson, as an aeroplane mechanic with expedition of Lieutenant Byrd, to the north pole. The press dispatches have contained interesting accounts of Mr. Peterson's endurance, working for as much as 36 hours at a time in order that his commander might be the first to fly over the north pole in an airship.

Peterson was in complete charge of the assembling of the Josephine Ford, the Byrd machine, and because his chief wanted to beat Amundsen across the pole, set to work as soon as their vessel, the Chantier, arrived at King's bay. Peterson and his helpers worked so streneously and with such good effect that the plane not only was ready, but was waiting.

Leo is so modest that he speaks little of his own important work in connection with the famous expedition.

"Peterson worked 36 hours on a stretch, and we couldn't stop him," said a representative of the aviation company who was present. "If it had not been for him there would have been no successful flight. He discovered a leak into the oil pipes just before she started. The motors worked perfectly throughout the flight."

Peterson is an enlisted man in the navy air service with the rank of mechanic. At commander Byrd's request he was given three and one-half months leave of absence to accompany the expedition.

After safely landing the plane, carried by boat to King's Bay, it was dragged on sledges a mile up the slope where Peterson began assembling it hastily but thoroughly. The machine was together in twelve hours. Innumerable tests had to be made by Mr. Peterson in the ten days preceding the flight. These were busy days for him. Midnight was as brighe as day, in the Arctic regions, and he lost all track of time, sometimes working 36 hours without stopping. New skin is now growing on the tips of his fingers. He froze them while doing fine work on the motor which he could not do with his gloves on. The South Pole is Peterson's next destination, he hopes. When Commander Byrd attempts his Antarctic flight, Peterson hopes to be along.

SOCIETY

Mrs. Grady Broadhead, Editor.

Mission Study Institute.

More than 200 representatives from the various societies comprising the Woman's Missionary Union of Unity Association were in attendance at the annual mission study institute held all day Wednesday at the Baptist church in Clanton. Mrs. S. J. Ezell, asssitant superintendent, presided over the meeting. The morning devotional was conducted by Miss Della Latham, and the afternoon by Dr. S. J. Ezell. Mrs. Carter Wright, president of the Alabama Woman's Missionary Union, taught the mission book, "Larger Stewardship," to about 150. She also delivered a very forceful and inspiring address on "Tithing." Mrs. J. C. Hughes taught "Torch Bearers in China," and will award 19 certificates to 19 members of Girl's Auxiliary, while 9 Royal Ambassadors will receive certificates for their study of "Brave Adventures" taught by Rev. Grady Williams. Mrs. Grady Broadhead taught 43 Sunbeam Band members "Six Pictures of China." Baskets and vases of golden tinted lilies made the church most attractive, and at noon a tempting luncheon was served by the hostess society.

Birthday Party.

On Monday afternoon Mrs. W. Z. Hodges and Mrs. S. A. Prince entertained a number of little folks at the home of the former on Sixth Street, honoring their little niece, Eloise Rasberry, whose 8th birthday anniversary was celebrated. The punch table was beautifully decorated with sunflowers and was presided over by Misses Kathryn Hayes and Frances Higgins. The living and dining rooms were profusely decorated with roses and crepe myrtle, a color scheme of pink and white prevailing. Outdoor games and a contest, "Pinning on the monkey's tail," were enjoyed. In the contest Frances Higgins, Gladys Martin, Elizabeth McSwain, Hilda Hart, Helen and Joe Moore, Wesley Danforth and Hal Broadhead cut for the prize. Elizabeth McSwain was the recipient of a box of candy. Kodak pictures were taken of this happy group. Late in the afternoon they were invited into the dining room. The table was covered with a pretty lace cloth and centered with a large white cake, decorated with pink rosebuds, and held 8 twinkling candles. Pink roses and fern surrounded the cake, and ribbons extended from it to the places of the guests. Crystal candlesticks held pink candles, and pink and white streamers fell from the chandelier to the four corners of the table. In drawing the ribbons from underneath the cake, Hilda Hart drew the thimble, Rosemary Pickens the ring, Mary Sue Jones the dime, Elizabeth McSwain the button. The hostesses, assisted by Mrs. Elna Roberts, Misses Bettie Mullins, Thelma Guy, Ruth Prince, and Mary Sue Jones, served brick ice cream and cake, carrying out the chosen color scheme.

Those enjoying this affair were Hilda Hart, Sallie Mahan, George Gilliland, Mary Armstrong, Harvey Armstrong, Alice Mae Polk, Mary Bell Bean, Wesley Danforth, June Cox, Ardelia White, Rosemary Pickens, Mike Pickens, Gus Downs, Cameron McDavid, Jr., Wilber Prince, William Hodges, Celia Gerald, Elizabeth McSwain, Lawrence Gerald, Jr., Mary Courtney Jones, Hal Broadhead, Joe Moore, Helen Moore, Mary Frances Atkinson, Elizabeth Lawrence, Harold Lawrence, Jane Roberts, Helen Roberts, Peggy Page, Nellie Mae Caldwell, Ruth Gowan, Frances Higgins, Leonard Farley, Jr., Kathryn Hayes, Elizabeth Gragg, Mary Sue Jones, James Jones, Guy Alred, and Mary Heard.

"I can't tell you how Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup has helped us. "My little boy, three years old, back in the spring had a cough and was sick. He just got so poor he would not eat anything, and we could not get anything to do him any good, and we got a bottle of Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup and in a short while he was well and all right. He is as fat and pleasant as he can be. We have not been out of Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup since the first bottle we got. The whole family takes it and it does lots of good.

FROM S. E. WALDROP

Dear Editor:

Let me have a small space to say a few words to the voters of the Republican party of Chilton County.

I have been too busy with my crop to visit the people. Will say that if I am elected, I will do all in my power to discharge my duty to the best of my ability, and to treat all the people alike. I believe in having all roads worked alike, in fact, see that the small roads be equally as well cared for as the larger ones. I also believe the Commissioners ought to see after the roads more closely.

Let's remember that before the election the power is in the hands of the people, but after the election it is in the hands of those we elect, so we should be careful in our selection.

Now, probably this will be the last you will hear from me until I hear from you, and you will nominate for you and me both. I know this will be the last time I will ever be before you for anything. Hope all will be satisfied with the will of the people.—S. E. Waldrop.

FAVORS MIMS FOR TAX COLLECTOR

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me speace in your paper for a few words in regard to Alfred F. Mims, candidate for Tax Collector. I have known Mr. Mims all along since boyhood, and know him to be a Christian gentleman, one who has been active in church and Sunday school work. He is always ready and willing to assist his friends and neighbors in time of need. He began as a public school teacher, giving entire satisfaction in his work, although school advantages were bad and he had to walk several miles to and from school to a poorly equipped school and an untrained teacher. He never became discouraged and devoted all his spare time from farm work to study at home. By economy and hard work he obtained money to take high school work. Later, he entered the saw mill business and by application of good business principles made a success. All the men in his employ said he emphasized paying everyone the full amount promised at a regular and stated time. For a number of years he has been a successful farmer and poultryman.

He has worked for the success of the Republican party since he became of voting age, having served as a member of the Republican Executive Committee of the county for a number of years. He knows a great deal about the affairs of government, particularly of the county. He can be relied upon to be a Republican in and out of office.

I feel that to nominate and elect Mr. Mims to the office of Tax Collector would be a credit to the Republican party of Chilton County. We need men of courage at the present time who will come out in the open and call a spade a spade. There is no middle ground. We must have men in office who know the value of a dollar, and try to get 100 cents value from each one spent. We must have men who have knowledge of how to create wealth and how to handle it after possession for best results.

Mr. Culp and Mr. Rockett are good men and qualified to fill the office of Tax Collector but for the next term we feel that Mr. Alfred Mims would perhaps be a good man to be placed on guard at the court house of Chilton County. We would like for everyone to investigate his character and qualifications and if found to be as represented, then we would be pleased to have him nominated and elected Tax Collector of Chilton County.—Riley Pate.

IN MEMORY

On July 13 Mrs. Emma Rucker died after several days during which her life hung in the balance. She bore her suffering with patience, and all that loved ones could do was done, but the death angel beckoned, calling her to the beautiful shore and out of the walks of sorrow and trouble.

Those who knew Mrs. Rucker most intimately loved her best. God, in His wisdom, has released her spirit from its tenement of clay and taken her to live with Him forever. She is gone, yet her memory will live forever.

Mrs. Rucker was a member of Mt. Carmel Baptist church, where she will be sorely missed by loved ones and friends. She was 65 years old. Mrs. Rucker leaves 4 sons and 1 daughter to mourn her loss. Her remains were fairly covered with flowers—tokens of love from friends and loved ones. She was laid to rest at Mt. Carmel Wednesday afternoon, July 14, Rev. W. H. Connell officiating.—Lennie Foshee.

PETITION TO SELL LANDS

State of Alabama, Chilton County, Probate Court, June 25, 1926.

In the matter of the estate of W. B. Scott, deceased.

This day came W. G. Atkinson, administrator of the estate of W. B. Scott, deceased, and filed his petition in writing under oath in this Court, for an order to sell certain lands belonging to said estate, described in said petition, for paying the debts due by said estate, upon the ground that the personal property of said estate is insufficient for the payment of the debts.

It is therefore ordered that the 26th day of July, 1926, be appointed a day for the hearing of said petition, when any persons interested may appear and contest the said application if they think proper, and it appearing from said petition that Evie Philpot is a distributee of said estate, is over 21 years of age, and is a non-resident of Alabama and resides at Lawrenceburg, Tenn., this is, therefore, to notify her of the filing of said petition, and the day set for hearing the same, and she may be present and contest the same, if she thinks proper.

MOUNTAIN SPRINGS

Cane Creek singing society will meet at this place the fourth Sunday in July at 2 o'clock. Everybody urged to attend. In the afternoon, all who are interested in the singing school at this place or at Cane Creek be sure to be present, so we can decide which place to have the school taught.

So far as we know now the school will be taught by Prof. Albert D. Hewett, one of our leading singers, and one of our community. We would like to have you attend if you can do so. We invite all singers and lovers of music to meet with us at the singing. —A subscriber.

REVIVAL TO BEGIN JULY 25

Services of the revival of the original Church of God in Christ will begin July 25, at their new church at the extreme east end of Second Avenue, Clanton. The church has been renovated throughout, and presents a pleasing appearance. However, it is possible that a large tent, made for the business, will be erected in the grove near the church. Thus we will be able to go ahead with the services rain or shine.

Evangelist Willie Thurmond will assist Pastor L. P. Adams in these meetings. Bro. Thurmond preached at the old location of the Church of God in Christ, known as the Temple, a year or two ago, and created quite a sensation among church people all over that community, and among people of other nearby churches. They will be glad to hear him again, and the church is pleased to have him here, and anxious for you to hear him. Rev. L. P. Adams will be present to assist in any way he can, and many who like to hear him, may have the opportunity during these services. —Pastor and members, The Church of God in Christ.

NOTES OF TRAVEL

(By S. E. Norton)

Although among the smallest states in the Union, New Jersey is a land of big things, either in whole or in part. Even her disasters, or at least the one which occurred during the current week, stands among the greatest of its kind in the history of the world. We were near enough to the actual scenes of this great cataclysm to both see and hear the fire and explosions which snuffed out at least 20 lives, injured scores of others, wrecked and destroyed 182 buildings within the government reservation, and many others in the path of the blasts for a distance of 10 miles. Huge stores of powder and other more powerful explosives for armament from revolvers to 14-inch shells were stored within the arsenal ammunition buildings, exploded either by concussion or flying embers dropped among them after the buildings had been torn away and containers of explosives destroyed by shock, scattering their contents so that a spark would touch them off.

The day had been one of the hottest of the summer. About 4 p. m., a heavy thunder shower passed over this section which apparently was about over at 5 o'clock, when a bolt of lightning struck one of the magazines near where Captain Dowling, the commanding officer at the Naval Arsenal, sat in his automobile. He saw what had happened and immediatey shouted a command to his men to run. A moment later there was a teriffic explosion, immediately followed by a broad yellow flame mounting upward and topped by a cloud of smoke with ever changing hues of color caused by burning chemicals, soon followed by another explosion and more flames.

The location of the Naval Arsenal was on a wooded slope on the shore of Lake Denmark and about 6 miles from Kenvil. We could see the fire and hear the explosions, which began Saturday afternoon and continued for three days and nights before it was considered safe to go near it. These storehouses are called magazines and only about a dozen of them, in an isolated group are still standing.

Only 1 mile from the Naval Arsenal the U. S. Army Department has what is called Picatinney Arsenal. Grave fears were held for several days that another disaster even more appalling than the one at the Naval Arsenal was imminent, owing to the character of explosives made and stored within this inclosure, as it was their large power house, and other buildings were reduced to scrap by the shock of the first explosion, causing a loss estimated at millions of dollars. The estimated property loss at the Navy Arsenal was put at $93,000,000, of which $10,000,000 was in buildings totally destroyed. The rest was for equipment and munitions stored within the enclosure.

Of the dead, most of them were members of the U. S. Marine Corps on duty within the Arsenal enclosure. Many of them were buried in the ruins, others badly or slightly injured and got away as best they could. Captain Dowling was taken up for dead but proved to be seriously shocked and nearly blinded. He will recover.

Outside of the enclosure the explosions played freaks like we often see from a bolt of lightning. Kenvil and Wharton, small towns, and Dover, a city of 10,000 people, were scarcely touched, while Rockaway, in spite of greater distance, had many buildings wrecked and many people injured, which may be accounted for by the fact that hills intervene between the location of the Arsenal and the towns not injured, while Rockaway, which its promoters planted within a quarter of a mile of the Arsenal, was completely wiped out, as were the barracks for the men within the grounds.

The people who reside within a wide area adjoining the scene of the disaster were like a hive of bees into which a stick has been thrust. Many of them are employees of the Hercules Powder Company, or have kinfolks or friends who are, and naturally they were greatly excited, especially when all sorts of rumors were flying about. On Saturday afternoon there is little doing at the plant, when the works are closed down; but within 15 minutes after the first explosion automobiles from all directions were rushing about to learn just what had happened. This only increased the trouble, as guards had to be set to turn them back before they arrived within the danger zone.

The disaster quickly brought Secretary of War Davis by motor from New York. Sunday morning an assistant arrived from Washington in an airplane. Steps were promptly taken by army and navy officials and by civilians to organize committees for relief of refugees from destroyed homes. Red Cross and Salvation Army soon got into action, and cooperating with citizens of the district, soon provided temporary help. Boards and committees are investigating and planning for the future.

We hope in our next article to have a more agreeable article.—S. E. Norton, Kenvil, N. J.

Ill-Fated Submarine S-51 Raised

DIVERS and apparatus have been at work for some time raising the submarine S-51, the singing of which off Block Island last year stunned the country. The sub carried several men along with it to a watery grave. After several attempts, the boat was raised last week. Lieut.-Commander Edward Ellsberg was in charge of the work. Himself an expert diver, he perfected an underwater blow torch that proved successful in his task. He used it to blow holes into the steel sides of the submarine, and into these compressed air was forced in, making the lifting of the boat easier. Photo shows Commander Ellsberg having his diving apparatus adjusted, preparatory to going down to operate his torch, while the lifting work was in progress.

WHERE THERE'S MUCH SMOKE THERE MUST BE SOME FIRE

"Honest Is As Honest Does"—Says Mr. Rober; Praises Economical Methods of County Officers.

Editor Union-Banner:

Of course I have been in your county only about two and a half years, but during that time I have met and worked for some of the best people I have ever known in my life. Among these are J. M. Mims, one of your commissioners, Judge L. H. Reynolds, Green Burnett, Lewis W. Allen, Grover Jones, Lee Oliver, Hubert Smith, and so on, and I find through the statement of those whom I have worked for outside of Judge Reynolds, that those who are fighting Judge Reynolds are doing so simply because he is a Republican.

I belong to the Presbyterian church, my wife and children belong to the Baptist; I visit both, and give the Baptist $12.00 per year. God has no respective persons. So as I hear and believe Judge Reynolds has been honest, true and just in office since being there, I know personally what he and Mr. J. M. Mims did far the county. The plaster paris molding in the court room was falling down. They consulted some contractor, who said he would fix it back for $985.00. Mr. Mims spoke up and said, "No, wait, I will go and see Mr. Rober." He came out to my house and consulted me. I looked at it and told Mr. Mims and Judge Reynolds they could save the county about $900.00 by putting the same back out of wood. The work is there to show the interest Judge Reynolds and Mr. Mims take in behalf of the county.

I am 57 years old, and my advice is when you have a good man in office—keep him there, regardless of whether he is a Democrat or a Republican. I remember when Grover Cleveland was president—we couldn't buy a carpenter job. I went to work on the railroad at Anita, Ala., for $1.50 per day, 50 cents out for board. When pay day came the balance was for incidentals. After the war under President Wilson's administration we had the same trouble to contend with. In Birmingham they had soup houses, and you had to work two hours for your board and lodging each day.

Now in conclusion I will say this—that every working man, from past experience, ought to stand firm by the Republican party.—Chas. H. Rober, Route 4, Clanton, Ala.

A CORRECTION

In last week's Union-Banner the letter of Mr. W. H. Robinson in favor of Kin Vinson was headed "Boosting Kin Vinson for Tax Collector." This should have been "Boosting Kin Vinson for Tax Assessor."

Mr. Vinson has made a thorough canvass of the county and everyone knows him as a candidate for Tax Assessor. While our mistake was apparent to perhaps everyone, yet we regret that it occurred.

VISITORS HERE HAVE GONE BACK TO TEXAS

A party of visitors, who have been spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wagoner, left Monday for their home in Mineola. Those in the party were Mrs. M. J. Wagoner, Albert Wagoner, Harvey Wagoner, and "Preacher" Dobbs.

REVIVAL AT FRIENDSHIP BEGINS SUNDAY, AUGUST 15

Announcement has been made that the annual revival at Friendship church, one and a half miles north of Clanton, will begin on Sunday, August 15th, which is the third Sunday in next month.

Rev. Rufus W. Stuckey, pastor of the Baptist church at Wilton, Ala., will assist the pastor in the preaching. Rev. Stuckey has just finished a revival with Rev. Lowery at Eanon church in Shelby county, and reports say that his preaching was received there with much satisfaction and splendid results. Rev. Stuckey is a student at Howard College and is a very fine preacher and a good man as well.

It is hoped that the people in nearby communities will cooperate heartily with the Friendship people in this revival and make it the best ever held here.

Work is moving on on rebuilding the church. It may not be all completed by the time of the revival, but it is hoped that enough will be done that the meetings may be accomodated.

13-YEAR-OLD BOY STEALS FORD CAR

Aubrey Lowery, 13-year-old son of Simmie Lowery of near Thorsby, was sent to the reform school Tuesday, following a trial Monday in the Juvenile Court of Chilton County, charged with stealing an automobile.

The boy, it is said, stole the Ford roadster belonging to Luther Bean, which was left parked near the post office, last Thursday. He was caught in Fort Deposit Saturday at noon. Deputy Foshee went to Fort Deposit and got him Saturday night.

The case was transferred to the Juvenile Court and was tried by Judge Reynolds Monday morning.

DIED AT HOSPITAL

John W. Williams, age about 50, died at the Central Alabama Hospital last Sunday morning at 2 o'clock. The body was buried at Union Grove Sunday afternoon by Martin. The funeral was preached by Rev. W. P. Lowery of Thorsby.

Mr. Williams was one of the several hurt in the automobile wreck at Jemison on July 3rd. One of Mr. Williams's legs was amputated shortly after coming to the hospital. His other leg was severely bruised in the wreck.

Mr. Williams's wife and three or four other children were hurt in the same wreck. One boy is still in the hospital, and another son is at home not yet able to be out.

HARVEY CREW DEAD

Mr. C. Harvey Crew, age 65, died at his home three miles south of Clanton last Wednesday morning. The remains, in charge of Martin, were carried to Swamp Creek in Coosa County and interment made Thursday, Rev. J. D. Hughes conducting the funeral.

Swamp Creek is the old home of Mr. Crew, he having come to this county from Coosa several years ago.

The deceased leaves a wife and several children.

Cultivating thoughts of the right kind leads people to the worth-while and practical things of life.

MRS. ANNIE PARRISH DEAD

Mrs. Annie Parrish, age about 48, and wife of Sam Parrish of Clanton, died at the home of Sanford Devaughn, four miles east of Clanton on Thursday night, July 22, about 8 o'clock. Mrs. Parrish had been in declining health for the past two months due to the growth of a goitre on the throat, causing severe nervousness.

Mrs. Parrish ate a hearty supper Thursday night at Mr. Devaughn's and had talked a day of feeling better than she had for the past several days. After eating supper she went out on the porch and sat down in the swing. A few minutes later Mr. Devaughn came out on the porch and found her lying over behind the swing dead.

Mrs. Parrish was not the mother of any children. She was the daughter of T. G. Taylor of Clanton and always enjoyed the close friendship of all whose privilege it was to know her. She was a member of the Baptist church at Concord, where she had belonged to the church for a number of years.

Funeral services were held at Concord last Friday afternoon, Rev. M. J. Parrish officiating.

AUTOS COLLIDE SATURDAY

Two automobiles collided last Saturday afternoon in front of The Union-Banner office. One was a Chevrolet driven by Miss Zula Willis and the other a Ford driven by Monroe Roberds. Miss Willis was driving up Sixth Street and the Roberds boy was driving into Sixth Street from the alley beside the Banner office. No one was injured and only slight damage was done to each of the cars.

Mr. Lou Cagle of Bethsalem presented the Banner with a nice watermelon Monday morning. Mr. Cagle has been hauling melons for the past few weeks, and has made a fine crop of them this year.

ANOTHER HAIL STORM

A severe hail storm visited the section just north of Providence in Beat 16 last Thursday afternoon. The farms of John Cleckler, S. V. Miller, Buddie Robinson and J. M. Robinson were hit worse by the storm. They were almost completely ruined, reports say.

RETURNED TO MISSISSIPPI

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Harris and son, Craig, left Monday on the return trip to their home in Raymond, Miss., after a week's visit to relatives and friends in Clanton. They made the trip by motor car, and expect to spend a day or so with Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Harris in Birmingham on their way back home. Mr. Harris continues as principal of Raymond High School, where he has been for about seven years.

Mr. and Mrs. Wehley Terrell and family from Florida have been spending several weeks with friends and relatives in this community.

Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Weldon spent Thursday night with Mr. and Mrs. Huff Burkhalter.

Don't forget to attend the baptizing Sunday morning at 9 o'clock.

Directors for the afternoon were Miss Lottie Henley, Vergie Henley, Gladys Jackson, Ollie Mims, Ruby Henley, Catherine Henley, Eula Culp, Sarah Bates, Albert Henley, Harvey Culp. Mrs. Zella Scott was the organist for the afternoon. We cordilly invite all who will to come and be with us every second and fourth Sunday afternoon.—Eula Culp, Sec'y.

A vacation would be all right if it were not for the first day or two at the office after you get back home.

NEXT SATURDAY CLOSING DAY OF CONCORD SINGING SCHOOL

Next Saturday, July 31, is the closing day of the singing school at Concord Schoolhouse, which has been taught for the past month by Prof. W. M. Devaughn and Prof. L. T. Grant. An all-day program will be given by the hchool, and the public has a cordial invitation to come out and spend the day. The program will consist of quartets, duets, and choruses, and those who can come are promised some good entertainment if they like good gospel singing.

The program will begin about 9:00 o'clock and will last until 2:00 in the afternoon, when a water melon cutting will be had. Everybody is asked to come and bring dinner and a water melon or two, and everybody have a jolly good time together.

From every standpoint this has been one of the best singing schools ever held at Concord. Very fine work has been done and everyone seemed to enjoy it. Profs. Grant and Devaughn have the praise and thanks by the patrons and pupils for having done their work satisfactorily from every standpoint.

WANTS VINSON FOR ASSESSOR

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space to say to the Republican voters that I heartily endorse the letter of Mr. W. H. Robinson in last week's paper supporting Mr. Kin Vinson for Tax Assessor of Chilton County. Mr. Robinson told the truth about Mr. Vinson, and I think the reasons cited are sufficient to cause the Republican voters to nominate him on August 10.

I know that Mr. Vinson is well qualified to fill the office, as he learned the tax business while he was a clerk in the office for three years under Mr. Dennis.

I especially want to express my approval of what was said about electing a new man for this office. I know that the present Tax Assessor has made a good officer. I am glad he has done so, because we elected him for that purpose. I feel like he has had it long enough for one man, and I think now it is the duty of the Republican party to give the place to Mr. Vinson.—O. Gray.—(Paid political adv., by K. M. Vinson, Clanton, Ala.)

LETTER FROM S. J. M. WEBB

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words to the voters of Chilton County.

I was born in Coosa County on a farm near Weogufka, where I spent 34 years of my life, serving some of the later years while there as trustee of our school. I moved to Chilton County 9 years ago, near the Isabella school, bought a farm here and am still farming. I have served as a trustee of the Isabella school.

I am 43 years of age and have voted a Republican ticket and nothing else since I was 21 years of age. I am a Republican because I believe in the principles of the Republican party.

Now, I think there is much that can be done for the progress of education in Chilton County. I believe that every child should share equal in educational advantages, and I believe in doing anything that is legal and right to give every child, from one side of the County to the other, an equal chance and the very best chance possible in an educational way. I trust you Republicans will see fit to nominate and elect me, and if so, I will do my best to do something to prove my appreciation to you. However, your choice will be my choice in November.—S. J. M. Webb.—(Paid political adv., by S. J. M. Webb, Maplesville, Ala.)

GOOD NATURE IN MOTORING

Now that the number of automobiles on the streets has doubled within a few years, the jams at many congested spots have become very irritating to many people who use cars. Some folk of an impatient disposition seem to lose all self-control. Their lack of a spirit of good-natured acceptance of these conditions causes many accidents.

If they fall in behind a line of cars on some highway, they can not wait for a good chance to pass ahead, but they will do so on curves or at various unsuitable places. Then some car unexpectedly appears and there may be a smash. People are not fit to drive automobiles through crowded towns and on congested roads unless they have a certain calm spirit of philosophy that is willing to wait for its proper turn, and which is not irritated by delays of some seconds or minutes. The old proverb said that the "patient waiter is no loser," and it never applied more closely to anything than to automobile driving.—Newcastle Courier.

The young lad used to get a real thrill out of his first pair of long pants and now the old man gets the same kind of thrill when he puts on his first pair of knickers.

LAST SURVIVING SON OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN DIES

Manchester, Vt., July 26.—Robert Todd Lincoln, eldest son of President Abraham Lincoln, and the last surviving member of the civil war president's immediate family, is dead. He passed away in his sleep at his summer home, Hildene, early today. Had he lived until August 1, he would have been 83 years old.

Although he never sought public office, he rose to high position in both public life and the business world. He served as secretary of war under two presidents, was United States minister to Great Britain under President Harrison. He served for years as counsellor for the Pullman company, became president, and later chairman of the board of directors.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends and neighbors for their kind assistance and sympathy during the illness and death of our son. We also thank Mr. Martin for his kind assistance. May God bless you all.—Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gore and Family.

MR. JOHN S. DENNIS WRITES

I wish to say to the voters of the county that the time is near when you will say who you want to represent you in the Legislature of Alabama. I haven't been so that I could see very many as I had to work. I am a farmer and make my living by work.

I would not attempt to say anything against my opponent. Mr. Pitts is a gentleman. But I merely want the voters of the county to vote your choice and that will satisfy me. If you say Pitts, all right, and if you say Dennis, all right.

Let's all come out on August 10th and say who we want to be our officers for the next term, and then in November let's all come and elect them and all be satisfied with them.

If the people want me, I will promise to do my best to please them. I think I know what we need if we can get it. So, people, just pick your choice, and that will be my choice also. I will help you elect them in November if I live. You have the choice between a lawyer and a farmer, so now, it is up to you to make your selection.—John S. Dennis.—(Paid political adv., by John S. Dennis, Route 1, Clanton, Ala.)

CHEVROLET ZONE EXECUTIVES VISIT CLANTON TUESDAY

Mr. P. Sever, zone manager for Chevrolet Motor Company, with the Birmingham office, was in Clanton Tuesday going over some business matters with Polk Brothers, local Chevrolet dealers. He was accompanied by Mr. Clyde Wilson, manager of the parts and service division in Alabama zone.

These gentlemen express great enthusiasm over the progress of Chevrolet in this territory. The zone office for Alabama was established on May 1st. Since that time Alabama has led the whole United States in Chevrolet sales.

Rev. and Mrs. Buford Lawrence are the proud parents of a fine baby girl who arrived Tuesday. Mother and little one are reported getting along well at the Central Alabama Hospital.

BODY OF WILL SMITH FOUND IN COOSA RIVER

The dead body of Will Smith, young white man, was found floating in the Coosa River Tuesday morning by Jake Parker, near Mims Ferry, below Lock 12. Smith was reported to have drowned Sunday night, and the finding of his body on Tuesday brought the end to a search which had been carried on at the river and extended over wide stretches of adjoining country. The uncertainty of the reports of his drowning gave rise to the idea that he might have wandered away from the river into the hills.

We are told that the keepers of the Mims Ferry saw Smith late Sunday evening at their quarters, and insisted on him staying at their shack, offering him a bed. Smith is said to have been drunk and refused to accept their offer to spend the night. He got in a boat and went up the river, it is reported.

After he had departed in the boat alone the ferrymen say they heard some strange noises in the direction he went. As quick as they could land their flat they got in a small boat and went up that way, but could see or hear nothing of Smith or his boat.

At daybreak Monday morning the ferrymen saw a boat drifting near the Coosa bank. When they went to it they found Smith's coat and hat in the boat. It was then the report of the possible drowning was made and the search for the body began.

It is said that Smith was at the river the latter part of last week with a fishing party, refusing to come with them when they left the place Sunday afternoon.

The general opinion is that Smith, being heavily intoxicated, went to sleep and fell out of the boat, and was unable to swim to the bank.

Will Smith was a well known figure in and around Clanton. He was a son of the late J. Dudley Smith.

Martin's ambulance went to the river Tuesday afternoon and brought the body to Clanton where it was prepared for burial.

REVIVAL TO BEGIN AT SHADY GROVE CHURCH

Our revival will begin at Shady Grove church next Sunday, August 1, and continue most all the week. We invite everybody to come and help make the meeting a success. Rev. J. S. Johnson of Cullman, Ala., will assist the pastor in the meeting.—G. B. Golden, Pastor.

C. C. CONWAY WRITES VOTERS

To the Voters of Chilton County:

Perhaps you have noticed my announcement as a candidate for member of the county board of education.

It was my intention to try to see every voter in the county, but on account of sickness in my family it is impossible for me to do so. I am asking you to consider me when you go to the polls to vote on August 10. I have always been a Republican and voted a straight Republican ticket, and I am in sympathy with any fair move to better the ways and means for the boys and girls to have a better education. If you can see your way clear to vote for me on August 10th I will appreciate it. Yours for education.—C. C. Conway.—(Paid political adv., by C. C. Conway, Jemison, Ala.)

METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL CONFERENCE

The fifth annual Sunday school conference for the Methodists of central and south Alabama and west Florida is announced by officials at Montgomery to meet in Auburn from Tuesday night, August 31, to Thursday noon, September 2.

An interesting program is promised by the officials of the conference. Hon. J. T. Ellison of Centreville is President. Other officials include J. W. Andrews of Pensacola and R. H. Mangum of Selma as Vice-Presidents; and Tupper Lightfoot of Brundidge as Secretary.

Four sectional meetings known as Federations will meet as parts of the Conference. These Federations with their presidents are: Elementary, Mrs. J. E. Tate of Castlebury; Adolescent, A. B. Carlton of Prichard; Adult, Mrs. J. W. Bryan of Greenville; and Administrative, H. M. Andrews of Montgomery.

CHEVROLET WINS CONTEST

With a gasoline average of 25.71 miles per gallon, L. H. Lawrence, of Monterey Park, Los Angeles, driving his own Chevrolet coach, was an easy winner in the light car class at the first annual Lake Arrowhead Conservation contest held recently in California.

Entries were restricted to amateur drivers and privately owned cars. Lawrence's gasoline average was the best turned in by any of the 13 drivers participating in the contest which promises to become one of the classics of the western motor car world.

Starting from the Automobile Club headquarters in Los Angeles, the run ended 90 miles away at Lake Arrowhead, a mile above sea-level, in the San Bernadino mountains.

Lawrence's Chevrolet covered the distance on exactly 3.5 gallons of gasoline. No less remarkable was the car's demonstration of cooling ability. The day was the hottest of the present season and the climb over the steep Waterman Canyon switchbacks was made under a noon sun. Despite these facts, inspection at the finish revealed that the radiator had used only four pints of water, a record unsurpassed by any other water-cooled car in the run.

Lawrence bought his Chevrolet last January. In preparation for the conservation contest he had the valves ground, and after thoroughly lubricating the car, he made a few mileage tests in the course of his daily driving.

The fact that the run was non-professional in character, and was driven in just the fashion that the average owner would use on a mountain trip, made its results especially interesting. The Lake Arrowhead trip is one of the most popular Southern California mountain drives, and next year's contest promises to draw a very much larger entry list. A huge crowd witnessed the finish of the run, and the awarding of the cups to the prize winners.

THE GROWTH OF CLANTON

I first came to Clanton about 27 years ago, and have bben coming and going ever since. I have had a good chance to watch its growth and compare it with other towns which have come under my observation in my travels over a wide territory.

When I first came to Clanton it was a mere village with just a few stores, and poor accomodations to travelers. The roads leading into town were very poorly kept up. Travel was on wagons, buggies and horseback. The farming industry was on a small scale, and land was low in price. The streets of the town were rough, the town was lighted with lamps and lanterns, the water supply came from wells and cisterns. No fast trains stopped here, and no porters met the trains and called out hotels. I could not find such conveniences as barber shops, shoe shops, meat markets and cafes.

But what about the Clanton of today? One can hardly believe such a great growth could have taken place in these few years. It has much the appearance of a city. It has almost all the conveniences of a large city; the streets, business places, homes and churches are lighted with electricity. It has a good water system, telephones and telegraph, and several passenger trains stop here each day. The fine Birmingham - Montgomery highway passes through the heart of the city; it has some as fine stores as can be found anywhere; the nice, sanitary markets will compare with any city markets; the cafes and hotels can't be beat; they are clean and sanitary, and afford the best kind of accomodations. The barber shops are modern and up-to-date. The churches are modern and beautifully built; they add much to the appearance of the city. Homes are substantially built and nicely arranged. The city has two banks doing a great business; it has a hospital which certainly meets a great need.

Two wholesale grocery houses are located here and doing a good business in the city and surrounding district; two or more fine dairies supply the city with sanitary dairy products; and as usual in a place of this kind there are plenty of well equipped dental and medical offices. The city has two weekly newspapers to give us the news of the county as well as of different parts of the surrounding country.

Clanton did not gush up in an advertised boom as if to make a short visit and then pass out. If you will look at Clanton's surroundings and how it is building you will conclude it has come to stay. Take, for instance, the farming district round about Clanton for miles. Everything looks well, farmers keep their farms in the finest condition, they are a stirring people, they own their farms and seem very much contented. All this helps Clanton to build. The men who made Clanton were not visitors—they came, bought homes, settled to do business and stood by it.

Clanton will continue to grow; it presents that appearance. Its citizens are not afraid to invest their money in Clanton property! May God bless them.—L. P. Adams.

This heroic statue of the commander-in-chief of the first armies of the United States was made for the city of Portland, Oregon, though not yet delivered there by the artist. For the first time in the history of the state—it was a southern state—an electrocution took place within the walls of the state prison. The legislature, keeping step with the march of progress and civilization, had ordered the installation of an electric chair to take the honored place of the old-fashioned slip-noose under the left ear.

A negro "trusty" was an unwilling witness to the first performance under the new arrangement. The warden had detailed him as helper to the paid executioner. He issued forth from the lethal chamber with popped eyes and ashen face.

A group of his fellow convicts knotted about him anxious to hear the grisly details. He proceeded to elucidate:

"Well, suzz," he said, with a shiver, "they teks an' strops you down, hand an' foot, in a big cheer. An' den they clamps some lil' things onto your haid an' yo' laigs. An' den one of de w'ite men he step over to whar dey's a little jigger in de wall an' he give it a lil' yank—zzz'—lak dat!"

Here he paused and fetched a deep breath.

"Whut den? whut den?" came the chorus.

"Nothin' but ruin—jes' absolute ruin!"

Assigning G. B. S. to His Place

When George Bernard Shaw, as a young man, emerged from his native Ireland and moved to England he began writing a column for a London weekly publication. Then, as now, he had the habit of calling a spade a spade and frequently, in his writings, he called it by an even stronger name than that.

At that time Oscar Wilde was enjoying his vogue as a wit and an epigram-maker. One evening an acquaintance, calling upon Wilde, happened upon a copy of the paper to which Shaw was a contributor and reading therein one of Shaw's characteristic articles which was signed with the author's initials, said to his host:

"I say, Wilde, who is this chap G. B. S. who's doing a department for this sheet?"

"He's a young Irishman named Shaw," said Wilde. "Rather forceful isn't he?"

"Forceful," echoed the other, "well rather! My word, how he does cut and slash! He does't seem to spare anyone he knows. I should say he's in a fair way to make himself a lot of enemies."

"Well," said Wilde, "as yet he hasn't become prominent enough to have any enemies. But none of his friends likes him."

Dan had the right idea. He bought a reconditioned used car from our stock of fine used cars and went to and from work as he pleased. And he liked his car, too. Used cars bought in our salesrooms have a habit of pleasing the buyer for they're priced right and sold right. They're reconditioned, put into attractive shape, represented exactly for what they're worth and sold only on that basis. That, plus the advantage of the GMAC Time Payment Plan, is making our firm the headquarters for used car satisfaction. Drop into our salesroom and see for yourself.

REPUBLICANS, BESTIR YOURSELVES

It is now less than two weeks when the primary election comes off. At this time the Republicans of Chilton County will go to the polls and nominate men to oppose the Democratic nominees to appear on the general election ballot in November.

Although this is a primary election and constitutes only a race within our own party ranks, yet this should not cause us to look at the matter lightly and think that it will be all right for "me" to stay at home and let the rest of the boys attend to the job. This is a mistaken idea and we should not let such keep us away from the polls.

The Democrats will have out candidates for nearly all the offces in the county this year. The Republicans have out one or more candidates for each of the offices to be filled, and we must see to it that all of these offices are filled by Republicans. The first and probably the most important step toward this end is the proper outcome of the primary election. We have a fine list of candidates to select from, and we feel that any of them would make creditable officers, but we want the ones nominated who are the choice of the majority of the Republican voters. The ony way for these men to be nominated is for all the Republicans to participate in the primary.

The Democrats have already begun their assumed campaign by criticizing the present Republican administration, and they will continue their efforts to pollute the minds of the people until the general election. Time has proven to us that their attempts to carry their contentions will be limited with nothing—not even the facts, and we must be on our wits every minute from now till the general election in order to be able to meet them in the open and combat their treachery with clean competent men who have and will hold the confidence of the masses of the voters.

Let's do that by all going to the polls Tuesday, August 10th, and cast our ballots for our choice of the vari-our candidates. And then let's line up behind the Republican nominees and see that they are put over by substantial majorities in November.

OUR FOREIGN TRADE

We can always learn something from the figures on our foreign trade. The figures for the fiscal year just closed show that America's commerce with other nations amounted to the enormous total of $9,000,000,000, an increase of more than $500,000,000 over the figures of the year previous. But the significant fact is that this increase was made up entirely of imports. The goods shipped into America amounted to $4,466,687,493, an increase in round numbers of $640,000,000 over the imports of the year previous. The exports totaled $4,753,516,204, a decline of $111,000,000 over the year before. In the fiscal year 1924-25 the favorable trade balance was $1,040,452,789. For the fiscal year just closed this favorable trade balance was reduced to $286,828,711.

This reduction in the trade balance is, of course, due to the fact that during the year we increased the amount of goods we bought from Europe and the rest of the world, and failed to sell them as much in return as we did the year previous. If the same ratio of the change in the balance of our imports and exports is kept up, we are very apt to close the present fiscal year with an unfavorable trade balance. In other words, for the first time in years we will be buying more from Europe than we are selling her.

It is true that the greatest decline in our exports was due to the falling off in the amount of grain we sent abroad, and this was due primarily, in turn, to our reduced crops of wheat and rye which did not permit of so much selling abroad. And at the same time the increase in the value of our imports was due in part to the increase in the price of crude rubber and other raw materials which we buy abroad. But this does not gainsay the fact that the balance of trade is slowly turning against us. It is a situation which requires serious thought. Certainly it does not encourage a reduction in the tariff.

AMERICAN LABOR AND RUSSIA

The American Federation of Labor continues to show sound judgment in its stand against any official intimacy between America and Soviet Russia. The executive council of the federation recently elaborated its stand by issuing a warning against the sending of a mission to soviet Russia in the name of American labor, and attacking certain American organizations which are believed to be communistic in their purposes.

Some labor men and others interested in Russia having been planning the sending of some sort of commission to Russia, the purpose of such a commission would be to make an "investigation of the economic, social, industrial, and political conditions" in Russia and other nations visited. There has been some suspicion, however, that the commission has a deeper purpose than this.

"We seriously doubt the good faith of such a self-constituted commission" the executive department of the federation said. "We can not believe any representative or officer of organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor will accept a membership on such a commission." Mention was also made of organizations "assuming to speak for labor, in the name of labor, and which the executive council believes, are communistic in make-up, in principle, and in purpose."

It is indeed fortunate that the leaders in the American Federation of Labor realize the menace to all Americans, of the insiduous spread of communistic propaganda. No class of Americans has more to lose from a communistic assault in the United States than the working people themselves. American workingmen are steadily advancing in every way. The contrast with the working people of Russia is indeed vivid and striking. In case of a communist victory in the United States, most of the rich, realizing the approach of the storm, would doubtless get away. It would be those who have to remain behind who would really suffer.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

In the good old days of politics, when there were no other issues in sight, the spell binders said those who control the destinies of political campaigns could always turn to the tariff. Then the Republicans would line up almost to a man for the protection of American industries and American labor, while the Democrats would set out to denounce protection as a hold-up of the robber tariff barons.

But those days are gone now and perhaps gone forever. The number of the advocates of the protective tariff in the South is growing by leaps and bounds. The South is becoming a manufacturing center, and in the agricultural districts there the farmers realize that they need protection on certain of the commodities they raise. On the other hand there are certain groups of persons in the East, especially in the financial centers, once favorable to protection and usually Republican, who, due to changes in the international financial situation, are now in favor of larger importations. In the West, too, certain leaders usually classed as Republicans, are seeking to persuade the farmers to believe that they ought to stand for a lower tariff.

An interesting sidelight on shifting conditions is furnished by one of the Democratic candidates for the Senate in Indiana, who is a well known business man and banker in private life. He is quoted as declaring recently: "No one is promising free trade, and no one proposes to jump from protection to free trade. What we do propose is tariff duties, the objective of which is effective competition between foreign and domestic producers. What we do propose is first, the immediate substitution of a moderate tariff act for the present immoderate act, and thereafter slowly progressive tariff reduction in the direction of tariff for revenue only. In that progressive reduction, while anxious not to disturb business imprudently and unfairly, we should always think of the consumer for whom, in much tariff revision, there has been no thought at all."

This sort of a tariff statement indicates of course, the belief of the Democratic leaders in Indiana that free trade is no longer a popular battle cry. And the suggestion of a gradual modification of the tariff will take the student of history back to the days of Andrew Jackson when Henry Clay, in a period of national crisis, although a staunch protectionist himself, conceived a compromise tariff which would gradually reduce the rates and at the same time, so Clay believed, prevent a civil war. This gradual reduction, however, ultimately flooded the country with imports and produced a huge army of unemployed.

This quotation from the statement of a prominent Democrat is not given to convey the impression that it is the Democrats alone who are modifying their views on the tariff because of pressure within the party. The Republicans, as inferred above, are not standing firm at all points of the line, and in certain sections of the country some of the leaders are just as prone to hedge as the Democrats. In doing this they are overlooking an important and effective issue.

The suggestion that the consumer is not always given enough consideration in framing tariff schedules brings up the question as to who is the consumer. In America nearly every man, and many of the women, are producers rather than consumers. The producers are in the great majority. As this is a government by majority it is difficult to see just why giving prosperity to the producer would not have the tendency to bring greater prosperity all around.

VOTERS, Look At This

Proposals Next 4 Years for Roads:		Proposals Next 4 Years for Schools:
PATTERSON—	$57,000,000 without debt	PATTERSON—	$16,000,000 additional without increase of ad valorem tax.
McDOWELL—	$75,000,000 bonded debt	McDOWELL—	Secret plans.
CARMICHAEL—	$35,000,000 bonded debt	CARMICHAEL—	Nice promises.
GRAVES—	$25,000,000 bonded debt	GRAVES—	Mainly reapportionment of funds which means about 10 cents per capita.

Patterson advocates the building of permanent connecting highways in every county in the State without bonded debt; also he will take the convicts out of the mines and build roads with them, and pledges himself to put a competent and experienced road builder in charge of the State Highway Department, instead of John Rogers, the Politician.

He promises to abolish the School Book Trust in Alabama and to supply school books to the children of the State at approximately one-third less than the amount now being paid for same.

He pledges himself to increase the taxes of the class one Railroads so that they will be in the same proportion with the small land owner and farmer. He will do away with the county tax adjuster and have your taxes regulated, should the occasion arise, by your County Board of Commissioners and Tax Assessor co-operating with the State Tax Commission. In view of the need for additional revenue for the State Treasury, Mr. Patterson proposes to extend the Severence Tax which now applies only on coal and iron ore, to include other Natural Resources of the State which pay no tax at all. He always has opposed any tax upon timber, crossties or upon lumber sawed by small sawmills. This tax, with equitable adjustment of Railroad Taxes, will bring into the Treasury approximately FOUR MILLION DOLLARS ($4,000,000). This increased Revenue will provide nine months free school and more grades in the primary schools, with better trained and better paid teachers, with better school equipment.

Mr. Patterson tells you how much additional money is needed to do these things and how he proposes to raise it, and in what manner he will expend this money to the best interest of the entire State. All three of the other candidates for Governor offer the voters no feasible or tangible plan by which they will raise the money that is needed for our schools; McDowell tells you he has a secret plan for increasing taxes, but does not trust the voters enough to tell them how he will do it, though he asks you to vote for him. Carmichael asks your vote, but gives no solution. Graves proposes to reapportion the funds of the State when he well knows that the income of the State is far below the needs and that we are now face to face with a crisis that must be met.

Vote for Mr. Patterson, the man who offers you a solution of the problems and whose record of service for six years as President of the Public Service Commission is sufficient guarantee that his pledges and promises will be fulfilled.

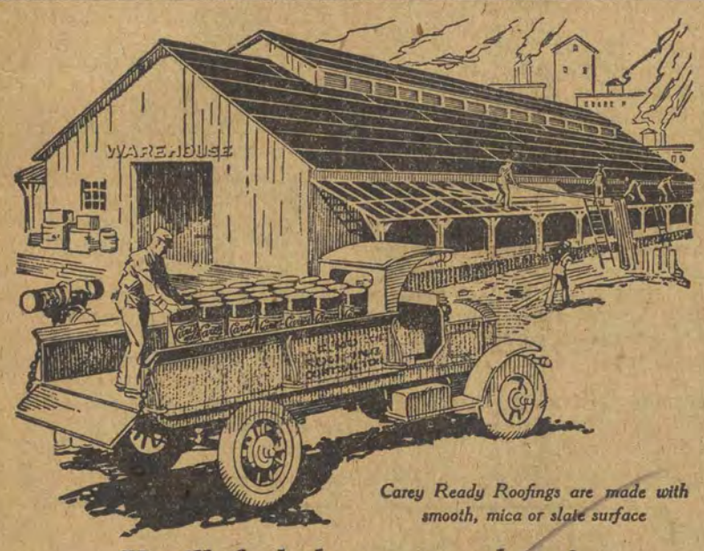
T. A. MADDOX WRITES VOTERS

To the Voters of Chilton County:

It is my desire to see each voter in the county and talk with them face to face, but you know it is almost impossible to do this, so I am writing this letter that it may reach the most of you.



I was born and reared in Chilton County, and have always stood by the Republican party. The time is not far off when you will go to the polls and cast your vote for a Commissioner for the Second District, and if I am elected I will do everything in my power to carry out the business of the office to the best interest of the county and to give everybody a square deal in anything that might come before the court. In regard to roads—I am in favor of good roads, and I believe each man in the county should share his part of the road funds in portion to the traffic on his road.

As you know, I was defeated four years ago, asking for the same place I am now asking for, but I took it as my part like any true Republican should do.

Now, in conclusion, I want to ask you to give me a just and fair consideration and I will be satisfied with your decision. I feel like the experience I have had for the past twenty-three years working labor and working where there has been lots of hauling done with teams and trucks would be of great help to me in carrying out the business of the office.

Thanking the voters, both ladies and gentlemen in advance for your support in the primary.—T. A. Maddox.

WANTS EASTERLING FOR SCHOOL BOARD

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space to say a few words in regard to the candidacy of W. J. Easterling for member of the County Board of Education.

I am one of the trustees of Concord school, District No. 32, and the first man to ask Mr. Easterling to announce for member of the board. Mr. Easterling is the only man in the race from the east part of Beat 4 and Beat 16. He has always took an interest in schools, working for their good, and giving his services for their upbuilding at all times. He is one of the few who started building at the ground and made a success in the undertaking. He knows how to get the full 100 cents value from every dollar spent—something he learned by hard work and experience. Mr. Easterling lives on the line between Beat 4 and Beat 16. I believe he is the man for the people. He does not believe in excessive taxation. Let's put a man in office who knows the value of a dollar.—J. Mat Johnson. (Paid Political adv., by W. J. WEST CHILTON

The beautiful myrtle flowers and scattering yellow leaves in the forest calls our attention to the fact that the year is waning.

Had a fine rain Saturday, the largest rain this section has had in a long time, which will practically mature the corn crop. Our crops have been suffering seriously for several days.

Mrs. Lois Sims of Birmingham is visiting her father, Mr. T. J. Hubbard.

Mrs. Washburn of Bessemer visited her sister, Mrs. D. H. Hodgens, last week.

Messrs. W. G. Culp and Tom Rockett, the popular candidates for Tax Collector, were among their friends here recently.

Mr. John Bean of northeast Chilton was shaking hands with the voters here last week.

Mr. Hugh Waldrop has a contract for cutting wood for the paper manufacturer. He has several hands employed.

In all the political correspondence of the Banner we fail to detect anything like just trying to beat anyone. That is as it should be, for the present campaign is only to select the best standard bearers for the party. We might enumerate the redeeming qualities of the candidates, and stress the fact that Rockett and Pate were model officers, that Vinson went over the sea for us, ready to make the supreme sacrifice, that Culp and Mims are efficient and honest, that Scott and Bean are men of experience and loyal party workers, that Waldrop and Dorminey have experience and honesty, that Gentry, Maddox and others are true men of experience and good judgment, and thus all down the line. But let the voters decide, for after the primary loyalty will be expected, and loyalty will be needed. Let's look well to the members of the board of education. There are Collins, Cleckler, Pitts, Dennis, Benson, and all the others who are worthy men, able and efficient. Give us men of integrity, efficiency, industry, and loyalty.

This year has been a time of discussing the farmer's situation without much legislation for him, and that may be best. One magazine writer says "No man or set of men can help the farmer out of his difficulties. He must get out himself. He listens too much to those who have no knowledge of his ills, and thus plays right into the hands of 'big business.' And while he produces a surplus he is the victim of big business."

Mr. Kin Vinson, the well known candidate for Tax Assessor, was here last week.

My Favorite Stories

Where the Real Fault Lay

The tourist was one of that type which for some mysterious reason are more numerously encountered abroad than at home. He was doing the cathedral towns of England, not because he was particularly interested in English towns, or in English cathedrals either, but because the guide book advised him to do so.

Near the close of a glorious spring afternoon he stood on the greensward facing Canterbury cathedral with his legs planted far apart, his cap on the back of his head, his hands rammed deep into his trousers' pockets, his cigar stuck into one corner of his mouth, and on his face an expression betokening profound boredom.

The celebrated Canterbury chimes were ringing for vespers, filling all the air with silver melody, when a side door of the cathedral opened and there issued forth a little, plump, pink-cheeked, benevolent clergyman. He approached the visiting stranger and in cultured tones said to him:

"I take it, sir, that you are a stranger?"

"Hey?" inquired the American, cupping one hand about his ear.

The clergyman raised his voice:

"I assume, sir, that you are not a resident of these parts?"

"Nope," said the American. "I hail from Nebraska. It's a durned good state, too—best in the Union. You ought to come out there some time, elder, and give us the once-over."

"Eh—quite so," said the reverend gentleman. "Then," he continued, "since you are newly-come to this place it must seem to you, even as it does to those of us who dwell in these cloistered and holy precincts, that the music of our glorious bells comes floating down to one almost like the voice of the Almighty Himself, seeking through the medium of their old brazen throats to communicate the message of peace, on earth goodwill to man, to us His children here below."

"Which?" inquired the visitor, inclining his head somewhat.

"Er—what I meant to say was," stated the clergyman, "is that one must carry away from here, after hearing our chimes, the conviction in his soul that really he has been in communication with Deity itself—that the voices of the angels have cried out to him. Er—is it not so, my friend?"

The American shook his head.

"I'm sorry, parson," he said regretfully, "but them d—n bells is making so much noise I can't hear a word you say!"

RIVER SURRENDERS BODY OF DEAD MAN

Bath Towel About Face and Weight Tied to Neck, Report Says.

Riverside, Ala., July 27.—With the face smothered in a heavy bath towel and a suitcase containing several pounds of iron tied about his neck, the body of an unidentified white man was washed ashore here today.

There were no clues to the man's identity. The body was found caught in underbrush on the banks of the Coosa River. A coroner's jury said death was from drowning or other unknown causes.

The suitcase in addition to the iron weights contained a practically new suit, without a trade mark. The bath towel had been wrapped about the face and fastened with a safety pin.

The body is that of a man about 65 years old, red haired and stout. The man had no teeth. If the body is not claimed it will be buried by the city here. County authorities are investigating the case.

Will erect and sell "Pan-Am" gasoline in new and modern station in the grove on the hill top on the west side of Birmingham - Montgomery Highway. Will maintain an up-to-date tourist camp later on. Open for business in about 30 days. Thank you! Jno. T. Ellis.

Helping To Build The SOUTH

FOR MANY YEARS this Railroad has used daily and weekly newspapers, farm journals and widely distributed booklets for the purpose of advertising the commercial and agricultural attractions of the territory it serves. The bulk of the circulation of these magazines and newspapers has been confined principally to the Central-West section of the country. Believing, however, that the eyes of the entire nation are on the Southland, and that the clear-thinking people of every state in the Union are looking to this great territory of milder climates and greater opportunities, this Railroad, some months ago, inaugurated a campaign of advertising in magazines of general circulation, such as The Saturday Evening Post, The Literary Digest, The National Geographic Magazine, and Review of Reviews.

These advertisements will run regularly throughout the entire year, and those which have appeared have brought inquiries from every state in the Union. These inquiries are being promptly and intelligently answered, and it is the belief of the management of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad that the South—particularly that part of the South served by "The Old Reliable"—will show remarkable and uninterrupted population increases.

Prosperity comes with increased population and this Railroad—the first great North-and-South trunk line of the nation to adopt national advertising—is doing its part to build the community in which you live.

ELEVEN LAWYERS REPRESENT STATE

Kilby Points Out Need for Business Man in United States Senate. Alabama Has Eleven Lawyers and No Business Men.

THOMAS E. KILBY

"Ninety per cent of the matters coming before Congress relate to business or economic questions," declared former Governor Thomas E. Kilby, candidate for the United States Senate. "The Congress of the United States is the greatest business body in the world, and its actions directly affect the life, income and cost of living of every man, woman and child in Alabama.

"Alabama has twelve men in Congress—ten in the House of Representatives and two in the Senate. Eleven of these are lawyers and there is not a business man among the number. Does it not appeal to the people of Alabama as proper that the great agricultural, industrial, commercial and business interests of Alabama should have at least one representative. I am the only business man with legislative and executive experience running for the United States Senate.

"Without any disparagement of lawyers, many of whom I number among my warmest friends and closest supporters, I believe the best interests of the State and the nation would be served by having at least one business man in Congress from Alabama to bring a new viewpoint to bear on the great business and economic problems which come before that body.

"The Muscle Shoals question has been before Congress for six years and apparently is little nearer settlement now than when it started. Six good business men could have settled that problem in six months.

"I promise the people of Alabama the same business methods in the Senate which marked my administration as Governor."

FLOYD NEWS

Our revival meeting started last Saturday and is progressing nicely. The Sunday school is going well, and we hope to keep it going.

A large crowd of friends met at this place last Wednesday for the purpose of helping the people to clean their relatives' graves. The cemetery was cleaned with only Mrs. Hiram Taylor and her children and three nephews that where present to help to clean off the graves of her father, Mr. W. D. Courtney, and her brothers sisters. Mr. W. D. Courtney was married three times and was the father of 23 children, of which 13 are living. Mr. Courtney has 75 grand-children living. Of this number there were 5 present to clean the cemetery.—Mrs. A. O. Taylor and daughter.

COLLINS CHAPEL

By special arrangement the United Singing Society met here Sunday afternoon and did some of as good, if not the best singing, we have had in a long time. The song service began with song and prayer by the president, as usual, after which the following directors directed as many songs as they wished, as they were not limited: A. H. Glasscock, Akins Collins, Jasper Oaks, Gresham Lowery, and E. L. Glasscock. Several fine quartets were rendered by the Society's quartet, composed of Akins Collins, Gresham Lowery, John Childress, and A. H. Glasscock. Organists were Misses Genie Collins and Emam Campbell.

Prof. A. H. Glasscock, with the assistance of his brother, E. L., brought quite a number of his students from Oak Hill. We were glad to have them with us, and welcome these new members in to our society.

The society will meet with New Salem next Sunday afternoon instead of Thorsby. Individual singers and classes will be given a hearty welcome at all times.

AMERICANS IN EUROPE

Some indication of the prosperity of the American people may be had through the reports from Europe to the effect that the capitals and resorts of the old world are fairly teeming with visitors from the Western Hemisphere. The influx of the Americans is especially noticeable, it is said, in France and Great Britain. Paris, as usual gets the most American money, and tourists are having an especially good time there on account of the present lowly condition of the franc. But London, too, is getting its share of these trans-oceanic visitors. In fact, one British newspaper recently printed a cartoon of the Strand, London's popular thoroughfare, under the title "Find the Englishman." The Englishman could be seen emerging from the coal cellar, and the thoroughfare itself was crowded with Americans.

This migration of American tourists to Europe is significant in two ways. First it shows that the United States is really prosperous. These tourists are not all wealthy by any means. Many of them are teachers and other citizens in the modest walks of life. The fact that they can go and spend their money shows how widely prosperity is diffused in America.

The flood of visitors abroad proves another thing. It shows that Americans are not self-centered and isolated. Each year they are traveling more at home and abroad. They are learning about their neighbors in other states and about the people in other lands. And thih traveling is giving them breadth and additional understanding. It is now the Europeans who, for various reasons, are staying at home.

Most valuable of all, this traveling gives the average American an understanding of the real worth of America. He is finding after all that his own country is the best in which to live, because of the greater opportunity for individual development. In 99 cases out of 100 he comes back home better satisfied with the fact that he is an American.

ALF MIMS FOR TAX COLLECTOR

Permit me to say a few words thru the columns of your valuable paper concerning the candidacy of Alford F. Mims.

Mr. Mims is known to the people who have dealings with him in any way to be an honorable and truthful man. He is a good school and church man, always giving his influence on the side of anything that is right, progressive and fair.

Mr. Mims is also known to be, as he has always been, a faithful and true man to his party and to his neighbors. He is one of the most progressive farmers and poultrymen. Mr. Mims has made a success of his own business and is in position to know how to handle the people's money as well as to give them the greatest efficiency in office work. He is a capable man and is a tireless worker for any cause when he thinks it deserves the attention of good citizens.

No man is fairer to his opponents than Mr. Mims is. He is no mud slinger, and if elected by the people as tax collector, my opinion is that he will make one of the best men we have ever had in office.

Let's nominate him as the choice of the Republican party for the next tax collector. I am certain we will make no mistake. Yours very truly—Calvin Deason.

Chilton County Republicans Should Vote Next Tuesday, August 10th

J. T. ROCKETT PRESENTS HIS CLAIMS FOR RE-ELECTION

To the voters of Chilton County:

In five more days the Republican voters of Chilton County will go to the polls and cast their votes for the several officers to serve them for the next ensuing term. The voters have had ample time to study the records and virtues of the several candidates, and are prepared to give their vote serious and just consideration.

I have not through the medium of The Union-Banner had anything to say of my candidacy for Tax Collector, and I will thank The Union-Banner and the voters' indulgence while I bring to the Republican voters the reason upon which I base my candidacy for reelection to this office. The argument has been used against me that I have had the office one term and I should now be cast aside and another should be elected. I do not believe this argument is sound or a safe policy, for it would remove all desire for an officer to be capable and efficient knowing his good work in office would go unrewarded. When an officer knows that his re-election to an office depends upon his honesty and efficiency in office, he strives to make the people a better officer. The same principle is applied in public offices as you would apply in your farming, mercantile, or any other profession or business, when a man is giving good service, why fire him and hire some man that you have never tried? The people evidently in the past have recognized this to be true, for within the past 25 years or more in the tax offices, every officer has served two terms or more—Mr. Jasper N. Dennis served three terms in these offices; Mr. J. Dudley Collins served two terms; Mr. Tom Hubbard served three terms; and in fact, every officer in the tax offices since the Republican party began functioning in Chilton County, has had the opportunity at the hands of the voters of serving more than one term. I have heard no other criticism from either of my opponents than that I have had the office one term, and I do not believe you voters are going to remove an officer after his first term with only this reason.

I have no criticism to offer against either of my opponents, they are both good men and Republicans. This is the first adventure of Mr. A. F. Mims into the political field, and it is no disgrace to lose the first race, for many of your officers are in this position. I can well remember the first race I made the voters did not see proper to elect me. However, that is a test for a man's sincerity to his party, and every candidate should be willing to stand this test.

I notice in an article in The Union-Banner of July 22, where Mr. Culp states that he believes the voters should not re-elect me in office for the second term, but should make a change, and he claims the benefit and right to this change. Mr. Culp further states that I have had the Tax Collector's office six years, and I will have served ten years if elected. However, I do not think that Mr. Culp can complain as he has already served as First Deputy Sheriff for eight years

S. M. PATE MAKES APPEAL

Dear Editor:

Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words to the Republican voters of Chilton County.

First, I want to thank the good people for what they have done for me in the past. I have served one term as Tax Assessor of this county, and I have done my very best to fill the office with credit to myself and the whole people. It is a fact that I have been in office, but that is the only thing that anyone can say against me, and you know it has always been a custom in this county to give an officer two terms if he has proved himself worthy.

I want you voters, both ladies and gentlemen, to investigate my record in this office and see if I haven't given you just as good service as anyone that has ever held this office, and if I have caused you any trouble I am willing to make it right with you any time.

It has been published by some parties through The Union-Banner that I had accumulated enough money out of the office to take life easy the rest of my life, which every one of you know is a broad mistake.

Now voters, if you think I have not given you the service in the office which you should have, you vote for Mr. Vinson; but if I have been courteous to you and filled the office right I will appreciate your vote and influence in the primary to be held August 10.

I believe I have as correct a set of books as you can find in any county in the State of Alabama and I am in a better position now to keep them that way than I was when I first went into office, and it has been rumored that we may have a new Tax Adjuster to help the Tax Assessor value your property next term, and you know two new men valuing your property might get you into trouble.

In conclusion, I will say that I want you all to come out on August 10 and vote your choice and honest conviction, and your choice will be mine, and I will be the same Republican as I am now. Asking you again for your vote and influence, yours.—S. M. Pate. (Paid pol. adv., by S. M. Pate, Thorsby, Ala.)

Explanation of the Republican Ticket and Instructions About How To Mark Your Ballot

Next Tuesday, August 10th is the day for the primary election in Chilton County, and all Republican voters, both men and women, are urged to go to the polls and vote their choice. The purpose of the primary is to nominate Republican candidates for county offices, who will be the Republican nominees in November.

This issue of The Union-Banner practically winds up the Republican campaign. We have men who are asking you to vote for them. They have been passing around among the people and have been discussing their caims through the paper. Now, the matter is up to the Repubican voters, and it is hoped that every one will go to the election and exercise your privilege of voting for the men of your choice.

Following is the list of candidates on the Republican ticket:

For Tax Collector—Will G. Culp, Alfred F. Mims, J. T. Rockett. One of these three is to be nominated, therefore a second-choice vote may be cast if desired. When you mark your ticket, make a cross to the left of the name of your first choice, and make a cross to the right of the name of your second choice. You do not have to vote second choice unless you want to.

For Tax Assessor—S. M. Pate and K. M. Vinson. There is one of these to be nominated, and as there are only two running, there can be no second choice vote. The voter will make a cross to the left of the name of your choice.

For Sheriff—J. D. Cleckler and J. Dudley Collins. There is one of these to be nominated, and as there are only two running, there can be no second choice. The voter will make a cross to the left of the name of your choice.

For Representative in the Legislature of Alabama—John S. Dennis and Percy M. Pitts. There is one of these to be nominated, and as there are only two candidates, there can be no second choice. The voter will make a cross to the left of the name of your choice.

For member of County Board of Education, long term, 6 years—R. H. Bean, C. C. Conway, W. J. Easterling, J. L. Vines, S. J. M. Webb. Two of these are to be nominated, and as there are five candidates, a second choice can be voted. The voter will make a cross to the left of the names of the two of his first choice and a cross to the right of the two of his second choice. The voter must vote for two of these. If he votes for only one his vote will not be counted.

For Member of Board of Education, short term, to succeed J. P. Dykes—J. M. Smith. As there is only one candidate for this place, the voter can only vote for Smith, which requires a cross to the left of his name.

For County Commissioner, First District—J. P. Bean, T. J. Dorminey, D. F. Jones, J. N. Scott, S. E. Waldrop. There is one of these to be nominated, and as there are five candidates running, the second choice may be voted. The voter will make a cross to the left of the name of his first choice, and a cross to the right of his second choice. Second choice voting is not required, and may be left off if desired.

For County Commissioner, Second District—J. H. Benson, D. H. Gentry, T. A. Maddox, J. M. Mims. One of these is to be nominated, and as there are four candidates running, the second choice may be voted. The voter will make a cross mark to the left of the name of his first choice and a cross mark to the right of the name of his second choice. Second choice vote is not required, and may be left off if desired.

Republicans are urged to study this explanation carefully and be prepared to mark their ballots intelligently.

Attention of the voters is also called to the special election for Representative which will be held on the day of the primary. When you go to the election and call for your pink Republican primary ballot, ask also for a special election ballot. The special election is a final election to choose a successor to W. M. Wyatt, resigned.

Omar L. Reynolds is the Republican candidate. His name is under the elephant. There is no Democratic candidate printed on the ballot. W. S. Cox is the Democratic candidate. His name was filed at the probate office too late to be printed on the ticket. Those who want to vote for Omar L. Reynolds, the Republican candidate, may make a cross mark to the left of his name. Those who want to vote for W. S. Cox, the Democratic candidate, may write his name on the blank line provided for that purpose.

FROM W. G. CULP, CANDIDATE FOR TAX COLLECTOR

To the Republicans of Chilton County:

I wish to say a few words to you through this issue of The Union-Banner in regard to my candidacy for Tax Collector.

In my campaign as I have gone about among you I have sought to acquaint the voters with my reasons for asking your support. I have done so with truth, honesty, and all due regards for the rights of every other candidate, and with consistency toward the individual opinions of the voters to think and act for themselves. I have tried to see every voter in person, but I know I have been unable to do so.

Now, whether I have seen you or not, I want to close my campaign by telling you again that I will appreciate your vote and influence on August 10.

I have always done all that lay in my power for the cause of the Republican party. I want you now to give me the Tax Collector's office, both for the increased ability it will give me to serve the people of the county and support the Republican party, as well as the material benefit it will be to me personally.

I have to work for my living now as I have always done, and have not been able to lay down my work and devote all my time to campaigning. But I have done my best to put my case before the people in an intelligent manner. Now I am ready to leave it with the Republican voters. If you say on August 10 that I shall be your candidate for Tax Collector, I will do all in my power to be elected in November. If you say you want another man for your nominee, I will be satisfied with your verdict, and will do all I can to help you elect him in November, along with all the rest of the Republican nominees.—W. G. Culp. (Paid pol. adv., by W. G. Culp, Clanton, Ala.)

J. D. CLECKLER WRITES ABOUT HIS RACE FOR SHERIFF

Editor Union-Banner:

I would appreciate space in your paper for a few words to the voters of Chilton County in regard to my race for sheriff, as it will be impossible for me to see each one in person.

I announced for this important office on the Republican ticket after due consideration and the solicitation of a large number of voters from the various beats of the county, and I fully realize the great responsibility that will be mine if I am elected your sheriff.

I was raised in Chilton County and have spent all but a few years here. I have always voted the Republican ticket. I believe that I am well qualified to fill the sheriff's office, and if you will elect me I will do all in my power to enforce the laws and conduct myself in such a manner that you will never have cause to regret that you voted for me.

Should I be nominated August 10, I will do all in my power in an honorable way to elect the whole Republican ticket in November. And should my opponent be nominated, I would work equally as hard for the lection of the entire Republican ticket.—J. D. Cleckler. (Paid pol. adv., by J. D. Cleckler, Thorsby, Ala.)

TWIN CANTALOUPES AND TOMATOES

Folks have been commenting lately upon stories of twin cantaloupes from other counties. We now have such things right here at home. Tom Miner of Refuge brougt a twin cantaloupe to The Union-Banner office last Saturday. Monday morning Mrs. M. A. Mullins brought in a twin tomato, and a man whose name we did not get brought in a twin fig. It is said that such freaks denote a good crop year, which at this time is in line with other visible indications in Chilton County.

A. B. Baxley of the Baxley-Burgess Real Estate Co., Calera, Ala., was in town Tuesday on business.

ALF MIMS MAKES FINAL PLEA TO VOTERS

As most of you people know already, I am a candidate for Tax Collector of Chilton County on the Republican ticket. I have seen most of the voters while canvassing the county, and it has been my desire to see and know each one of you personally; but in case I have failed to see any of you, I want you to give me your careful consideration in the closing days of the campaign, and vote for me on next Tuesday, August 10.

I have always been true to my party, and have been a Republican all my ilfe. I feel that I am qualified to fill the office I am now asking for. I have never served the people of my county in a public office, and have never asked for a public office before. Each of my two opponents in this race have been charging that the other of them has been making a living out of the county for some time. I am not concerned about which of them has had the most out of public office. I simply want you voters to think about the fact that I am a plain old farmer, who is honest, sincere, and faithful to the Republican party, and have never held a public office of any kind. If you want to give me the place, I will appreciate it, and will make you as good official as anybody.

I have always stood for the upbuilding of our schools and churches. I believe in fairness and justice to all. I have waged a clean campaign.

I want the ladies as well as the men to go to the polls and vote. Some of the ladies think it is not their place to vote; but you have that privilege, and why not use it?

I sincerely hope that after a careful consideration you can see fit to cast your vote for me. I don't think you will ever regret it. If I am nominated I will put forth every honest and honorable effort to be elected in November. If elected I will always strive to the utmost of my ability to serve the people as honestly and courteously as possible.

I hope you will determine that I am the proper man for the place and give me the nomination next Tuesday.—Alfred F. Mims. (Paid pol. adv., by Alfred F. Mims, Thorsby, Ala.)

FINAL APPEAL FROM VINSON FOR TAX ASSESSOR

To the Republican voters of Chilton County:

As the primary is close at hand and I realize there is lots of voters I have been unable to see in person, I want to ask each and every Republican voter, men and ladies, to accept this as a personal appeal for your support on August 10.

I wish it had been possible for me to see all in person, but owing to the fact that I am dependent on my daily work for my living, it has been impossible for me to make a complete canvass of the county. However, I am proud of having seen so many and especially of having an opportunity to gain more friends as I feel like I have.

I have conducted a clean and fair campaign, and have tried as best I knew to let the people know me and my qualifications to fill the office of Tax Assessor should I be your choice, and now I want to ask again that you consider me as a man, as a Republican, and my qualifications by having three years experience as clerk in this office, and in any other way you may see fit, and after you have done so, if you think it right for me to have an opportunity to serve you as Tax Assessor for the next four years I shall certainly thank you to cast your vote and use your influence for me on August 10. But after you have given due consideration to all, if you think Mr. Pate is more entitled to 10 years than I am to 4 years, then I expect you to support him.

As I have said heretofore, Mr. Pate is a good man and has made a good officer, which we expected of him when we elected him to the place, but since he has held the office for 6 years, a term and a half, and had 2 years of this given to him without any expense or worry, I feel like he should be satisfied with this, and should be very grateful to the people of Chilton County for this honor, and he certainly should be willing to let some of the other Repbluicans of the County share with him in this honor as well as the material benefits.

In conclusion I want to assure you in advance of my hearty appreciation and thanks for your support, and if I can be your choice I assure you that you will never have just cause to regret helping me, and whether I am your choice or not, I assure you I will do as I have done in the past—help elect the entire Republican ticket in November, and remain working for a stronger and better Republican party.

Thanking everyone in advance for a fair and honest consideration.—K. M. Vinson. (Paid pol. adv., by K. M. Vinson, Clanton, Ala.)

FROM D. H. GENTRY

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me space in your paper to say a few words to the voters in regard to my candidacy for the office of county commissioner. I do so, realizing the responsibility that is on the county commissioners, as I have served one term before. Will say we had a great struggle then as our county was badly in debt. But we pulled through and got our county on a cash basis.

I believe if I am the choice of the people and can get the office again, I can make a better record. I have always supported the Republican ticket, and I don't think that my loyalty to the Republican party can be questioned for I have never voted anything else. I have never split and have never left off a single name that was nominated.

Now, voters, if you can see fit to nominate me this time I assure you I will appreciate the same and will promise to do the best I can and to never give any citizen a just cause to regret having voted for me.

Now, I submit my case to you and will be satisfied with the results of the primary on the 10th of August.

Very truly yours,
D. H. GENTRY.

FROM JOHN S. DENNIS

To the Republican voters:

My name is before you as a candidate for Representative in the Legislature of Alabama. The only other candidate running for this office is Mr. Pitts, the lawyer. The Democrats have notseen fit to run anybody against us.

So far as I know Mr. Pitts is a nice man. He and Mr. J. B. Atkinson are law partners, and what will aid one will aid the other. Mr. Atkinson for about 10 years claimed to be a Republican, and one of us.

Now The Union- Banner informs us that Mr. Atkinson has gone body and soul to the Democrats. I am not charging that Mr. Pitts has done this or had anything to do with Atkinson going to the Democrats. But I think Pitts ought to let the Republican voters know his attitude in the matter. You know it is customary for partners to work together for one another.

Friends, I would say that you had better keep your eyes open You should look well to see if Pitts is a Republican or not, or you may get another turn coat.

I invite you to search the records and see about me. I have voted the Republican ticket for the last 25 years. In fact I have voted the ticket ever since it started in Chilton County.

I urge the Republicans to come to the polls and vote for the men whom we believe will stand for the right. I will be glad if you will give me the nomination, but I want you to vote your choice and that will satisfy me. I will be with the Republicans in November to help elect the men we nominate.—John S. Dennis. (Paid Pol. adv. by John S. Dennis, Clanton Route 1.)

FROM R. H. BEAN

To the Voters:

It was my desire to see all of you personally, but as that was impossible, I am making this, my last appeal before the election, to you.

I am a "Chiltonian" by birth and have always lived here and voted the Republican ticket.

I stand for better schools, longer terms and an equal chance to every child in the county.

Should I be elected as Member of Board of Education, I assure you I shall strive to do all I can to better schoos, but if I am not nominated, I will stand by the ticket and gladly help put it over.

Assuring you that I will appreciate your vote and awaiting your decision, I am,—Respectfully yours,
R. H. BEAN

J. H. MARTIN WRITES TO VOTERS

Editor Union-Banner:

I want to say through the columns of your paper just a few things to the voters of the county.

I want to congratulate the people for the stand they took on the one-mill tax. The time has come when the people know what they want and will not be scared pro and con by the sharp shooters that are being brought into the county to make special speeches in behalf of just a few and special election called just to satisfy two or three.

You must remember that your county in the hands of the people is safe and in the hands of a few is in danger. I believe in the majority ruling in all cases. I feel like when I am with the majority I am on the right side. The people must take more interest in their schools and build up their school at home in the rural districts. Do not allow your school to be moved off to the little towns. Let's cut out the trucks and keep our children near home where we can help look after them as in days gone by. When you fail to support the rural schools you are striking at your churches, homes and the value of your property is being cut in half. When you load your children on a truck and send them away to school you are tearing down what you have worked a life time to build up—and that is your country homes and rural schools.

Now, let us work to build up the rural schools. Keep our children at home where we can raise them in an honest and honorable way. Keep them away from the fads of the city as much so as possible. When we have done the very best we can it seems that we have almost made a failure.

Now, let us go to work to build up the rural schools. Let every community come together in a unit and work for their schools. Get you three good, level-headed men for trustees and put your school in their hands and abide by what they say and do. It is a fact that three men can run a school better than one man can run fifty schools. When you place your schools back in the hands of the trustees and not let one or two men run them you will see that the school interest will build up in your community and that your children will be better and your homes will be what you want them to be.

There is nothing that will build up your community like good schools, good churches and good homes. Then why should you want to load up your children on a truck and send them away to build up the little city, and tear down your own interest and decrease the value of your homes and property at least fifty per cent. Just stop for a minute and think what it means to you and your property. Our homes and our children are all we live for and without them there is no future for us.

Now, if you want to protect your rural schools, homes and churches, and build up the welfare of your community and have your children taught to the 10th grade at home in your rural schools, go to the polls on August 10th and cast your vote for R. H. Bean, W. J. Easterling and J. M. Smith, who will protect your interest and give you their support in every way and help you to build up your schools at home, and co-operate with you in every way to make your rural schools a success.

Now, if you want your schools to go on in the same old rut and go from bad to worse each year, you just vote for the other fellows and that is what you will get. John and Henry can't pay the bills in five years from now.

I have been quoted as fighting the one-mill tax and schools. This is a mistake. I am only fighting the way in which our money is being wasted and the management of our rural schools. There is no man in Chilton county who appreciates good schools more than I do, but I do believe it is wrong to tear up the rural schools to hold up the standard of the high schools. I believe it best for every community to have its schools taught to the 10th grade and let the trustees be the bosses. In this way we can have our children taught their books seven hours each school day instead of playing ball at least three and a half hours a day. Ball playing will never get your child anywhere. He must study his book if he makes good. You well know that one-half of the time is taken up in ball games and frolicks. Remember that good school teaching is what we want. We want men who can give us better schools for less money and the only way to get this is, on August 10th vote for Smith, Easterling and Bean.

I noticed C. C. Conway's piece in last week's Banner. It seems that he is awfully interested in the county school board, for which he is a candidate. I want to say I believe all members of the school board should be fathers who have children to educate. Mr. Conway has no children, and cannot take the interest in the schools that a man with a family of children. It has always struck me that Mr. Conway's race for the school board is only in behalf of Buford and not the interest of the people.

I want to say in conclusion to the good voters of the county to give us Rev. J. N. Scott for commissioner in the 1st district. He has been a life-long Republican, and this is the first time he has ever asked for office. So let us remember him on August 10th and show our appreciation to him as a loyal man to his party for 35 years. I thank you all. J. H. MARTIN.

REVIVAL AT FRIENDSHIP BEGINS SUNDAY, AUGUST 15

Announcement has been made that the annual revival at Friendship church, one and a half miles north of Clanton, will begin on Sunday, August 15th, which is the third Sunday in next month.

Rev. Rufus W. Stuckey, pastor of the Baptist church at Wilton, Ala., will assist the pastor in the preaching. Rev. Stuckey has just finished a revival with Rev. Lowery at Eanon church in Shelby county, and reports say that his preaching was received there with much satisfaction and splendid results. Rev. Stuckey is a student at Howard College and is a very fine preacher and a good man as well.

It is hoped that the people in nearby communities will cooperate heartily with the Friendship people in this revival and make it the best ever held here.

Work is moving on on rebuilding the church. It may not be all completed by the time of the revival, but it is hoped that enough will be done that the meetings may be accomodated.

CANE CREEK

The revival at this place ended last Monday, August 2, and was very successful. Bro. Bailey, pastor of the church, and Bro. Albert Foshee, visiting minister, were in charge of the meeting, delivering some fine sermons. The meeting was fine and enjoyed by all. Bro. Bailey was called as pastor of the church for next year.

The meeting will begin on Thursday, August 26, running a few days, and some time during those few days there will be baptizing. Don't forget the date, and come out and be with us.—A subscriber.

J. H. BENSON'S LETTER

As the day is nearing when the voters will go to the polls to cast their votes for a commissioner for the second district of Chilton County, and realizing that this will be the last issue of The Union-Banner before the primary election, I am writing this letter as it will be almost impossible for me to see and talk with all the Republican voters of the county. Therefore, if I do not see you personally, do not consider yourself as slighted, as it is a big job to see and talk to every Republican voter over the county.

If you are a voter of the county and do not know me personally, I would appreciate you asking someone who does know if I am competent for the place; if I am a good citizen; if I am a true Republican; consider it your priviege and duty to ask about me. The reason I say it is your duty is because the welfare of your county is placed in the commissioners' hands.

I believe the expenditures of the county should be divided so that every taxpayer would feel that he had received his just part in return for his money paid in as taxes.

In conclusion may I ask that if you see fit to go to the polls on August 10 and cast your vote for me, I will appreciate same and will promise you that I will do all that is in my power if elected to prove worthy of your consideration. But if I be defeated, I shall take it as my part and remain a Republican without a murmur.—J. H. Benson. (Paid pol. adv., by J. H. Benson, Jemison, Ala., R 4.)

Testimonial of Strength

A man I know told me that one evening he got on an "L" train in Chicago to go to his home in the suburbs. In one of the lengthwise seats near him sat three negroes—a big, wide darky in the center, with a little slender darky on each side of him. The big negro was looking for trouble; that much was plain.

Every time the guard, who was a little German, opened the door to call a station the big darky would mimic him, and then the other two darkies would laugh admiringly. The pestered guard finally protested, whereupon the big darky threatened him.

"Go on, you Dutchman!" he said. "Ef you sasses me I'll hit you jest onct, an' knock you so high in the air you'll starve to death comin' down!"

"He'll do it, too," said one of the little negroes.

"He will 'at!" assented the other. "Ef he say he'll do it, he shore will!"

Just then the door flew open and in came the German, accompanied by another guard, nearly seven feet high. The German pointed out the disturber, and the giant, without a word, grabbed him by the collar, jerked him out of his place like a tooth out of a socket, cuffed him first on one side of the head and then on the other, dragged him on the platform and pitched him bodily over the gate upon the platform of a station from which the train was just moving. Then he reopened the door and gave the friends of the late departed a hard and threatening look. But they were staring straight ahead of them, their eyes blinking and their faces indicative of a great mental concentration.

For a long minute there was silence. Then, as if moved by the same set of strings, the heads of the two little darkies turned gently, inch by inch, until each looked into the other's face across the gap where their friend had been sitting. One of them sighed musingly.

"Dat suttinly was a strong man!" was all he said.

FAVORS MIMS FOR COLLECTOR

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space to say a few words in regard to the candidacy of A. F. Mims for Tax Collector.

I have known Mr. Mims for 25 years, and I know him to be an honest, upright, Christian gentleman; have had business dealings with him and will say that it is always a pleasure to me to do business with anyone who has the business capacity that Mr. Mims has. He is competent to hold the office, and deserves the honor of the Republicans of Chilton county.

I have nothing to say against either of his opponents. One of them has had the honor of the office, and the good pay, for nearly six years; why not pass the honor to another good man who is competent and deserving? The other opponent is much younger than Mr. Mims, and has been serving an important position for the county for nearly eight years.

I think a fair consideration will give Mr. Mims the nomination for tax collector. And I believe if either of his opponents were to consider from a standpoint of "do unto others as you would have them do unto you" they could hardly refrain from casting their ballots for Mr. Mims. He has been as fair to his opponents as any man could be, and has always spoken well of them.—A. A. Jackson. (Paid pol. adv., by A. F. Mims, Thorsby, Ala.)

J. P. BEAN WRITES TO VOTERS

To the Republicans of Chilton County:

I realize it is impossible for me to see all the voters in the county, so I am writing to those I can not see, asking them not to feel slighted, and to assure you that I am interested and will appreciate your vote and influence as much as I do the ones I have seen.

I assure all that I will appreciate your vote and influence. I am not asking your support because I feel that I am more competent than any of my opponents, but because a number of my friends insisted, and to show that I appreciate the confidence they have in me, I am in the race. Please don't understand me to say I don't want the place; I would like to serve my county in this capacity and will, if nominated and elected, serve it to the utmost of my ability.

I advocate good roads, but believe in economizing as much as possible. I will do all I can to maintain the county's present high standing, and to keep the county on a cash basis. I favor pushing road work during the summer and fall with the machines, but stopping them during the winter months, especially on such roads as we have in Beat 12.

I thank you in advance for your consideration. If I am the choice of the Republicans for the office of Commissioner for the first district, I will conduct myself and the affairs of the office in a creditable way to myself and the Republican party. If you feel that one of my opponents is more suitable for this office, vote yor convictions and I am satisfied.—J. P. Bean. (Paid pol. adv., by J. P. Bean, Clanton, Ala., R 8.)

STRAWBERRIES OUT OF SEASON

Mr. John L. Burnett of Route 4 has sent to The Union-Banner a box of strawberries, which are somewhat out of the ordinary for this time of the year. They were brought by Mr. W. J. Armstrong, carrier on Route 4, who explained that Mr. Burnett has already gathered a good crop of berries off his farm, which were shipped at the usual time in the spring; and that now there is another crop on the place almost equal to that of the spring season. This is said to be a very unusual occurrence for strawberries. Many people say they have never seen it happen before. It is said that Mr. Burnett is the only strawberry farmer in this section who has had a second crop, which adds to the mystery.

"GIT YOU A AX HANDLE AND NOCK TILL NOVEMBER"

Some of the Democrats of Chilton County are passing the word out among the Republicans that they (the Democrats) want the Republicans to nominate certain candidates because they figure that they can easily beat them in November.

We want to warn the Republicans to beware of such perfidy. Democrats frequently wear one style of face when they talk to Republicans and another one when they talk among themselves. They doubtless figure that they can put out propaganda of that kind and fool the people into a trap of some sort.

Republicans should pay no attention to such talk from the Democrats. We have as good a list of candidates to pick from as could be gotten from the four corners of the county. It is a safe bet that the Republicans are able to pick their own nominees without the suggestions of the Democrats; and when they have spoken in the primary next Teusday, it will be a harbinger of the great success that will come to the Republican ticket in November.

We know that the suggestions of Democrats about who the Republicans should nominate are not sincere, because they are going to try to beat our nominees, it makes no difference who they are. The only thing for Republicans to do is just like Uncle Remus says: "Get you a ax handle and nock like the dickens till November."

APPERSON GIVES REASONS FAVORING KIN VINSON

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper for a few words with the Republican voters of Chilton County, as this is the last issue before the primary.

I wish, first of all, to say that I am glad that the campaign that has been made by the different Republican candidates has been what I consider of the highest type and worthy of the applause of every right thinking citizen. It has been kept on a high plane and I am truly glad it has been so.

All of the candidates have been among the people more or less, and have talked with the voters personally. Quite a bit has been written in the paper for the various candidates and I am glad that all of it has been in good spirit with the proper regard for each other. The attitude of our candidates shows that we will have a united Republican army to carry our nominees to victory in November.

I have taken particular notice of what has been said in behalf of Mr. K. M. Vinson for Tax Assessor, and, with all due regard for Mr. Pate, I am persuaded that it is perfectly right for us to give the nomination to Mr. Vinson now and elect him in November. You may want to ask me why I say this. Here are my reasons:

1. Mr. Pate has had the office long enough for one man. You all know that is true. When his present time is out he will have had the office six years. He went into the office in 1921 for a term of four years, which expired in 1925. Then the Legislature extended his term two years, which will expire in 1927, making a total of six years in all, or a term and a half he has served us, and I agree with Mr. Vinson's statement that he has had an equivalent of two terms, and that he is now virtually asking for a third term.

The office pays a good salary which, in the six years will fix Mr. Pate so he will not have any more financial worries for the rest of his life. It is therefore right for Mr. Pate to let some other good man enjoy the benefits for a while.

2. Mr. Vinson is a good, deserving young man who has never held an office. He is competent and able to discharge the duties of the office. He already knows the run of the tax work, having spent three years as clerk in the office under Mr. J. N. Dennis. I know that so far as his ability and competency are concerned, it will be no mistake to put Mr. Vinson in the office.

3. Mr. Vinson is a good Republican. He has always been a Republican from his youth up. He has given liberally of his time and means to help the Republican party at times when it did not mean his personal gain. He will continue his labors in the interest of the party in the future; and if we give him the office, he can be worth much more because he will be able to do more. When the interest of the Republican party has called on Mr. Vinson he has always responded, day or night, cold or hot, rain or shine, and I know it will not be a mistake to give an important county office to such a Republican as he.

4. I certainly agree with what Mr. Robinson said in his letter about honoring our boys who went across the sea to fight for us during the world war. Mr. Vinson left his wife and baby to go over there and fight for us, and I feel like it is our duty, as citizens, to try to repay him for his service by casting our votes for him on August 10.

5. Generally speaking I am in favor of passing the good offices around. We must keep the Republican party alive, vigorous and active. We must pursue such policies as will bring to our party the minds and hearts of the best men who come along year after year. The Republican party has done a great service to the people of our county, and we want it to continue to do so in the future. We can not hope to accomplish these things in the future if we say to the young men that we will let them vote and work for the party, but we will not let them hold any of the good offices that pay a good salary. It simply is not right to treat the young men in such a way, and it is not good medicine for the Republican party. I thing it is a good time to change the Tax Assessor, and I see no reason why we should not give the office to Mr. Vinson.

Now, in conclusion, I want to make it clear that I have nothing against Mr. Pate. I helped to put him in the office and I have never been sorry for it for one minute. He has made a good officer, which was nothing but his duty; but I believe he should now be willing to take his place back in the ranks of the party and let Mr. Vinson have the office for a while.

Let me urge all Republicans, men and women, to go to the primary next Tuesday and vote. It matters not who is nominated by the Republicans, I will be for him and the entire Republican ticket in November.—D. M. Apperson. (Paid pol. adv., by K. M. Vinson, Clanton, Ala.)

CHARLEY WALKER'S CONTEST

C. T. Walker of Lawley has instituted a guessing contest in which he will give away six subscriptions to the Union-Banner to the winners. Here is the plan:

In School District No. 4 there are five schools, Stanton, West Chilton, Riderville, Alpine and Adams. The person in the Stanton section who will guess the nearest to the number of school children in that section will get a year's subscription to the Union-Banner. Likewise, there will be one subscription awarded to each of the other schools.

Then, anybody in the whole of District 4, including all the five schools, may guess at the number of school children in the whole district. The one guessing nearest to the correct number will get a year's subscription.

Each person who guesses will pay 10 cents a guess. The contest will close on Saturday, August 14th.

Send all guesses and money to C. T. Walker, Lawley, Ala. See or write Mr. Walker for futher details.

WANTS MIMS FOR COLLECTOR

Editor Union-Banner:

There is a scriptural injunction which reads: "On the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread," and the command is today as it was given by our Creator, and the farmer has the first and only occupation given and arranged by Him who is the giver of all good. His commands should be obeyed, and the men who recognize the Divine law are the men to be placed in charge of our national, state and county offices, for when the wicked rule the nations shall mourn. This applies to rulers and office holders of every description, even to parents in the home. And now we have a man who is a candidate for public office, one who can qualify from every viewpoint, one who has never asked for nor served in public office, one who has been willing to labor and to wait, one who has tried to make the world better for having lived in it, one who has always been ready to assist all worthy people in time of need—that man is Alfred F. Mims, candidate for Tax Collector in the Republican primary on August 10

I would like for the people to give Mr. Mims a chance to show that he would make one of the most efficient and courteous officials ever elected to office in our county. But should either of his opponents be nominated he will do all that is honest and honorable for the election of the entire Republican ticket in November.

I have known Alfred Mims since he was a young man; lived a near neighbor for a number of years, and I do not hesitate in recommending him as being a Christian man who is fully qualified to fill the office of Tax Collector to the satisfaction of all concerned.—N. Hayes. (Paid pol. adv., by Alfred F. Mims, Thorsby Ala.)

WANTS CONWAY FOR THE SCHOOL BOARD

Editor Union-Banner:

I would like to say just a few things about Mr. C. C. Conway, who is running for member of the county board of education. For the past few years I have served as trustee of the Jemison school, and as chairman of the building committee. No man has given me more loyal support or shown more interest in the school than Mr. Conway.

Not only is Mr. Conway interested in the schools of the county but re has always been loyal to the Republican party. He has never voted anything other than the Republican ticket, nor has he ever dodged an election.

It came to me a few days ago that Mr. Conway was responsible with others for the recent mix-up in the membership of the county board of education. Mr. Conway was appointed by the board to fill a vacancy which at that time existed. He did not apply for the appointment, and did not accept until after he had talked the matter over with the leaders of the Republican party. They advised him to accept because they knew he was a good Republican and capable of serving well on the board. After they had so advised him, he accepted. I know that this is a true statement of the facts. I am a Republican—never voted any other ticket and never expect to vote anything else. I live in the community with Mr. Conway, worked with him in the Masonic Lodge, and have been closely associated with him in all community life, and I know he is loyal to the party.

The school business of Chilton conty is a big thing, and we need the best men on the board that we can get. Mr. Conway is a man who has succeeded as a farmer and business man. He will do the system credit if elected. He is a clean, Christian man having served as deacon of his church and superintendent of the Sunday school for the past few years.

In conclusion let me again ask that you give Mr. Conway your support, and in doing so, you will do credit to the Republican party. He is now a member of the executive committee.

Yours for the Republican party, and also, a good board of education.—R. M. Hubbard. (Paid pol. adv., by C. C. Conway, Jemison, Ala.)

FROM J. N. SCOTT, CANDIDATE FOR COMMISSIONER

Dear Voters:

I now come for the last chat in the paper before the primary on August 10. I am sorry I have not been able to see every Republican voter in the county. I have seen a good number of you in each beat at the singings and other gatherings. I hope none of you will think hard of me if I do not get around to see you. I am sure many of you feel like you almost know me anyhow, having seen my articles regularly in the paper for several years. It is needless for me to recite the interest I have always had in the public affairs of the people of Chilton County and the Republican party. I have taken an active part in almost every public question that has been before the people, and have helped as best I could to uphold our candidates and our principles.

Now for the first time in my life, and through the solicitation of many of my friends, I am asking you people to reward me by electing me commissioner of the first district. The good book says that the laborer is worthy of his hire, and I feel like I am worthy.

As the editor of The Union-Banner stated just after my announcement, I have had a lot of business experience in my life. I have been a farmer. I followed railroad work for 23 years, doing all kinds of work. On one job I handled two work trains, a steam shovel and 85 men in one gang. I ran a saw mill for a year and a half. At present I am running a store at Jemison. I consider that I have made a fair success in life. Any way, I have been honest and have made an honest living.

I believe that I am equipped for the job of being your commissioner, and if you will give me a chance, I will make you the best commissioner you ever had. I will give every man a square deal, and I will use my efforts to relieve all burdens where it will not interfere with the best interests of our county.

Now, in conclusion, I want to say that after looking over our records, if you find that some of my opponents have done more for the interests of our party than I have, and are better equipped than I am for the job of commissioner, then you should vote for him. But if you think I am the best man for the place, I want to tell you that I will appreciate your vote and influence on August 10. Whatever is your choice will be mine. So I close with best wishes to all.—J. N. Scott. (Paid pol. adv., by J. N. Scott Jemison, Ala.)

FORMER HEALTH COMMISSIONER ENDORSES PELLAGRA TREATMENT

Dr. W. C. Rountree, Texarkana, Texas:

Oklahoma City, May 15th, 1926.

Dear Doctor:—For the sake of those suffering from that dreadful disease—Pellagra—I feel that I should make a statement of my observations and experiences, both from the standpoint of a physician and Public Health Official. I have been a practicing physician for 29 years, more than 15 years of which I have been connected in some way with the Health Department. It was during my tenure of office as State Health Commissioner for Oklahoma, that I had occasion to observe Pellagra in all of its forms and stages. Seeing that the Sodium Cacodylate or Hypodermic Treatment, used by the average physician was wholly unsatisfactory, I began the study of the different remedies offered for its cure.

At this time my attention was first called to your work and I saw the worst cases permanently relieved by your treatment. I remember, in one instance, a lady who had lost her mind. She was weak, nervous, emaciated, could not sleep or eat and what she did eat disturbed her digestive organs, she had constipation alternating with diarrhea, skin brown and copper colored, in fact she had all of the symptoms of Pellagra except the rash. She was directly under my observation before and after taking treatment and I know that she was permanently relieved by your medicine.

I have followed up your work closely since then and have never seen a case of Pellagra that your treatment failed to relieve. It is my conclusion that you have the only effective cure for the disease. I feel that you are entitled to the unqualified endorsement of the medical profession and of the Health Departments for I verily believe that there are hundreds of victims in State Asylums today whose mental trouble could be relieved and the patient restored to the family and loved ones if allowed to take your treatment.

Fraternally,

A. E. DAVENPORT, M. D.

VOTE FOR JUDGE B. M. MILLER

For Associate Justice of Supreme Court of Alabama. He is now serving his FIRST term and his record entitles him to a second.

The Progressive Era unqualifiedly endorses Judge B. M. Miller of Wilcox County for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. He is a candidate for a second term.

In 1904 he was elected Judge of the 4th Judicial Circuit composed of the counties of Bibb, Dallas, Hale, Perry and Wilcox, and he held this office continuously without opposition until 1920 when he was elected to the Supreme Court. As Circuit Judge, he held court in Butler, Jefferson, Marion, Mobile, Montgomery, Pickens, Tallapoosa and Tuscaloosa Counties under assignment of the Chief Justice. He presided at Huntsville in the trial of Circuit Clerk Overton charged with killing Probate Judge Lawler. Perhaps the most famous decision handed down by Judge Miller as trial Judge was the one in which he declared unconstitutional the State Income Tax law. This decision was upheld by the Supreme Court. As a Judge he is noted for the orderly dispatch of business and possesses the courage of his convictions.

He is a brother of the late Joseph N. Miller, U. S. District Attorney at Mobile under Grover Cleveland, and of John H. Miller of Birmingham who at the time of his death was Circuit Judge of Jefferson County.

Judge B. M. Miller deserves, and we believe will receive in the August Primary the endorsement of the Democrats of this State for a second term.—Wilcox Progressive Era of July 15th 1926.

On last Thursday the writer had the pleasure of attending the old time annual singing at Centreville. It was a feast of song. About 20 directors were called to the floor during the day. We noted the nice directing of Prof. Herring of Johns, Ala., J. C. Brown of Birmingham, and two Misses Palmer. We noted one gentleman of Woodstock sang "Lone Pilgrim," and we never heard it more beautifully rendered. The movement was moderate and the tone quite subdued. The address of welcome was delivered by Judge Knight of Greensboro, one of the best talks along that line we ever heard. At noon the people of Centreville literally covered the long table with melons, and then spread a bountiful dinner.

How Come--Uncle Joe--No Stogie?

UP until now you probably never saw a picture of good ol' Uncle Joe Cannon without his famous stogie—held at a rakish angle—in his mouth. That's what makes this photo unusual. It was taken on his 90th birthday at his home in Danville, Ill., where the venerable political celebrity is now living in peaceful retirement.

He still is as hale and hearty as the day he left Congress three years ago—after fifty years of honorable public service in that legislative body. For a good part of that half century, he was speaker of the House of Representatives.

Just why he wasn't chewing on his famous stogie when this photo was snapped, our photographer didn't report. Maybe, he was just out of them, and on his way to the cigar store for more.

A Mistake in Identity

In the town where I was reared there was a combination barroom and lunchroom for colored only, known as the Bleeding Heart saloon. It stood at the foot of a street near the head of the wharf and was a favorite resort for river darkies. Among its regular patrons was a brawny individual, six feet four inches long and correspondingly broad, who answered to the pet name of Red Hoss. Red Hoss posed as a bad man. He let on, as the phrase runs, that he was the undertaker's best friend. To be sure there was no record that he actually had ever destroyed anyone, but he frequently promised to do so, and was rated as dangerous by the resident colored populace.

One night the Cincinnati and New Orleans packet on her way south landed at our town. Among her deck passengers was a small yellow man, a professional prize fighter from up North. On the journey down the river he had introduced his own private set of educated ivories into the crap game among the roustabouts, with the result that he now had all their money in his possession.

Dapper, trim and slim, he climbed the wharf and entered the Bleeding Heart and called for a jolt of sloe gin. He was in the act of paying for the drink with the top film of a delectably fat roll of green bills when the swinging doors were thrust violently asunder and in stalked Red Hoss, slightly intoxicated and therefore doubly belligerent. His lowering, bloodshot eye swept the interior, then focused with a greedy stare upon what the slender stranger held in his hand.

Lurching slightly, he swagged up to the bar and gripped a huge soiled paw on the lapel of the little yellow man's coat.

"Say lissun, pusson," he stated. "You better turn dat bundle of sof' money over to me, an' 'en I'll give you back whut part of it I thinks you should have fur yo'se'f."

"Who is you, may I ast?" inquired the visiting nobleman in gentle accents.

"You better ast!" growled Red Hoss. "Finding out who I is meks yo' chances fur livin' longer all de brighter ef you aims to stay round dese parts. You asts me who I is, huh? Well, I'se goin' tell you. I'se de new town bully, tha's who! Yas, suh; I'se de official bully of dis town an' w'en a strange nigger hits yere he mos' gin'elly hands me over whut spare change he's got an' tha's his life insho'ence. So—"

He did not finish the sentence. Stupefaction and rage tied his tongue temporarily as the audacious stripling with a jaunty gesture brushed free of the detaining clutch and turned to the barkeeper, saying pleasantly:

"Mist' Barkeeper, 'at shorely wuz very tasty gin. I thinks I'll tek me one mo' slug outen de same bottle, ef you please."

Red Hoss recovered his faculties. With a berserker bellow he swung with a huge fist for the little man's jaw. The jaw was not there when the fist whizzed past. The pugilist ducked, and came up expertly with a short arm jab which landed exactly on the point of Red Hoss' chin. There was a jar as a large inert body struck the floor.

Three minutes later Red Hoss slowly and dizzily roused himself. Some Good Samaritan had restored him to consciousness by sluicing a bucket of water over him. Dripping and dazed, he sat up, holding his aching head on with both hands. The little man stood at the bar blowing softly upon the knuckles of his right hand and conversing with the barkeeper upon the topics of the day.

"Mister," quavered Red Hoss, "who is you?"

"Me?" said the stranger, "Oh, I is merely the pusson you thought you wuz w'en you come in yere."

RESOLUTIONS PASSED BY W. M. S.

At a meeting of the Clanton contingent of the W. M. S. of the Unity Association, held at the Clanton Baptist church on Monday afternoon, the following set of resolutions was introduced and adopted:

Since we, the members of the Clanton contingent of the W. M. S., of the Unity Association, do heartily appreciate the invaluable services of our visiting sister, Mrs. Carter Wright of Roanoke, which services were rendered during the mission study course recently conducted in our church,

And, since we do feel that said services did revert to our spiritual uplift and to the general good of the misson course in the Unity Association, and since we do note that we have gained much spiritual inspiration by the many lessons that were skillfully taught by Mrs. Wright from Cook'e "Larger Missions,"

And since we do realize that we were much benefitted by the timely and practical counsel of Mrs. Wright, that was clearly and entertainingly given in her lecture, "Tithing,"

Then, we, the members of the Clanton contingent of the W. M. S. of the Unity Association, do hereby resolve, firstly, that we do sincerely thank our noble sister, Mrs. Wright, for the signal services that she rendered during our missionary institute. That we do hereby resolve, secondly that we herewith commend most cordially to our fellow members of the W. M. S., our beloved sister, on account of her pains-taking efforts and efficient service in instructing us in the mission study course. That we do hereby resolve, thirdly, that we emphasize our appreciation of Mrs. Wright's services by a rising vote of thanks.

That we resolve fourthly, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the annals of the Clanton W. M. S., and that a copy be given our local press and that a copy be sent to the Alabama Baptist, and that a copy be forwarded to our benefactor, Mrs. Carter Wright of Roanoke.

Respectfully submitted, — Mrs. Clara B. Curry, Mrs. J. P. VanDerveer, Mrs. G. C. Walker, Committee.

ELMORE'S 5c AND 10c STORE IS GROWING FAST

Although having been in operation for less than one year, Mr. V. J. Elmore finds it necessary to make some extensions to his 5c and 10c store in order to take care of the constantly increasing volume of business. A crew of carpenters are at work now remodeling and rearranging the place to make more selling space. It was predicted that such a store in Clanton would be a failure. Mr. Elmore has certainly knocked the starch out of such predictions.

FARMERS AND COTTON GROWERS

—o-o—

I am installing four new eighty-saw Air Blast Gins, with the newest and best cleaners made.

With the outfit installed in 1923 I ginned 1,100 bales of cotton the first year, a little over 2,000 bales in 1924, and 2,334 bales in 1925.

With the 1923 outfit put in tip top shape and the addition of the battery of four new gins, I have the best outfit between Birmingham and Montgomery, and I promise you the service you have a right to expect.

To all my old patrons, I again wish to express to you my thanks and appreciation for your help, and respectfully ask a continuation of your patronage and influence.

To all others, I extend an invitation to give me a chance to show you the class of ginning and the service I give my patrons.

I have the best ginnery in the county and am helping you get quicker and more satisfactory gin service; and ask your help by bringing me at least part of your cotton. It will be appreciated.

I will pay the highest market price for seed and exchange meal for seed in season.

If in any way I can be of service to you, call on me.

Yours for Service,

Perhaps you can profit by this Complaint

A COMPLAINT by one of our customers about a charge for a long distance call may help you save money on your toll calls.

This subscriber has two boys away from home, and he calls them on the long distance telephone once a week for a friendly little chat.

Recently he waited until after 8:30 p. m. to place his call in order to secure the reduced night rate. Naturally he was surprised when he was billed at the person-to-person rate.

Inquiry developed the fact that he placed the call by name, asking for either one of his sons. This was, of course, a person-to-person call, for which the rate is the same, both day and night.

If this customer had told the operator he wished to make a station-to-station call, or if he had told her he wished to be connected with the distant telephone, it would have been a station-to-station call at the reduced rate.

We find that many who wait until 8:30 o'clock at night to get reduced rates are making person-to-person calls at the regular rate.

To make a station-to-station call you tell the operator the telephone number at the distant point. If you do not know the number, tell her the name or address under which it is listed. Do not ask to speak to a particular person.

We are anxious for our customers to have the benefit of the low rate for station-to-station calls and the further reduction at night.

Remember that the reduced night rate applies only to station-to-station calls.

Judge Reynolds Writes On Political Conditions

Editor Union-Banner:

The campaign is drawing to a close, and we Republicans ought to congratulate ourselves for such quiet and respectful campaign by our candidates. When the nominations are made they will be the result of the wishes of the Republican voters. So far as I know, the candidates have done their own campaigning. I have heard just once or twice that some one was telling that I was knocking some of the candidates; this is not true. I have not knocked anyone, neither have I tried to influence a single voter. I feel like the people are able to nominate the officers for the next four years.

I trust that all Republicans will go to the polls and vote their choice, and then I hope alll Republicans will vote the ticket this fall. We know what a split ticket means to us. I have watched the game for 36 years, been to every primary, convention and every committee meeting and every election our party has had in 36 years. I have voted for every nominee without complaint.

I inclose copy of a letter that I wrote to Mr. S. M. Adams in reference to putting Mr. W. S. Cox on the official ballot. I wish that Mr. Cox's name could have been put on, but the Attorney General ruled that I could not. I have not had any reply from Mr. Adams. I publish the correspondence so that the people can see why Mr. Cox's name was not on the ballot.

Anyone wanting to vote for any person for Representative for the unexpired term of Mr. W. M. Wyatt can write their name on the blank line of the official ballot which only has Omar L. Reynolds under the Republican emblem. All voters have to be recorded on the poll list of the party they vote in. There will be three elections—Republican primary, Democratic primary and general election. There will be three boxes and three sets of papers to fill out.

Letter to S. M. Adams.

July 27, 1926.

Hon. S. M. Adams, Chairman Democratic Executive Committee, Clanton, Alabama.

Dear Sir:

Mr. T. Calvin Stephens filed in the Probate office of Chilton County on July 26th, 1926 at 5 o'clock p.m., a certificate signed by you certifying the name of W. S. Cox as a candidate for representative in the special election to be held August 10th, 1926, which is in words as follows:

"This certifies the name of W. S. Cox as the Democratic candidate from Chilton County, Alabama, as chosen by the Executive Committee of the Democratic party of Chilton County, as representative to fill the unexpired term of W. M. Wyatt, to be elected at Special Election to be held August 10th, 1926. This, the 26th day of July, 1926.—S. M. Adams, Chairman Executive Committee."

I am also setting out the opinion of the Attorney General as to filing the name of candidates in the office of the Judge of Probate for said special election which is as follows:

'Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate, Clanton, Ala.

Dear Sir:

Your injuiry of July 13th has been referred to writer for reply. You ask whether or not the time limit for certifying the name of a prospective candidate or nominee for office is twenty days as provided by Section 462 of the Code of 1923 or fifteen days as provided by Section 610 of the Code of 1923.

Section 610 of the Code contemplates and makes provision for the certification of the names of candidates in a primary election. This section is a part of Chapter 20, Article 1, relating to general provision regulating primary election.

Section 462 of the Code has reference to general elections. The effect of the special election ordered by the Governor in the instant case is the same as that of general election. The successful candidate is not the nominee of a party but is elected at this time.

Special elections are to be held and conducted, the returns thereof made, certificates given, and unless otherwise provided, expressly regulated in all respects by the provisions in relation to general elections.

Therefore, the writer is of the opinion that the candidate's name must be certified according to provisions of Section 462 of the Code of 1923 rather than according to the provisions of Section 610.

Hoping that the above expression furnished the desired information, I am, Yours very truly, — Thos. E. Knight, Assistant Attorney General."

Section 462 of the Code of 1923 provides that the name of candidates must be certified to the Judge of Probate not less than twenty days previous to the day of the election, therefore it can be readily seen that the name of the above candidate was filed less than twenty days.

However, I do not believe in technical propositions, but in the face of a plain ruling from the Attorney General, I could not do otherwise. However, if you advise, we will submit this matter again to the Attorney General, and if he advises that it would be legal for me to have the ballots reprinted and put the name of W. S. Cox on said ballot, I will be only too glad to do so.

As the time is short, you might advise me immediately and we can submit this matter to the Attorney General in person and get his opinion within a very short time.—L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate."

IN MEMORY

Mrs. Eugenia Rawlinson, age about 86, died at the home of her son, Mr. J. F. Rawlinson, near Pletcher, July 27th. She was born in South Carolina in February, 1840, and moved to this part of the country in 1860 in a covered wagon, and she remained here until death. She leaves two sons—J. F., and M. C. Rawlinson; and one daughter—Mrs. Eliza Hicks; two brothers and one sister, besides a host of friends and relatives to mourn her loss. But our loss is heaven's gain. She was sick several months, but she bore her suffering without grumbling. Her life was full of dark shadows and sunshine, but she only let the sunshine be seen. She was well known, and loved by all who knew her, for she was patient, tender, kind and loving. —One who knew and loved her well.

FROM J. L. VINES

To the voters of Chilton County.

Please give me space in your paper to say a few things to the voters. In the first place I want to thank them for the support given me in the past and to assure them that if I am elected that I will give them the benefit of my best judgement and experience as a school man. I have served you as a member of the school board for a little more than a term and I feel that I am acquainted with the needs and can serve you better in the future as a result of it.

I would like to get around to see every voter before the election but if I should fail I will trust that when you go to the polls on August 10 you will consider me and give me your support. My record stands for itself. I have always tried to do the thing that was best for the children and will continue to do so if elected. They are the hope of our country and I think that we should do all we can for them.

Trusting that you will see fit to vote for me, I am, Yours for better Schools,

OBITUARY

Again we were reminded of the uncertainty of life when, on the eve of July 22nd, the death of Mrs. J. S. Parrish, one of Clanton's beloved women and most highly esteemed citizens, cast a shadow of gloom over the entire vicinity. She was a woman of rare type, possessing a kind, lovable and altruistic disposition, thereby winning a great host of friends. She was near 48 years of age, and lived her entire life in and around Clanton. She was faithful to her church and Christian duties. Had been a member of the Baptist church since early girlhood. She leaves a husband, father, mother, several brothers, sisters and a host of friends and relatives who will miss her bright smiles, loving words and kindly deeds here upon earth, yet we know that heaven has been made brighter by the transplanting of this beatiful flower. So weep not for this departed friend, just follow in her footsteps and some day we will meet on heaven's shore where partings will be no more.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends and neighbors for their kind assistance and sympathy during the death and burial of my dear husband. If he had lived until December 28 he would have been 31 years old. He leaves a wife and 3 children 1 daughter 5 years old, and 2 sons, one 3 years old and the other 18 months old, mother, 3 brothers, 6 sisters, and other relatives and friends. He was a good and affectionate husband and father and was a friend to everybody. He is gone but not forgotten.

I thank his many friends for the nice flowers, and also thank Mr. Martin for his kindness. May God bless each and every one that comforted me and my little children during our sad hours. From his loving wife.—Mrs. Mary Smith.

Greetings To Republicans of Shelby County:

The Union-Banner is glad of the privilege this week of extending our greetings to more than one hundred Republicans of Shelby County whose names have been added to our subscription list. We are glad to have you, friends, as members of our great family of readers. We hope you will enjoy this new acquaintance, and that you will find with us such satisfaction that will fasten us together in a friendship that will be everlasting and profitable.

While The Union-Banner may be new to you, it is with a sense of pride that we can tell you that the paper is not a new venture that has just sprung up for the purposes of a political campaign. The paper is as old as many of the people who read it, and is an institution that has weathered many storms, among which have been some Democratic administrations. And you doubtless know that a ship that can go through a Democratic administration without springing a leak must be somewhat dependable.

We have made arrangements to carry a Shelby County page in The Union-Banner every week, and we can promise you that if you will follow us through with effort we will give you something that will be worth while. We want the help of every Republican in Shelby County. We want to make the paper worth something to the people of Shelby, and the more help and co-operation we get from you, the better will we be able to serve you. Ask your Republican friends to subscribe for the paper and help us push it along.

Also we will add that if you have any Democrats up there who can endure sound doctrine, get them to join in with you and take the paper. The medicine we give is as good for a Democrat as it is for a Republican. And the Democrats need it much worse than the Republicans.—The Editor.

Shelby Republicans In Very Important Meeting

On July 23 some two hundred or more Republicans met at the court house in Columbiana with the most enthusiasm and determination ever seen among the Republicans in this county. Everyone seemed bubbling over to say something for the good of the party and each showed his or her desire to put the "Good Old Party" back on the throne in Shelby County at the November election.

Among the interesting things said was a little speech by an elderly gentleman who sat toward the back of the house. Rising to his feet, he began. "Gentlemen," he said, "I am a new-born Republican. I voted the Democratic ticket for 35 years, but this last administration has soured my stomach." It will be remembered that for 30 years preceding the present administration the Republicans were in power, and it was during these 30 years that an honest man was fighting and voting for something he did not want. No doubt but that there are many who would cease to fight and vote for the "solid South" if they would make a little investigation and see just what the "solid South" is doing for them.

Judge L. H. Reynolds of Clanton was the principal speaker for the day. Judge Reynolds gave some facts and figures that will have a lasting effect. One of the outstanding features of his speech was the subject of taxation. Outbursts of applause came from the crowded court room at frequent intervals. Judge Reynolds is one of the foremost and leading Republicans in the state, and there awaits him, at all times, a warm welcome to visit Shelby County when an opportunity presents itself.

Definite arrangements were made to nominate a full Republican ticket for the county on August 12, to be elected in the general election. Beat meetings will be held on August 10 to elect delegates to the convention which will be held on August 12 at the court house in Columbiana. There had been quite a bit of speculation as to just what the Republicans were going to do. Now, with the assurance there will be a full Republican ticket in the county, Republicans are ready to get right down to business, clean out the rubbish and elect a full ticket of the cleanest men that can be found in the county. To do this it will be necessary to stay out of the Democratic primary. Do not obligate yourself or agree to support the Democratic nominee by going into or voting in the Democratic primary. Do not be over-persuaded. Vote your convictions in November. It is a known fact that there are men in the South today who vote the Democrat ticket while at the same time they are praying for the Republican ticket to be elected. Men who vote and pray this way are not true to themselves, their families nor their country. If you believe in the Democratic principles—vote it. If you believe in the Republican principles—come out and show your colors by staying out of the Democratic primary and supporting the Republican ticket in November.

New-born Republicans are heard of all over the county and already it begins to look like a landslide for the Republican ticket in November. But that does not mean that we can sit down and fold our hands and do nothing, but to the contrary, we must stay on the job. The foe is not asleep. "Preach the gospel, in season and out of season." If your neighbor is not taking the paper, get his subscription at once; send it, with fifty cents, to either S. P. Williamson, Sterrett, Ala., or A. B. Baxley, Calera, Ala., and let him read for himself. "Get Wisdom!"

J. T. ROCKETT PRESENTS HIS CLAIMS FOR RE-ELECTION

with a good salary of $125.00 per month, according to the Treasurer's report, and if elected Tax Collector he will have served twelve years in public offices in Chilton County. In other words Mr. Culp has already been in public office for two terms in our county under Republican sheriffs elected by Republican voters, and is it unfair for me to ask that you give me two terms?

Of course this is a primary race to nominate Republican candidates, but we should not lose sight of the fact that next November, after the primary, your nominees are going to face all the voters of Chilton County, both Republicans and Democrats at this time. It is no secret that the Democrats are going to make their hardest fight for the office of Tax Collector, and the voter on August 10 should bear this in mind and cast their vote for a man they think will make the hardest fight against the Democratic nominee. Your nominee should be a man that is a true Republican, tried and approved, as well as a man who is willing to fight for his election in November.

In conclusion, I believe the voters will say that I have been courteous in office and willing at all times to assist them in any manner that I could, not only as to the duties in the Tax Collector's office, but in other public matters as well, and that I have been honest in principle, and no criticism has come from any candidate that I have heard, and I have accounted to your county and state for every cent that was due. I have also become acquainted with the work of the office and am better prepared to carry on the duties of the same in the future. I do not believe there is a voter, man or woman, who doubts my love and loyalty for the Republican party, and for my entire life I have fought and stood for the principles for which it stands on every occasion, and at every opportunity, in rough weather and calm, and I believe the voters will attest to the fact that I have not weakened nor deviated in my loyalty to my party. I have done the best I could in the office I have held for this term, and for my party as well, and I am now submitting my candidacy to you for a term of the next four years upon my past record, and if I am nominated you will find me fighting until November for election, and always for your party and mine. But if you voters do not think I deserve two terms at your hands as my predecessors in this office have had and if my official and political record does not deserve this, then I will take my defeat and take the candidate you nominate, and we together will fight to win his election next November. And throughout my life, wherever chance may carry me or whatever be my lot, I will not forget you who remember me on August 10, and you will find me until my life's work is done, a true Republican and a friend to the Republicans of Chilton County. —J. T. Rockett. (Paid pol. adv., by T. J. Rockett, Clanton, Ala.)

IN FAVOR OF J. N. SCOTT FOR COMMISSIONER

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me a small space in your paper for a few words to the voters of Chilton County.

We have five men out up here for county commissioner in the first district, and all of them are good men; but all good men are not good business men. Of course we can not vote for but one man in the first district, and that one man should be the best business man in the bunch, and the most deserving man. The way to know is to investigate each one and find out their records. If you will do this you will find that J. N. Scott stands head.

He was reared on a farm and farmed for 15 years. He worked on the railroad for 23 years as a track man, doing all sorts of work, grading and building roads, handling work trains, steam shovels and ditchers. He ran a saw mill for a year and a half. At present he is running a store at Jemison. He has made a success all the way through and has always been true to the Republican party. As many of you know, he has helped to fight our battles through the paper for 25 or 30 years, and has upheld the principles of our party.

This is the first time he has ever asked for an office, and I think we would only be doing our duty to give him the office of commissioner in the first district. I think he deserves it, for I believe he is fully competent to make the county a good commissioner. I ask the voters all over the county to help us peope up here to put him in on August 10.

Now, let us see about the others. Mr. Waldrop and Mr. Dormney have had the office 8 years, and they did no more than J. N. Scott could have done. With his experience, I believe he will do better than they have done. Mr. Bean and Mr. Jones have never done anything but farm, and I have never seen an article in the paper where they were standing up for our cause like J. N. Scott. I am sure that few of you ever knew them or heard of them until they announced for office.

So I again ask that you vote for J. N. Scott on August 10. He will appreciate it, and his friends everywhere will appreciate it, especially those in the first district.—J. T. Childress. (Paid pol. adv., by J. N. Scott, Jemison, Ala.)

OMAR REYNOLDS EXPLAINS THE SPECIAL ELECTION AUGUST 10

To the Republican voters of Chilton County:

I was nominated by a mass meeting called by the Executive Committee of the Republican party, to fill the unexpired term of W. M. Wyatt, resigned, for member of the Legislature of Alabama, which office takes effect immediately after the special election on August 10, and continues until the general election in November. In other words, this office will only continue about three months. I am the only Republican in the race for this office, as Percy M. Pitts and John S. Dennis are candidates for the long term to begin at the general election in November, and continue for four years. The Governor has called a special election to be held with the primary election to elect a member to the Legislature, for which I am running, and this office will be voted on the same date, and at the same boxes that the Regular Republican primary will be held. My name will not appear on the reglaur Republican primary ballot, but will appear on a special ticket which the managers will hand you when you call for the Republican primary ballot. No other name will appear on this special ticket as the Democrats did not file their nomination within the proper time, but the Democrats still have the right of writing in the name of any candidate they might desire to elect, on the day of the election, and the Republican voters will see that it is important that you cast your ballot in this special election, else they might settle their vote on one man and out-number us.

It is supposed that the Governor will call the Legislature in extra-ordinary session shortly after the election on August 10, and at this special election there will probably be only two questions to arise—the question of appropriating about $2,000,000 to the rural schools of Alabama, upon which question, if I am elected to the Legislature for this special session, I will vote in favor of; and the Legislature will also be called to submit to the voters of Alabama the question of a bond issue for good roads, upon which the voters of Alabama will be the final judge, and all the Legislature will do upon this matter will be to submit this question to the voters. If other matters arise in the Legislature at this special session, and if I am elected, I will cast my vote in the manner that I think best serves the people of Alabama and my county, and I will consider myself always a representative of the people of Chilton County, and will listen to your voice and your desires in all matters that might arise.

I trust then that when you go to vote you will also vote this special ticket for me, which favor I will appreciate and always remember.—Omar L. Reynolds. (Paid pol. adv., by Omar L. Reynolds, Clanton, Ala.)

ANOTHER ALF MIMS BOOSTER

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me a small space somewhere in the columns of your valuable paper to say just a few words to the Republican voters of Chilton County.

May I say first—There is not a chance for the Republicans of Chilton County to make a serious mistake in nominating a man for Tax Collector this time. I personally know all the men and my judgment is they are all high toned gentlemen — men whom Chilton County and the Republican party thereof are, and of right ought to be, proud of, and either of them will make good servants of the people if nominated and elected, two of them having been tried six and eight years, and the other, Mr. Alf Mims, wishing to be tried.

Now, my fellow citizens, in view of the above stated facts and further knowing Mr. Mims as I do and have for the past 10 years, and knowing him to have been a staunch Republican, and he having never before asked for anything at the hands of the party, and not knowing of any reason why he would not make as good a Tax Collector as either of the other men, I do not know of any logical reason why we should not nominate him on August 10.

I know Mr. Mims to be an appreciative man, and one who has ever been found standing for the right thing, and a man who has made a success of his own business; therefore, since Mr. Mims is just asking us to do for him what we have done for the other opponents, notwithstanding Mr. Culp's eight years have been appointive. Then why not give him a chance?

Mr. Mims has waged a clean campaign, which is typical of his life, not only in politics, but also in all his undertakings. He has on all occasions that I have knowledge of, rightfully spoken well of his opponents. They are fine men, but since they have had from six to eight years in office, I feel that we should give Mr. Mims a chance, and hope that a majority of our people can see that way on August 10.

Yours for the success of the Republican party.—G. J. Thompson. (Paid pol. adv., by A. F. Mims, Thorsby, Ala.)

LETTER FROM C. C. CONWAY

Republican voters of Chilton County:

As the voters know, I am a candidate for nomination for member of the County Board of Education. I have been interested in schools and the progress of education during my entire life, and if I am elected to this office it will be my desire to continue in this manner and to see that the school child gets as much as possible from the money that is appropriated for education. It will also be my policy to at all times listen to the will and be governed by the will of the majority of the people. If nominated and elected I will consider that I am serving as a representative of the people of Chilton County in a matter of education, and it will be my intention and policy to be governed by the desires and wishes of the patrons of the several schools and the people at large.

As to my politics, I have never voted any other ticket than a Republican ticket, and have always abided by and been governed by the majority of my party. I was born and reared in and around Jemison, where I have since been engaged in the mercantile business for the past twenty years, and I feel that I can render to the people good and efficient service, and a business-like administration of the affairs of the schools.

I have heard it said that I had signed a petition to get Rudolph Baker removed as a member of the County Board of Education, but this is untrue. Mr. Baker was elected to this office; Howard Foshee being the superintendent, some of the members of the Board refused to recognize Mr. Baker, and I was notified by the Board that I had been appointed as a member of the Board in place of Mr. Baker. But in the presence of the Board I stated that I would like to be a member of the Board of Education, but that I had voted for Mr. Baker, and a majority of the people had voted for him and I considered that he should be appointed by the Board for the place to which he had been elected, and that I would not consider it right for the Board not to put Mr. Baker in his place. However, the majority of the Board stated that they would not appoint Mr. Baker but that they had appointed me, and if I did not accept they would appoint someone else. I told the Board I would not accept at that time and would consider the matter. I went and conferred with a good many leaders of the Republican party and several of the county officials and stated to them in effect what I told the Board, but they told me that since the Board was not going to appoint Mr. Baker that I should accept the appointment. The parties with whom I discussed this matter will bear me out in the statement that I only accepted this position under the conditions stated above, only after I had advised the Board that I thought Mr. Baker should be recognized as a member of the Board since I had been elected.

I have not had the opportunity to interview very many voters on account of the illness of my wife, and I have also been confined to my mercantile business at Jemison, but I feel like the voters are acquainted with my past life and record and upon this I am willing to submit the matter to you. As has always been my policy in the past, whether you nominate me to this office, your choice will be my choice, and I will use my vote and influence to help you elect next November whomsoever you see fit to nominate.—C. C. Conway. (Paid pol. adv., by C. C. Conway, Jemison, Ala.)

Editor Union-Banner:

I am ecrtainly sorry that one of the candidates from the same district as Mr. Mims was hurt over the article I had in your last issue, for I certainly did not mean to hurt him or anyone else. I only explained what I know was true. I could have put a lot more in the article—what good people have told me—what good things Judge Reynolds and J. M. Mims have done for the county—but I only published what I knew personally. I told this candidate to just wait, next Tuesday will tell it all. The "Will of God" will be there. His candidates will be elected without fail. So if you are one of the defeated candidates, do not take it hard, but try, try again, and you may be successful. Be kind to everyone and a reward will come in the good will of all good people.—Chas. H. Rober, Thorsby, Ala.

LETTER FROM PERCY M. PITTS

To the Republican voters of Chilton County:

I regret having been unable to see more of our people regarding my candidacy for member of the next Legislature, subject to the action of the Republican primary to be held next week. Myself and Squire John S. Dennis of Beat 11 are the only two candidates for this nomination. Omar L. Reynolds is not running against either of us, but is to be voted for upon a separate ticket, for the unexpired term on a different ticket provided at the polls.

Should I be so fortunate as to receive the nomination at your hands, and be lected in November in the general election, I promise to perform my duties honestly and conscientiously, and will do all in my power toward the betterment of our educational system and conditions, always bearing in mind that the boy or girl in our rural districts of this state should have an equal chance, and should have provided for them a longer school term; further, that if other states of this country can have a free full term of school, that this state, with all its resources and wealth should be likewise.

You have voted for many members of the Legislature to make laws; try one who is pledged to keep down useless legislation. There are thousands of laws upon the statute books affecting every citizen of this county, and may I ask how many you are familar with? Multiplicity of laws creates less respect for laws.

Should you see fit to nominate me over my friend Squire Dennis of Cane Creek and I am fortunate enough to represent this county in this capacity, I shall not lose sight of the fact that I am a mere servant of the people, and will at all times counsel and appreciate any sugguestions as to any legislation which will tend to the betterment of the masses as a whole in our great county and state.

Thanking you for any consideration I may receive at your hands on August 10th.—Percy H. Pitts. (Paid pol. adv., by Percy M. Pitts, Clanton, Ala.)

LETTER FROM J. M. MIMS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me space in your valuable paper to say a few words to the Republican voters of the county.

This is the last issue of the paper before the primary election which is to be held on August 10. I presume most of the people of the county know that I am a candidate to succeed myself as commissioner of your county from the second district. Now to start with, let me insist that all Republicans who are eligible to vote come out on the above date and cast your ballot for the candidate of your choice for the various offices. Remember, in the primary is the place to pick your men.

Now, as to my candidacy, may I say that my past life is an open book to any and all casual observers, and my official acts are matters of record. I have served the people for the last three years as best I could and knew how. I have worked to the interest of the people as much as I would have done to my own interest in my own affairs. I no doubt have made some mistakes like most people do who do anything, but I have never made one that I saw that I did not try to amend at the first opportunity.

I have striven in every transaction to take care of the finances of the county. I am not taking all the praise for myself, because I have had three other good men and commissioners to help me and to advise with, but I do think that on several occasions I was responsible for the saving of several hundred dollars for the county. As I said, my official acts are matters of public record, and I would be glaid that anyone would investigate. I am not ashamed of a single act that I have taken. We are now getting some money to do something with, and I would like to try for the next four years to put our county absolutely out of debt. I am quite confident that it can be done with the proper management of the financial affairs of the county. I feel that I was to a great extent responsible for the court setting aside $50,000 to pay on the outstanding bonded indebtedness of the county. I believe that a like amount can be set aside next year. If I am elected I will see that it is done if possible. I may not have done everything that everybody wanted done just at the time they wanted it, but I have striven hard to please and satisfy the people, and have realized all the time that I was only a servant of the people.

Now my dear voters, I have done the very best that I knew to do with what I had to do with, and on account of the solicitation of many of my friends, I have asked to succeed myself. It is not for the emoluments of the office, but for the opportunity to serve that I am again asking your support. In my campaign I have refrained from criticizing my opponents because that is not my way of doing things, and my opponents are fine men, and my neighbors. I have always voted the Republican ticket. Never have I voted the Democratic ticket nor for anyone on said ticket. I fully believe in the Republican form of government, not only in the county but in the state and nation. Now in conclusion, if you can see fit to cast your vote for me and give me a chance to succeed myself I will appreciate it as much as any one, but if you should see fit to nominate any one of my opponents your choice in the primary will be my choice in the general election, and I will do all that is consistent to have him and the entire ticket elected in November.

Yours for the success of the Republican party.—J. M. Mims. (Paid pol. adv., by J. M. Mims, Thorsby, Ala.)

Financing Education In Alabama--- The Facts

TO THE PEOPLE OF ALABAMA:

Governor Brandon's statements relating to progress in financing education in Alabama during the last four years are open to such misleading conclusions, as to progress in financing the schools, that the Executive Committee of the Alabama Education Association is compelled to set forth the facts representing the true situation:

1. It is a fact that the amount of state funds apportioned to each child of school age during the present administration has decreased for three years of this administration from what it was at the beginning. This has fallen with terrific force on the children in the common schools.

Per Capita Apportionment

1922-23	$4.59
192[illegible]-24	4.33
1924-25	4.36
1925-26	4.57

2. It is a fact that the state appropriations and apportionments for the support of elementary and high schools during this administration have made no increase. This fact has increased the local burden of school support.

State Appropriations and Apportionments

1923	$4,697,872
1924	4,518,908
1925	4,407,210
1926	4,500,000*

*Estimated.

3. It is a fact that it has been necessary to increase tuition and incidental fees, supplements, gifts and contributions from $1,240,000 per year to approximately $2,000,000 per year.

4. It is a fact that the Normal Schools have had less funds during three years of this administration than they had at its beginning.

Normal School Expenditures

1923	$243,500
1924	194,000
1925	194,000
1926	194,000

5. It is a fact that the institutions of higher learning in Alabama have had less funds each year during this administration than during the last year of the previous administration.

Expenditures for All Educational Purposes for the State Colleges, Auburn, Montevallo and the University:

1922	$766,562
1923	614,587
1924	632,672
1925	650,753
1926	662,780

(The above figures include the Smith-Hughes Extension Funds)

6. It is a fact that the rate of progress in increasing funds for school support has been far less during this administration than during the previous four-year period:

Total Educational Expenditures, First Year and Last Year Compared Quadrennium 1919-1922

First Year (1919)	$ 7,892,076
Last Year (1922)	$14,590,013

Per cent Gain 84.9%.

Quadrennium 1923-1926

First Year (1923)	$14,919,243
Last Year (1926)	$17,078,407

Per cent Gain, 14.2%.

7. It is a fact that the increase in school expenditures over the expenditures as found at the beginning of this administration has been only $5,727,156 during the entire four years.

8. It is a fact that the increased funds for public education, to which the Governor calls attention, have been obtained in the main from (1) taxes on increased property assessments, for which credit is due the present administration and (2) from the exercise of the right under laws existing previously to this administration to vote local taxes for schools.

"9. It is a fact that LOCAL county and district funds have supplied over $15,680,000 of the $18,968,640, quoted by Governor Brandon as the excess in total school expenditures of this administration over those of the previous administration. Only the people in the several counties and districts deserve credit for raising these funds."

10. It is a fact that no legislation has been enacted which was designed to increase the school fund. While it is true that some additions have been made to the total of property assessments for taxation as a result of legislative action, it is to be deplored that no forward looking far reaching provisions to meet the growing educational needs have been made by this administration.

Governor Brandon quotes the figures showing the total expenditures for all educational purposes during each year of his administration and for each of the four years preceding his administration. These total expenditures are:

1919	$ 7,892,076
1920	10,092,733
1921	12,542,799
1922	14,590,013
Total	$45,118,568
1923	$14,919,243
1924	15,738,598
1925	16,250,960
1926	17,078,407
Total	$64,687,208

These figures are matters of public record. The facts have been previously known and understood by all who are studying the problem of financing our schools. The important thing is, what do these figures mean?

On the basis of the above figures, Governor Brandon, at Greenville, Ala., July 17, 1926, claimed an "Increase in revenue for four years of $18,968,640, or an average increase of over four million a year for the four years of my administration." Governor Brandon states, "I promised no backward step—is $4,000,000 per year increase a backward step? Is $18,968,640 increase in four years a backward step?"

Governor Brandon's remarks have been interpreted to mean that school expenditures have increased during his administration at the average rate of "over four million a year." The following facts speak for themselves:

During Governor Brandon's administration the actual increases in school expenditures from year to year over the last year (1922) of the previous administration are as follows:

Increase first year	1923	$ 329,230
Increase second year	1924	1,148,585
Increase third year	1925	1,760,947
Increase fourth year	1926	2,488,394
Total increase		$5,727,156

These figures were obtained by subtracting the expenditures during the last year of the previous administration from the expenditures of each year of the present administration.

These figures show the real increase in school expenditures during this administration. The excess of $18,968,640 in total educational expenditures of the present administration over those of the preceding four years is not a measure of the PROGRESS made in financing education under Governor Brandon. Only the increase since he became Governor can be legitimately credited to his administration, and that amounts to $5,727,156—an average of $1,431,789 per year instead of over four million."

If the school expenditures during each of the four years of Governor Brandon's administration had remained exactly the same as they were ($14,590,013) during the last year (1922) of the preceding administration, the four years of Governor Brandon's administration would show an increase over the preceding four years of $12,241,484, without any legislative or administrative activity on the part of Governor Brandon's administration. This may be accounted for by the wide difference between the expenditures with which the two administrations began. The previous administration began with an expenditure of $7,892,076 and closed with an expenditure of $14,590,013, while the present administration began with an expenditure of $14,919,243 and will close with an expenditure of approximately $17,078,407.

PROGRESS in financing educational costs is the important thing in this consideration—not just the maintenance of things as they are. It is clearly evident that the measure of progress in financing educational costs during Governor Brandons administration is to be found in the net increase in the school fund, $5,727,156 and not in the $18,968,640 gross increase in total educational expenditures of this administration over those of the previous administration.

Since, however, the $18,968,640 difference in total expenditures of the two four-year periods has been cited, let us examine into its sources, that proper credit may be bestowed where credit is due. Local county and district funds have provided $15,686,755 of the total amount; state funds have supplied $3,129,531; state and Federal funds for vocational education have supplied $149,987. These figures represent the increase in total receipts over the period indicated and are in excess of the expenditures by $297,633.

It is interesting to note that of the above LOCAL FUNDS, county and district school taxes and poll taxes have supplied over $10,000,000, tuition and incidental fees, gifts and supplements over $2,937,000, local bond sales and loans and sale of school property over $2,086,000, and previous year balances over $1,214,000. Appropriations from city and county boards of revenue and miscellaneous funds have decreased over $562,000. Local effort to push forward the financing of schools is to be applauded.

Spending the Money

A brief statement of what has been done with the money provided for school is appropriate.

(a) The higher standards attained in the schools with the increased funds accruing during the past several years have been maintained.

(b) The length of white school terms has been lengthened nine days since 1921.

(c) Over 1,580 additional teachers have been employed to take care of the approximately 38,000 increase in pupil enrollment since 1921. Over 17,000 of this enrollment increase was in the more expensive high school grades.

(d) The average annual salary of white women teachers, in elementary and high schools, has been increased from $621 to $660 and that of white men teachers, chiefly principals, from $676 to $841, since 1921.

(e) Approximately $1,000,000 has been spent for equipment.

(f) Approximately $7,000,000 has been spent for buildings.

(g) Increased facilities for transporting pupils to consolidated schools have been provided.

Backward Step? A Forward Step?

School Needs

While some increases have been made in the school fund right along in the past several years, the people of Alabama will not be satisfied until their educational needs are reasonably provided for. What are they?

1. School terms must be rapidly raised to a full nine months for every child.

(The average term now is less than seven months. Twenty counties have terms of less than six months. Forty-three counties less than seven months.)

2. Every child must have a trained teacher.

(At present more than 7,500 teachers have only a high school education or less.)

3. Every child must have a fair chance for good instruction.

(At present crowded classes and many grades to one teacher are preventing this chance.)

4. Every child should be in a proper school building with equipment and sanitary conveniences conducive to his comfort and health, in which to do his work.

(At present thousands of buildings are wholly unsuited for school purposes. They should be abandoned.)

5. To give every child a trained teacher, the Normal schools and colleges must be adequately equipped and financed to train these teachers. This is basic.

6. The institutions of higher learning need the generous support of the state. To them the state looks for leadership and service in many fields. A school system which does not include institutions of higher learning as a vital part of its structure is doomed to decay and ultimate failure.

7. A living wage must be paid to teachers to attract to and hold in the profession the best talent the state can afford.

8. New sources of school revenue are needed for school support. All forms of the state's wealth should bear their proportionate share of the cost of education. Stagnation in educational progress will result unless sufficient revenue is provided to maintain standards, take care of growth and to make improvements.

In view of the fact that any material help in financing educational cost and educational PROGRESS must come from legislative action, the present constitutional limits and resources having been practically exhausted, let it be emphasized again that the children of Alabama are looking to the men and women who are to be our legislators and executives for the needed revenue to provide AN EQUAL CHANCE FOR EVERY CHILD.

(Signed): E. P. MURPHY, Pres.
R. W. COWART, Secretary.
By order of the Executive Committee,
Alabama Education Association.

The quantity of milk used in household purposes is estimated at 54,325,776,000 compared with 52,772,000,000 pounds in 1924. The increase, however, has been due entirely to the increase in population, the per capita consumption being 54.75 gallons, the same as in 1924.

Child-birth

Here is a wonderful message to all expectant mothers!

When the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy, "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says:

"With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used 'Mother's Friend' and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes." Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Bradfield Regulator Co., BA 46, Atlanta, Ga., for a free illustrated book containing information every expectant mother should have. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all drug stores—everywhere.

Willing Workers entertain.

We hope in a few weeks to have Mr. and Mrs. Wade at home again. Those present were Mesdames Glennie Evans, President; Blassingame, Teacher; Kicker, Robert Jones, Bowen Jones, Potts, Green Retherford, Orville Roper, Wilbanks, Sanders, J. R. Broadhead, and G. L. COL. BIBB GRAVES

The Man For Governor

The man the people will select for their governor on August 10th.

Bibb Graves will be the governor of all the people and not the governor of any special interests, clique or class.

Bibb Graves stands first of all for the conservation of the human resources of Alabama; for education; for the training of both head and hands.

Bibb Graves stands for public health, both physical and moral.

Bibb Graves stands for the conservation and development of the material resources of Alabama.

Bibb Graves will encourage and foster every legitimate enterprise and industry in Alabama, and thus will most surely secure the investment here of outside capital.

Bibb Graves will build and maintain more roads and bridges under his road plan than can be done by any other plan now being offered to the people, with the least burden to the people of Alabama.

Bibb Graves will immediately take the convicts out of the mines and put them on the roads.

Bibb Graves would issue as many bonds as the present tag tax, which is already pledged, will retire within 30 years, and this is about 25 million dollars.

Bibb Graves would keep the two-cent tax on gasoline now being given to the counties, but can and will execute the law which provides that these funds shall be used for road purposes and no other.

Bibb Graves will see that this money is effectively and economically so used.

Bibb Graves would put one cent additional tax on gasoline to compensate the state for its convict labor. This one cent tax on gasoline is the only additional tax or burden to be placed on the people of Alabama by the road program of Bigg Graves.

Bibb Graves is against all nuisance taxes.

BIBB GRAVES WILL ABOLISH THE AUTOMOBILE CERTIFICATE OF TITLE LAW, A NUISANCE TAX THAT IS COSTING THE PEOPLE HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS EACH YEAR; A USELESS, EXPENSIVE ANNOYANCE OF NO BENEFIT TO THE PEOPLE.

Sam Pate Runs Far Ahead of K. M. Vinson

ROCKETT AND CULP MAKE CLOSE RACE

J. Dudley Collins Leads Cleckler by Big Margin in Race For Sheriff

The Republican primary of Tuesday brought out a large vote, which will total close to 1800 votes. It had been guessed that 1500 would be the limit. With the big vote also came some big surprises.

The races around which most of the interest centered were Tax Collector, Assessor, and Sheriff.

Tom Rockett has a very close majority over Will Culp. Alf Mims ran far behind. The vote as unofficially reported is:

Rockett	758
Culp	712
Mims	291

Sam Pate beat Kin Vinson nearly two to one, which goes for the biggest surprise of the day. Their vote is:

Pate	1136
Vinson	652

In the Sheriff's race Dudley Collins comes back as a winner after being out of politics for some years, and went out ahead of Davis Cleckler with a good margin. The vote as unofficially reported is as follows:

Collins	989
Cleckler	732

For County Board of Education.

The vote for county board of educaton for the long term stood as follows, so far as heard from Wednesday:

R. H. Bean	929
C. C. Conway	488
W. J. Easterling	538
J. L. Vines	170
S. J. M. Webb	605

There are two to be nominated for these places, and the available figures indicate that Bean and Webb are the leaders. Three more voting places are to be heard from and it is not probable that the final result will be changed.

Below we give a tabulation of the vote on the different races as best we could get them Wednesday.

The Intermediate and Junior manuals will be taught by Misses Elizabeth Perry of Montgomery, and Katie Cobern of Mt. Creek. All the Baptist boys and girls of surrounding Baptist churches are invited to take the courses with us. All interested in the courses are asked to meet with us Sunday night at 7 o'clock.—S. J. Ezell, Pastor.

JOEL FULMER ARRESTED

Joel Fulmer was arrested by Sheriff Littlejohn and Deputy Foshee Saturday night, when he was found in possession of seven bottles of home brew. Fulmer had the home brew hidden in Mr. W. W. Fox's garage on Second Avenue South and Fourth Street.

Fulmer was placed in jail, and so far has not made bond.

MEETING AT FRIENDSHIP BEGINNING NEXT SUNDAY

The annual revival will begin next Sunday, August 15th, at Friendship church, a mile and a half north of Clanton. As has been announced before, Rev. Stuckey of Wilton will assist the pastor in the preaching.

The church building is not completed yet, but enough is done that services can be held all right.

All who can are asked to meet at the church Friday afternoon and help clean off the trash on the church yards.

The public has a cordial invitation to come out and help in the meetings. It is hoped that a real spiritual revival may be had, and all visitors who can come in and help us will be more than welcome.

The singing society will meet on the fourth Sunday afternoon of this month, our regular meeting time. All visiting singers have a cordial invitation to come out and help us. We need lots of help to get re-organized after getting our church built back.

FIRST OPEN BOLL OF COTTON HERE MONDAY

The first open boll of cotton was sent to The Union-Banner office Monday morning from the farm of Pete Baker near Refuge. Several people have stated that open bolls were seen in different places in the county more than a week ago, but this is the first one to be sent in.

GOV. BRANDON SPOKE IN CLANTON LAST FRIDAY

A large crowd of men and women of Chilton County gathered in the court house Friday afternoon to hear Gov. W. W. Brandon give an account of his stewardship, and on several occasions drew a round of applause from his audience. He explained how he had raised the finances of the state from a floating debt of $1,500,000 at the time he went into office, to a surplus of $2,000,000 when he shall have retired. He will recommend to the next legislature that the most of this surplus be given to "the little red schoolhouses of Alabama," to insure a seven months school term. Altho he was speaking in the interest of McDowell, candidate for governor of Alabama, and in interest of the $75,000,000 bond issue, Governor took up most of his time showing that he had fulfilled every promise made to the citizens of Alabama.

BIRMINGHAM MAN AND WIFE ARRESTED IN STUMPS HILLS

Chrysler Automobile and 75 Gallons of Whiskey Taken in Raid Last Sunday.

About noon Sunday Deputy Harvey Foshee and Special Deputy Loss Robinson took into custody a Chrysler roadster and Dock (alias Roy) Montgomery and his wife, Beulah Montgomery, both of Birmingham. The officers stopped the car on the Harkins road near Robinson's store in Stumps Hills.

The Chrysler was seen to go into Stumps Hills about 8 o'clock Sunday morning, and the officers were there ready to lay hold of them when they came out headed toward Birmingham.

When the officers looked into the car they saw a brand new five-gallon tin can up in the front of the car with the driver and his wife. Upon being asked what was in the can the man replied that he did not know, but that he had bought it for whiskey and had paid for it, and he supposed that it was whiskey. Without offering any resistance, Montgomery told the officers to drive on, that they would come with them. So Foshee got in the Chrysler and drove it back and Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery came to Clanton in the Ford with Special Deputy Robinson.

When they got to Clanton the officers looked in the rear of the Chrysler and found fourteen more 5-gallon cans neatly packed and filled with corn whiskey. The man and woman were put in jail, the whiskey was taken out and the Chrysler held in custody. Bonds were made for the man and woman Monday morning and they were released. Sheriff Littlejohn poured out the whiskey in front of the jail Monday about noon. The officers now hold the car for confiscation. Mr. Montgomery is out under bond of $750, and his wife under bond of $500.

UNCLE DOCK WELLS NOW BACK IN CLANTON

Uncle Dock Wells came around Monday morning and said he wanted a piece in the good old Banner to tell his friends he is back in Clanton to live. He will be located in a room up stairs in the Reynolds building west of the railroad, which place has been given him for the rest of his life by Judge Reynolds. We hope Uncle Dock lives to be with us for many more years.

We asked Uncle Dock what he is going to do here and he said: "Why, I am just going around all over this town and county and preach and pray and beg people to do right, just like I have been doing for the past fifty years.

"I have got faith enough in God to believe that He will provide for my needs. If He didn't have enough here to feed me, I believe He would send me a peck of meal, a piece of meat and a jug of lasses right down to earth, and the jug wouldn't break when it hits the ground."

FORESTRY LETTER

The State Commission of Forestry has issued its second annual report. The work of the Commission was organized in 1924, and covered but ten and one-half months in that year. The year 1925 is therefore the first complete 12 months period covered by the activities of the Commission.

The report has been prepared in a readable manner and contains a great deal of interesting information. It not only covers the official work of the Commission of Forestry but also deals with particular forestry problems of general interest to landowners. The section on reforestation deals principally with hardwoods.

An interesting feature of the report is a summary of the proportions of forest land existing in the various counties. Another is the progress of the fire protection work showing a decrease in the percentage of forest land burned from 36% in 1923 to 16% in 1925.

The report is well illustrated with photographs of forest scenes and forest trees which are described by both their common and scientific names. Persons desiring copies of this publication may obtain them by writing to the State Forester, Montgomery.

NEW HARMONY

Our singing school at this place closed last Friday, with a large crowd in attendance. We had one of the best schools that I have ever attended in the Christian Harmony song books. Great interest was manifested among both old and young. We especially wish to thank our teacher, Mr. J. Riley Scott, for the great work accomplished by him in our community. May he ever be found ready and willing to continue directing and teaching the good old songs of Zion that our forefathers sang in the good old days when God was worshipped indeed and in truth. May our young people press onward and continue the good work that is placed before them, lay down all malice and prejudice, and let's come together before Him in love of our Great Creator of mankind.—J. Warranted to Keep in a Cold Climate

Bram Stoker, the friend and biographer of Sir Henry Irving, used to tell a story illustrative of his distinguished patron's well-known aversion to having any counter-attraction sharing the attention at a theater during one of Sir Henry's performances.

Sir Henry was playing his annual London engagement once when Nansen, in the height of his fame as an Arctic explorer, returned from an expedition from the Polar regions. The curtain was just about to rise one evening when Stoker came behind the scenes with news that Nansen was sitting in the royal box. Irving received the news in silence.

A few minutes later one of the members of the company bustled up to the star to tell him the same thing. Irving merely grunted. And right on the heels of this up came a fluttering woman "super" and said:

"Ow, Sir 'Enery, did you know Nansen was in the 'ouse?"

"Nansen? Nansen?" said Irving, as though he were trying to remember who this person Nansen might be. "Oh, yes,—the chap who stands the cold so well!"

Mexico And The Catholic Church

The conflict which has developed in our neighboring republic of Mexico between the federal government headed by President Calles and the heirarchy of the Roman Catholic Church is but the culmination of a long struggle between two forces, the Catholic church, as in every country where it has prevailed, seeking to dominate every mind and interest, and, on the other hand, the small collection of clear thinkers and patriotic leaders who have sought to free their country from the blight of superstition and ignorance which has been continuously imposed on it by the policy of the church.

This latter party has been in the minority in numbers, but has included most of the brainy and truly patriotic men of the nation. These have worked and planned to give their country a chance to take the place it is entitled to among the nations of the earth, by giving every man a chance to become educated and to work unhampered for a free and fair living.

The church, on the other hand, has bent all its energies to keep the people in ignorance and the darkness of superstition. So far as they could control education it has been overlaid with superstition and fear of the penalties which the church claimed it could impose upon their souls and bodies. Their policy was to keep the mass of working people poor and ignorant while the rich were to be made richer in order that the church might wrest more of their wealth from them on their death-beds, where the church would hold out hopes of absolution from the sins of a riotous and wasteful life which the church had winked at as long as they were accumulating wealth. In this way they had acquired property and political power beyond belief. If this had been allowed to continue unchecked all property and power would soon have belonged to the church.

Fortunately some of the revolutions in bygone days gave the leaders who saw the great danger to the existence of the republic there was in this increasing power of the church, a chance to take action and they were enabled to check it to some extent and put into effect some measures to reduce that dangerous power. Much of the property which has been unjustly acquired was taken possession of by the State and used for the common welfare. Many stringent regulations were drawn up concerning the church and the part it would be allowed to take in controlling the lives of the people, but none of the revolutionary governments felt themselves firmly established enough to put them into full effect.

The church continued inimical to all efforts for reform until the present government, feeling that it is now on a firm basis and recognized as a government that is working for the good of all its people and the advancement of the true interests of the nation, decided that it was time to put into effect the regulations which had been devised for the safety of the nation.

Hence the present excitement. The church in Mexico, backed by their great head in Rome, which still holds to the claim of having absolute power over the minds and lives of all men, raises the cry of religious persecution. If that were true it would be nothing more than justice, for the history of that church is replete with instances of their persecution to the death of those who did not bow down before them.

But it is not religious persecution. The State says to the church: "Teach the people to believe in all your silly superstitions if they desire to do so, but you absolutely must stop your organized resistance to every measure which tends to free them from the bondage of slavery and ignorance, and to insure this, the State will take charge of the property which you have wheedled from the people and see that it is used for the general good—including religious services."

The plea which the friends of the Mexican Catholics use as the strongest argument in their favor is, in the mind of the writer, the strongest indictment against them. They say that the mass of the Mexicans are ignorant and poor peons who look to the church for all that they have in the way of religion and education, and it would be cruel and unjust to deprive them of its guidance or to weaken it in any way.

The first part of that statement is true; they have had charge of the religion and education and daily life of the mass of the people for 300 years, and look what they have made of them! Just as ignorant and steeped in superstition as they were in the beginning! The church has fought every movement to break up peonage, to force the large estates to be divided up into homes for free men, and to advance education. Such education as they allowed has been almost entirely along the lines of supporting their superstitions and enforcing their dogmas.

The movement of the Mexican government is entirely in the interest of freeing the Mexican people and giving them a chance at life, and the church is nothing but an obstructionist which does all in its power to check and nullify all such effort.

It is in the news of the day that a certain strong Catholic organization is petitioning this government to interfere in the Mexican matter on the ground that the Mexican government is insulting and persecuting some of our citizens.

If any of our citizens are violating the laws which Mexico has made for its own protection and are meddling in the political matters of that nation, it is entirely right that they be invited to leave—yes, kicked out, and we have no kick coming. It is up to every true American to enter protest against any such action by our government. It would be a parallel case if a Mexican should come into this country and claim the right as a Mexican citizen to set up a bar room, as he did not believe in prohibition. Would we kick him out? We have our own little pet superstitions and it is well enough that we allow freedom for their exploitation within our own lines without sending emissaries to peddle them in Mexico.

The Mexican government stands before the world with the cry: "Mexico for Mexicans," and they should have the cordial support of all true lovers of liberty and those who care for the welfare of their fellow men.

No prophet can tell what will be the outcome of the matter. The Romish church is strong in many parts of the world and superstition of all sorts still prevails over the minds of many.

But we should most emphatically insist that our government keep out of the matter and allow our sister republic a free hand to work out its own salvation.

Nothing "Fishy" About This -- It's Real!

YOU'VE seen postcards from resorts that advertised "good fishing" whereon such pictures as this were faked. This is NOT one of them. It's real!

The finny monster s a big, black sea bass that tipped the scales at 579 pounds. It was caught off the coast of Hermosa Beach, Calif., recently. After striking the fisherman's bait, it gave him the toughest battle of his experience—zig-zagging, flopping into the air, and, in general, "tearing up" the Pacific waters for more than four hours before it gave up the fight.

The photo shows Miss Lucille Pinson slicing off a fin so as to get at a tender slice of the tasty meat that lies beneath. Wish we'd been there for a meal!

SHADY GROVE

Our revival has just closed, and it was indeed a good meeting. Bro. J. S. Johnson did the preaching, and delivered some fine sermons. Our pastor, Bro. Golden gave us some interesting talks. The church made some new resolutions—vows we are proud of. We want to thank the people of the Baptist church for the help they rendered in making the meeting the great success it was. May God bless them! We had four new additions to the church, whom we are proud of. Let us stand against sin and the devil, for his power is striving to overpower us, but he can never do it if we will do our part. Our churches have a great battle to fight, so let's wake up to our duties.—A Reader.

NOW, WHAT SHALL I DO?

Perhaps the number of candidates ran as high in Alabama this year as ever before in the history of the State. Offices all the way from U. S. Senator to the various county offices must be filled. From one to a half dozen candidates have pressed their claims on the people, each trying to show or give reasons why he should have the office, until on eve of the primary "politics" indeed reached a blood heat. As a whole, the candidates were al high class men and yet, some mud-slinging has been resorted to. By far, the majority of the candidates must now turn their minds to other fields. The winner will draw a long breath and ask what he is going to do next. "How many promises have I made and how am I going to fulfill them? Oh, well, I am comfortably seated and I don't need that platform that I stepped upon to get in here any more, so I will eat, drink and be merry, far next election I may die. The "Dear People" can figure out and paddle their own canoe. Well, the time has come for the people to do that very thing. It will be a better day when the office seeks the man instead of the man seeking the office.

The people of Shelby County are seeking the cleanest, highest type men that can be found to fill the various offices of the county. The men will be nominated on the Republican ticket today (Thursday) then every voter in the county who stands for a government run and controlled by the people, are asked to lilne up with the men and actually put them in office in November.

CORRESPONDENTS:

We want to arrange with a number of young men and young ladies over the county to report all local news from their respective communities. We will furnish free stationery to all correspondents. Republicans over the county are invited to send letters from time to time relative to the conditions and outlook for the party in their communities. All communications should be sent to A. B. Baxley, Calera and should be in his hands not later than Monday noon.

SUBSCRIBERS:

As yet, we have not reached the 500 subscribers that we agreed to secure in Shelby County. The paper should be in every Republican home in the county—Democrats too. The price of the paper is 50c for four months. One man said to the writer the other day that he got his money's worth out of the first issue. The Shelby County section is worth the price, and you get all of the Union-Banner, the best county paper in the State, in addition. Make yourself a committee of one to send in at least three subcribers with fifty cents for each subscriber for next week's issue. See your neighbor, take time to make a little canvass of your community and let's prove that we can go over the top. If we go over the top, we will be able to establish a paper of our own in Shelby County. Now, prove your "faith by your works." It would tickle the editor if we shoulld get one thousand subscribers in this county. Go after them.

BEAT MEETINGS

Beat meetings were held in all the Beats of the county Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of electing delegates to the convention to be held in Columbiana August 12th. We were unable to get reports for this issue from any of the Beats except Calera, where a very enthusiastic meeting was held. A large crowd was present and the chairman, Mr. J. H. Wood, carried the work through like clock work. A. B. Baxley, M. T. Busby, A. B. Finley and G. A. Wood were elected delegates to the county convention. J. H. Stone, J. B. Hobson, J. B. Cook and Grady Dykes were elected as alternates. At the close of the meeting A. B. Baxley said a few words about the paper and practically every man in the house who was not already a subscriber marched up with his 50c and said "I want it." Next week we want to hear that statement from all all over the county.

"WATCH CALERA"

A letter from Mr. R. N. McDonough President of the Alabama Lime and Stone Corporation, to Mr. A. B. Baxley, local agent for the company at Calera, under date of August 4, 1926, reads as follows:

Dear Sir: While we do not wish any newpaper notoriety in connection with out building program at Calera, yet we feel it our duty to advise you and the citizens of Calera that we are now ready to begin the construction of our plalnt at that place along with other developments in the near vicinity.

"After continuous work and turmoil for a period of over twelve months, we have finally succeeded in getting all the affairs of the company in excellent shape, and developments will begin instanta.

"Trusting that your town will give us their hearty co-operation, we are, yours very truly, Alabama Lime and Stone Corporation, By R. N. McDonough, President and General Manager."

The caller was undeniably large. When he walked he rippled and one had the feeling that should he sit down suddenly he'd splash.

Dressed in the simple overalls of a husbandman, he wallowed into the office of a lawyer in the foothills of the Tennessee mountains.

Having given his name and his post office address, he stated that he desired to bring suit against a neighbor for $10,000 damages on account of libel.

"How did he libel you?" asked the lawyer.

"Well, suh," stated the aggrieved party, "he up and called me a hippopotamus—that's wut he done, consarn his picture!"

"When did he call you this name?"

"It's a goin' on two years ago."

"When did you first hear about it?"

"That very day."

"Indeed," said the lawyer; "then why did you wait nearly two years to begin taking steps to bring suit against him?"

In the Time of Trial

In our town years ago we had for a city judge a fine old gentleman, typically southern in manner and air and voice and habit. He liked a toddy before his dinner; sometimes he liked one after his dinner. He was a first-rate judge of the merits of distilled liquors.

Perhaps that was why he looked with private disfavor upon the products of a little one-horse distillery which presently started up in the vicinity. These products were more famous for fire and potency than for purity or mellowness. I heard a seasoned imbiber say once that when you took a slug of the stuff you immediately had all the sensations of having swallowed a lighted kerosene lamp. Be that as it may, it was fighting whisky. Guinea pigs were prone to insult foxhounds after a swig of it.

On a certain day our judge was decanted against the edge of his favorite bar. Court had adjourned and he was refreshing himself with a toddy. In came a friend.

"Judge," said the newcomer, "have you ever tried any of the stuff they're making at that new still house out on Mayfield road?"

"No, son," said the judge, "but I reckin I've tried nearly everybody that did try it."

MARINE RESERVE OFFICERS TO TRAIN AS SPECIALISTS

Washington, August 9.—To attain the most efficiency in their military duties, officers of the Marine corps reserve will specialize in definite military subjects, according to an announcement at the headquarters of the Reserve here. Each officer is required to make a choice of one branch of military training, and to select one other as an alternative.

The training of specialists will not only add to the efficiency of the Reserve, but will also be an aid to mobility in case of war or national emergency. Officers, highly skilled in the technique of small arms, machine guns, artillery, gas and tanks, or who are familiar with motor transpot, aviation, scouting and kindred military subjects, will be prepared for instant service.

It is planned to train others in the duties of paymasters, quartermasters, in administration work and all other departments of a complete military organization. Group trainng of officers in their specific duties will be given when possible.

The strength of a uniformed Fleet Marine Corps Reserve company is two commissioned officers and 45 enlisted men. Several of these companies were trained at Marine corps encampments this summer. A limited number of volunteer reservists, who enroll only for service in a national emergency, may, at their own request, be transferred to a more active status in the Fleet Marine corps reserve when vacancies occur.

UNION GROVE

The United Singing Society met in regular session here Sunday afternoon and we had the pleasure of listening to some of as good singing as we have ever had. We had with us our good old friend and teacher, Prof. H. M. Eagle, which was a great surprise and pleasure to all, as we were not expecting him. But we hope to have him with us more often in the future. He is going to teach for us again in January of next year.

Prof. A. H. Glasscock, who is now teaching at Oak Hilll, broght quite a number of his students with him, who helped greatly in making the occasion the great success that it was.

Other directors on the program were: Prof. Herbert Lowey, Akins Collins, H. H. Hayes, Jasper Oaks, Vester Campbell. There were many others whom we did not have time to use as directors. Organists were Miss Lois Glasscock, Miss Emma Campbell, and Prof. H. M. Eagle.

A fine qqartet was rendered by the society's quartet band, whch was very ably rendered and brought forth notes of praise from many who heard them.

We believe our society is improving both in interest and in numbers, and we are proud of our society. We know of no better way for all denominations to meet and worship and to praise our great Creator together than in our singing societies.

Smart New Rumble Seat

For Sport Roadster

Rumble seats are justly popular. They add a smart, rakish touch to roadster lines, and increase the carrying capacity by two passengers.

That Dodge Brothers Sport Roadster now provides this convenience, will be welcome news to thousands.

Like the main seat, it is deeply upholstered in gray Spanish genuine leather, and the seat back is high and well pitched, providing unusual comfort.

When closed, the rear compartment is absolutely waterproof, even in rainiest weather.

Ample space is provided behind the main seat for golf clubs, suit cases, tennis rackets and similar luggage.

Brilliant pheasant green lacquer body and hood, strikingly in contrast with the tan top, black fenders and full special equipment, complete a general color scheme of exceptional dash and charm.

OUR PROSPERITY

Another measure of the prosperity of the United States may be found in the fact that capital, deposits and resources of the banks of the United States are greater now than at any time in the history of the republic. The figures were given recently by R. N. Sims, secretary-treasurer of the National Association of Supervisors of State Banks for the annual convention at Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. Sims stated that of a total of more than 28,000 banks in the United States, 20,289 were state institutions and 8,000 national banks. These banks have a total capital, surplus and undivided profits of more than $7,000,000,000, total deposits of more than $54,000,000,000, and resources of more than $63,000,000,000. Deposits increased over $3,000,000,000, and total resources increased $3,487,607,427 over the highest totals of the year previous. All of the banking business of the United States in both state and national banks has increased more than 40% since 1919, when his first report was made, according to Mr. Sims.

This imposing percentage of increase will give us some idea of the growth and development of the United States during the past six or eight years. The country is now pretty well over the reconstruction period following the war and is once more on the high road of progress and prosperity.

There are still some pessimstic voices but they are growing fewer each year. For the present year, despite the unsettled condition of Europe, increased business is expected for the autumn months and it is now being predicted that the price of wheat may go to $2.00 a bushel.

There is no question about the material prosperity of the United States. Let us see that in the rush of business and progress we do not forget the fundamental principles of the government which made such progress and prosperity possible.

HALF-TIME PARENTS

A British police officer says the bad boy of today is the result of the half-time parent. There is something in that. The boy who comes home from school and finds the garage empty and realizes his parents are absent, intent on business and pleasure of their own, is thrown upon his own resources and that of the neighboring gang. The gang may not be composed of bad boys; simply neglected ones, boys with whom their mothers do not care to be bothered. The result is mischeif, then petty crime, and finally felonies. A half-time parent is neglecting his main responsibility.—South Bend Tribune.

Wives are still sold in Persia and the prevailing price is 100 sheep per wife. We know a few fellows right in the United States who would be willing to sell out cheaper than this.

THE HOME OWNERS

Figures of the activities of the building and loan associations of the United States are always interesting because they form an index of the prosperity and progress of the people of the country in moderate circumstances. These associations, as everybody knows, finance the building of homes by persons who are unable to pay cash. Of course there are now many other methods of financing the building and purchasing of homes, but the building and loan associations occupy a very important place in home financing and their activities are always significant from the standpoint of the modest home owner.

Enough for Wilkins

From the lowlands a special judge was sent up to the Kentucky mountains to try a lot of murder cases growing out of a desperate and bloody feud. He took with him as his official stenographer a young man from Louisville, who dressed smartly and, in strong contrast to the silent mountaineers, did quite a good deal of talking. For convenience let us call him Wilkins.

On his first Sunday morning in the mountain hamlet Wilkins felt the need of a shave. He had no razor and there was no regular barber in the town; but he learned from the hotelkeeper that there was an old cobbler living a few doors away who sometimes shaved transients.

Wilkins went to look for the cobbler. In a tiny shop he found an elderly native with straggly chin whiskers and a mild blue eye. The old chap got out an ancient razor from somewhere, stropped it deliberately and was soon scraping away on the patron's jowls. Wilkins felt the desire for a little conversation stealing over him.

"This is a mighty lawless country up here, ain't it?" he began in the way of opening up some conversation.

"I don't know," said the old chap, mildly. "Things is purty quiet jist at present."

He paused to put a keener edge on his blade, then went on.

"Well," said Wilkins, "you won't deny, I suppose, that you have a lot of murders in this town?"

"We don't gin'rally speak of 'em as murders," said the old man in a tone of gentle reproof. "Up here we jest calls 'em killin's."

"I'd call 'em murders, all right," said Wilkins briskly. "If shooting a man down in cold blood from ambush isn't murder, then I don't know a murder when I see one, that's all. When was the last man killed, as you call it, here in this town?"

"Why, last week," said the patriarch.

"Whereabouts was he killed?" continued Wilkins.

"Right out yonder in the street in front of this here shop," stated the old man, with the air of one desiring to turn the conversation. "Razor hurt you much?"

"The razor's all right," said Wilkins snappily. "What I want to know are the facts about the killing of this last man. Who killed him?"

The cobbler let the edge of the razor linger right over the Adam's apple of the inquiring stranger for a fleeting moment.

"I done so," he said gently.

There was where the conversation seemed to begin to languish.

BUSINESS AMBITIONS OF OUR FRIENDS - - (And What Happened To Some Of Them!)

Friend of ours says he's going to choose a business with some snap to it. Photography.

Another asserts he wants to invest in some proposition where he can stretch his dollars for the biggest dividends. We suggested—Chewing Gum.

A third is looking for some line that will give him the "quickest turnover." Told him to try Aeroplanes.

A fourth wants to get-rich-quick, too. Foolish widows with too much money—please apply.

A fifth tells us he's going to take up Electricity. Bet he lays it down in a hurry. Many a shocking experience he'll have.

A sixth would like some business that has a future to it. He hasn't decided yet on our recommendation to try Fortune-Telling.

A seventh said he'd like some occupation that would keep him traveling. Advised him to propose and be accepted by half a dozen different women.

An eighth was the best mathematician in our class and always strong for anything that had "figures" in it. Now he's looking 'em over every day as a life guard at the beach.

A ninth proclaimed he was keen on keeping books. He was. That was the last we saw of ours.

A tenth insisted on something that had no strings at tached to it. He got it—our wallet!

An eleventh asked the chance to "mix with people. But he was knocked out of a job the first day. Got fresh with a customer twice his size.

A twelfth announced that if he ever got started in a business, he'd stick to it. He is—every day. Manufacturing Fly Paper.

A thirteenth sought a line from which he could soon retire. He found it by walking into a dynamite shed with a lighted cigar.

A fourteenth figured he'd fare well as a street car conductor. He has. Hasn't made any change yet and he's got a car already.

A fifteenth went in for a business that keeps people seeking his services. He's shouting "Next!"—in a Barber Shop.

A sixteenth—what's that? US? Oh—we can be a success any time we want to. All we have to do is—find the keys to it on our trusty little typewriter. Just like this:

"I'm a SUCCESS! I'm a SUCCESS!"
(P. S.:—Only the boss can't see it that way.)

NOTES OF TRAVEL

(By S. E. Norton)

As opportunity offers we spend considerable time riding about in this very interesting section of New Jersey. One afternoon we visited the state fish hatchery. The superintendent happened to be away, and altho we saw a lot of very interesting things. We shall not be able to write about it intelligently until we go again and get more definite information about the whole business, which we hope we can do before long.

Many people in Thorsby will remember when our son Sereno lived there he was interested in Boy Scout work, and as scoutmaster organized quite a lot of the boys of Thorsby into a troop of Boy Scouts. He is still very much in love with this movement, and although his duties are such that he can not take full charge of a troop, he does act as assistant scoutmaster, and goes with them for hikes and on camping excursions. It is beautiful to see the spirit of comradeship which he shows toward the boys of the community, and their respect for him.

New Jersey has a police system under state control. Its members are called troopers, and are in effect, peace soldiers, in that the organization is of a military character, as far as its government is concerned, while its manifold duties consist chiefly in maintaining the peace and safety of the people all over the state. The cities and towns have ther municipal police, but the state troopers may be seen everywhere, many of them mounted either on horseback or motorcycle that they may move quickly from place to place, and especially to country districts, where there is no other police protection. For instance, one night this week a woman saw two men trying to break into a neighboring house, which was vacant. She telephoned for a trooper, who soon arrived and the men suddenly left. From what is nominally considered the policeman's duty to arrest all offenders and hale them into court, the people have come to know these state troopers as men of good judgment, having somediscretion, and always ready to assist in settling difficulties between neighbors or even in families, and most people will heed his advice rather than be locked up, as they also know his authority. Hence much trouble and expense is saved to the individuals and to the state. One usually finds one or more of these men at all important highway crossings where they serve as traffic policemen, a work in which they are sometimes assisted on special occasions by members of the Boy Scouts.

Speaking of traffic as pertaining to highway travel, there are very few places in this country where it presents the problems that it does in greater New York and a surrounding area within 50 miles, with its teeming millions of people, most of whom are trying once or twice every day to get somewhere in a hurry. Week ends are especially difficult, when hundreds of thousans from New York and a score of adjacent cities are seeking recreation in the surrounding country spaces within a hundred miles, from Friday afternoon to noon of Sunday. There is a continuous stream of automobiles on any highway leading out from this congested area, running so close together that it is very difficult to break into the line from a cross street, and once in, sheer folly to try to pass cars ahead of you and break in again. Hour after hour the stream is unbroken until one wonders where they all came from and where they are going.

By Sunday afternoon and until noon Monday the same conditions prevail on the opposite side of the highways, which are occupied by the returning throng, who because so many highways converge to the few few points where they cross the Hudson River to New York City, they find it more difficult to get back than to get out, and with no help for it are often held up for hours in line waiting for their turn to cross. Some relief is hoped for when the great vehicle and pedestrian subway from Jersey City to New York, beneath the Hudson River, now under construction, is completed, which will probably be next summer. The conditions described require a large force of men to keep traffic under control and give each atom in the great mass its individual rights.

As to where the people go—many carry a camping outfit with them, others visit kinfolks or frends in the country or small towns, still others (and they are numbered by the thousands) have summer homes at some place as rough and rugged as they can find to comprise the strongest possible contrast to their regular environment, where they erect a tent or a shack and a garage, and gather such equipment and necessaries as will serve for a time a state of living called "roughing it." They seek to break the monotony of conventional life, and revel in primitive existence. Still others have pretentious, comfortably furnished homes with much natural beauty of field, lake and forest adjacent to their domain, where they live quietly and entertain friends. Recently we have several times visited a section a few miles from Kenvil which seems to embody about all the features of "outing" life described above. Lake Hopatcong covers an area 11 miles long and from 1-2 to 4 miles wide. Its shores afford a great variety of landscape, from gentle grassy slopes to wooded glens and rocky gorges. Much of this area is occupied by pretentious homes, some permanent, some temporary.

Here come daily the residents who do business in New York or other places not far away. How many of this class there are was indicated by a long line of waiting automobiles backed up against the train shed platform at Lake Hopatcong station as we passed there about 5 p. m. These were only one contingent of what happens often during the evening hours. These with others who come direct in automobiles serve to attend a population of probably 12,000 or more, which, augmented by week end visitors, must be fully twice that many.

They spend their time in looking at one another and boating, hiking, sleeping and bathing, in which they vie with one another n wearing startling costumes, of some of which a description would not look well in print.

FAMILY REUNION

There was an old time family reunion at the home of Rev. T. J. Deason last Sunday, which was enjoyed by everyone present. All the children were present except P. J. Deason and family of Phoenix City, and Mrs. Arthur Mims. We are sorry they could not be with us. Those present were Mr and Mrs. E. Wyatt of Clanton, Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Deason of Verbena, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Dobbs of Clanton, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Powell of Deatsville, Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Deason of Clanton, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Pierce of Jasper, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Deason of Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Deason of Birmingham, T. A. Deason of Prattville, and Miss Beulah Deason of Clanton. They were all present by 10 a. m., and were served lemonade. About 10:30 they enjoyed a watermelon cutting, and about 12:30 they were served a bountiful dinner out in the grove. At 2:30 Rev. B. Lawrence preached a wonderful sermon on home coming, which everyone enjoyed. We were glad to have with us Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kilpatrick and Miss Aline Kilpatrick of Prattville About 4:30 they all departed for home with happy hearts, hoping to meet again some day.—T. J. Deason and Children.

Car Constructed Like a Steel Building

ESSEX ANNOUNCES COACH BUILT IN WORLD'S LARGEST SINGLE BODY PLANT

Above—The new Essex all-steel coach, described as "strong as a steel building." At the left, lower, is shown a 400-ton press which stamps out entire doors with a single operation. At the right two men are proving the sturdiness of car by riding on outstretched doors.

Detroit—Any story of the new Essex allsteel coach is fundamentally the story of the $10,000,000 body factory which produces this car. What the Hudson Motor Car Company has done in the manufacture of Essex bodies is to make craftsmen of machines; this is literally the fact. Giant machines do in a fraction of a minute work that the most highly skilled artisan, craftsman or artist could never hope to equal, from the standpoints of beauty and accuracy. The plant devoted to making the bodies expresses the industry's top mark in design and execution.

"Hand work" has long been a symbol of excellence of manufacture. Painstaking labor, directed by trained craft, ha resulted in closest fit and smoothest finish. But "machine work" supplants it when the machine is designed and executed so as to perform quickly and surely operations that far excel the best of the hand craft.

Essentially, the Essex body plant is an aggregation of pressing and stamping machines. Upon them are formed the component parts of the body, which are so accurately made that they fit without question. Their union into a rigid whole is accomplished with a speed and uniformity almost beyond belief. A cowl, a door, or the corner of a body is fashioned on a giant press. The whole cowl is brought into being with one apparently effortless motion of a press that is exerting a force of 400 tons every time its plunger descends. The machine and the dies may represent $100,000 worth of ability to manufacture with speed and exactness—an investment made with the certainty that the completed plant would function with the greatest precision and the highest attainable speed.

The Hudson officials say that the plan is unique in being the largest body building unit in the industry, without a single body builder employed in it. Strictly speaking, and using the word in the sense in which it is usually accepted, perhaps there are no human body builders. But the machines certainly are body builders in every sense of the word.

For the first time in the history of American industry, body building has been made primarily a series of steel stamping processes; for the first time too, the bodies are being made on a 100% progressive assembly system, already employed to such advantage in the manufacture of engines and chassis.

Everything in connection with the plant and the other means of making bodies complete was laid out a year ago. On top of the $10,000,000 in the plant proper, an investment of $5,000,000 was made in bringing the other departments to a capacity that would measure up to that of the new unit. The plant and the expansions were completed on schedule time, and on the precise day originally determined, a schedule of the new all steel bodies, to the number of 150, was put through.

Rev. Rufus W. Stuckey, pastor of the Baptist church at Wilton, Ala., will assist the pastor in the preaching. Rev. Stuckey has just finished a revival with Rev. Lowery at Eanon church in Shelby county, and reports say that his preaching was received there with much satisfaction and splendid results. Rev. Stuckey is a student at Howard College and is a very fine preacher and a good man as well.

It is hoped that the people in nearby communities will cooperate heartily with the Friendship people in this revival and make it the best ever held here.

We had baptizing on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Mims's Pond, after which about 50 people enjoyed the watermelon cutting given by Bro. E. H. Mims at his home.

Bro. Bonner has had a very successful year, 52 additions being made to the church during the year he has bee nwith us. We regret very much to give him up, but his work calls him to other fields. We pray God's blessings on him and his family wherever they may go.—Julia Parrish.

WE OWE—NEVER OWN

"The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof"—hence the more we have the more we owe—to man?—no, to God. We never own, simply owe—no matter what possession we may enjoy we are simply stewards for a while and then what? Man has been searching through every avenue of human wisdom to solve the enigma of life and eternity with no solution. I say human wisdom wherein eternal truth is in itself an enigma. The unfoldment of spiritual understanding alone will lead us into all truth and understanding. God is wisdom and we simply reflect and express the same as truth unfolds in human thinking. We even owe wisdom—we owe life—indeed we owe all—never own.

The Custom of the Country

I can remember when, in one of the mountain counties of Kentucky, there was only one sewing machine and not a single cooking stove. Things have changed there since. The railroads, bringing with them civilization and its by-products, have crept up through the gaps; the feuds have died out; schoolhouses have sprung up; there are live newspapers, colleges even, and modern systems of living.

But these things mark the transitions of recent years. It is not so very long ago that life was primitive. They used to tell a story to illustrate how primitive things actually were. It may not have been true. Probably it wasn't, but at any rate it was an illustration, even though an exaggerated one, of a prevalent condition.

There was a narrow-gauge, jerk-water road which skirted through the knobs about the feet of the mountains. One day the train—there was only one train a day, each way—was laboring slowly upgrade when the engineer halted his locomotive to let a cavalcade cross the track ahead of him. First there streaked past a pack of hounds, all baying merrily. Behind the dogs followed men, on horseback and muleback, galloping at top speed and cheering the hunt on with shrill whoops and blasts from a horn. The troupe had vanished into the deep timber bordering the right-of-way when a Northern man, riding in the shabby day coach, addressed a fellow passenger who was a native.

"Sheriff's posse, I suppose?" he said.

"Nope," said the mountaineer.

"Perhaps your people are seeking to lynch somebody?" suggested the Northerner.

"No, 'tain't that neither."

"Then may I ask what is the purpose—the intent—of this chase?"

"Well, mister," said the native, "it's like this: Judge Sim Hightower's oldest boy, Simmy Junior, comes of age today and they're runnin' him down to put pants on him."

BELVIN POPWELL AMONG MEN PRAISED BY PRES. COOLIDGE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 10.—Among the U. S. Marines who were first to rush to the aid of their stricken comrades, after lightning and fire had destroyed the naval ammunition plant near Dover, N. J., was Oscar Belvin Popwell, of Clanton, Ala., who went from Quantico, Va., to assist in rescue work in the stricken area.

Popwell was on duty with the 77th Company at Quantico, when a call was made for volunteers to enter the danger zone at Dover. He was among those selected, and arrived at the scene while the fire was still raging and menacing nearby powder magazines. It was largely through the efforts of Popwell and his comrades that further disaster was averted.

High praise was given the marines by both President Coolidge and Secretary of the Navy Wilbur for their conduct.

Popwell is 21 years old and was born near Clanton. He lived at the home of his father, James W. A. Popwell, Route 8, Clanton, before he joined the Marine Corps at Birmingham, last January.

France's Famous Tennis Ace--Off The Court

MOST everybody has seen pictures of the well known Mlle Suzanne Lenglen—the famous French woman tennis star—on the courts, at a tournament or in a game. This country was flooded with them, especially at the time she defeated our own Helen Wills for the international title.

Now here's a photo of Mlle. Lenglen as she appears in private life. It's a portrait study—her very latest. The frock she is wearing is a very charming creation—a two-piece sports model of flat crepe. In this docile pose, it's almost hard to believe she is possessed of phenomenal speed on the clay tennis courts.

The Custom of the Country

The English have the credit for being a conservative race—a breed in which respect for traditions is so strong that they hesitate to change anything which has behind it the merits of antiquity and established comfort. The story which follows—it may or may not be true—would tend to indicate that this trait really does persist in our Anglo-Saxon cousins.

The tale, as it was told to me, had it that through the fields between two villages in Sussex ran a footpath. It was not the quickest route for one going from one of the hamlets to the other, for it wandered about, but it had been traced originally by the horny, naked feet of Saxon serfs, and now was worn deep into the turf by the heels of countless generations. Everybody in the neighborhood used it, because everybody always had.

A country gentleman lived midway between the towns. He led a reasonably quiet, not to say dull, existence. One day he heard a vicious bull was straying about the countryside, chasing pedestrians, frightening children and generally misbehaving himself.

Seeking for variety from the monotony of his life, the gentleman went forth in the afternoon hoping to glimpse the bull. For four afternoons he sought to discover the whereabouts of the marauder, but with no luck.

On the fifth evening he lingered afield until nearly dusk. He had reached a stile where a hedge crossed the footpath when he heard in the distance, through the thickening gloom, the patter of flying feet, mingled with the thud of heavy hoofs, a convulsive panting and the snorts of some large animal.

Into sight came the local postman, an elderly person. He was legging along at top speed, his mail pouch bouncing on his hip, his whiskers neatly parted by the wind and blowing backward over his shoulder, and just behind him came the bull, lunging with his horns at the seat of the fugitive's trousers.

By half a length the fleeing man reached the hedge ahead of his pursuer. He flung himself headlong over the stile and in its protection lay breathless, while the bull, bellowing his disappointment, strolled off to seek an easier victim.

The spectator aided the quivering postman to his feet.

"He almost had you tonight, Fletcher," said the gentleman, sympathetically.

"'E's almost 'ad me every night this week, sir," gasped Fletcher.

Sunday was our regular singing afternoon. We had some good singing, the best we have had at Eastview in some time. But our Sunday school is not doing so well as it has in days past. Some of our workers have quit joining with us in our Sunday school. We miss them, and hope and trust they will come back. Directors for the afternoon's singing were Messrs. Huff and Marshal Burkhalter, Malburn Taylor, Edward Taylor, Philip Headley; Misses Lela Taylor, Mary Courtney, Elizabeth Griffin, Rena Stroud, Leola Strength; organists were Miss Lela Taylor and Richard McKinney.

Miss Rador Courtney spent the week end in Clanton with Mrs. E. J. Vinson.

Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Martin visited Mr. and Mrs. Will Martin Sunday.

Mrs. Maud Courtney of Odenville is visiting relatives and friends in this community.

THE HAND FAMILY REUNION

On last Friday, August 13, the Hand family met at Poplar Springs church for their second annual reunion. The members of the immediate families met about 10 a. m., and with flowers, went up to the cemetery and placed them on the graves of the relatives buried there, after which a cousin, Rev. J. S. Hand, led an impressive prayer appropriate to the occasion. Returning to the church we enjoyed refreshments and a chat together. A few closely related families were present, whom we were glad to have. At 11 o'clock we went into the church for a business meeting. We sang several of the good old songs, led by Rev. J. L. Hand, after which Mr. D. L. Hand led in prayer. A chairman and secretary were elected, and Rev. J. L. Hand served as chairman at this meeting. He suggested that Poplar Springs be made the annual meeting place for the reunion as the father, mother, and several relatives are buried there. It was also suggested that a record book be kept of all the meetings for reference and use of the children in years to come, and that important records, marriages, births and deaths be put in this book. The following resolution was adopted: "That the name Hand be retained in the generations to come, and not Hann." The business meeting closed with singing, and prayer by Rev. J. S. Hand. A bountiful dinner was served in the grove at noon. About 50 members of the Hand family were present. We were sorry that some of the brothers and sisters of father and mother Hand were not present, and we hope to have them with us next time.

At 2 o'clock a large congregation assembled in the grove for the afternoon program. Singing was enjoyed and Rev. J. L. Hand preached a wonderful sermon on "Home." Prof. J. L. Wilson and Rev. J. S. Hand made good talks on "How to maintain a good home, and how to retain a good home." Last, but not least, Prof. W. M. Devaughn's quartet and Mr. and Mrs. Renfroe Jones rendered some of the best singing ever heard, which we all enjoyed.

We were glad to have those who helped on the program to make it a grand success. We were glad to have all the visitors, especially the other relatives. We all departed with happy hearts.—Mrs. F. O. Robinson, Secretary.

SHILOH

Our singing Sunday afternoon was one of the best of the season at this place. A very large crowd attended which included the Pleasant Grove class, and visitors from New Cedron, Enterprise, and other places. Directwere Messrs. Clim Billingsley, Vester Bice, S. A. Henley, Clarence Billingsley, and Olen Bice; Misses Ruby Cox, Minnie Bice, Maggie Traywick, Inez McKee, and Ruth Cox. Three good quartets were rendered, two of which were arranged by Prof. F. I. Popwell, and one by J. I. Bice. Organists for the afternoon were Miss Minnie Bice, Clarence Billingsley, and Prof. F. I. Popwell. Our society meets the 3rd Sunday afternoon in each month, and everyone is invited.

Miss Beulah Deason has just returned from Parrish, where she was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Clara Pierce, for several days.

Miss Minnie Bice spent last week end with relatives in Thorsby.

Mrs. Leon Dees (Miss Ola Durbin) and children of Mobile are the guests of Mrs. John H. Moore this week.

Miss Myra Moore, one of our most successful teachers, returned Saturday from Jacksonville, where she has just finshed a course, in the State Normal School.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Owen and children were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Traywick of Selma last week.

IN MEMORY

On August 4 the death angel swept through our midst and bore the spirit of our beloved wife, mother, and our friend, Mrs. Mattie McSwain, to the realms of immortal glory. She was of a cheerful disposition, always looking on the bright side of life; and to know her was to love her. While we know that she is forever gone from this world of trouble we could not wish to bring her back to suffer more; yet her kind words and deeds will live on throughout the lives of those who knew her kind and affectionate manner, and they would make no mistake to live a quiet and peaceable life, as she has done. And though we miss her so much, we feel that our loss is Heaven's gain. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord; their works do follow them." She is gone to realms above where no sorrow nor trouble ever comes, but all is joy and love.

She is survived by her husband, Mr. T. M. McSwain; 2 children, Olvin McSwain, and Mrs. Archie Taylor; one grandchild, little Sarah Mae McSwain, and several brothers and sisters.—One who loved her.

If wars had to be financed in advance there wouldn't be near so much fighting.

Klan Gives Warning To Democratic Party Heads

High Klan Official Says 150,000 Will Go Republican Rather Than Vote for Al Smith.

Violant denunciation of Al Smith, and indication that Alabama would vote Republican in 1927 should Smith be nominated by the Democrats for president, Saturday came from James Esdale, grand dragon of the state Ku Klux Klan, and Dr. L. C. Branscomb, president of the Alabama Anti-Saloon League.

Many of the candidates supported by his order were victorious in the primary, and the grand dragon issued a scathing statement in his Birmingham law office.

"We licked 'em clean in the election and I've got 150,000 men who will scratch Al Smith's name if they put him up for presdent next year," Esdale asserted.

"We didn't want to bring up the Smith issue," he declared. "It was forced upon us, and we finished the fight."

The klan official's remarks were construed to refer to the nomination of Hugo Black for United States senator and of Bibb Graves for governor.

Esdale denied there had ever been a breach between the state klan and the national organization which endorsed L. B. Musgrove, wealthy coal operator and W. C. T. U. favorite, for United States senator.

"It was just a lie circulated by our political enemies," he cried. "The Alabama charter has never been suspended or in danger of being suspended."

Endorsement of Musgrove by Ben H. Sullivan, member of the Imperial Kloncilium and of the klan's legal and legislative committee in Washington, in no way represented the official sentiment of the national organization, Esdale indicated.

The Anti-Saloon League's attitude toward the primary was voiced by President Branscomb in a statement at Anniston, his residence.

Dr. Branscomb takes the attitude that Bibb Graves' victory is a rebuke to Al Smith, "the wettest of all aspirants for the Democratic presidential nomination."

Although the "drys" were divided among four candidates in the senate race and three in the gubernatorial contest, the "wets" were unable to elect their men, Dr. Branscomb asserts.

Dr. Branscomb's statement follows:

"The one big lesson politicians of this state may learn from the recent election is that prohibition sentiment in Alabama is in the overwhelming majority. It is a well known fact that the remnant of wet and local option sentiment is concentrated on a single candidate for governor and one for United States Senator.

"The prohibitionists were hopelessly divided among three candidates for governor and four for the senate office. With such tremendous odds in their favor, the wets failed to elect their men.

"Bibb Graves, who dared to say that his victory or failure to win would show Alabama's attitude toward that wettest of all aspirants for the Democratic nomination for presidential honors, Al Smith, has been selected for Alabama's next governor, and Hugo L. Black, bone dry and born dry, will take a wet man's place in the Senate.

"Whatever else this hotly contested election may show, it shows beyond a doubt that Alabama is about through putting men into office who will not rightfully represent the dry sentiment of this state."

Dr. Branscomb did not specify which candidate he regarded as the lone wet in each race.

The movement for abolition of the two-third nomination rule and the unit voting regulation, at the next Democratic national convention, is already beginning to be regarded with some suspicion in the South, it is known. Alabama voters, it is pointed out, have identified it particularly with "Tammany schemes" to swing the state's delegation for Smith.

With the Republican state convention scheduled here next Wednesday, it is expected leaders of the party will take notice of the chance for a division in Democratic ranks next year and include planks, at least one bearing on prohibition, in their platform.

G. O. P. county committees are showing unusual activity, it is remarked, and a large delegation is looked for.

Political observers anticipate a battle between the faction headed by Oliver D. Street, of Guntersville, Republican national committeeman, and partisans of Aubrey Boyles, deposed federal district attorney for the Southern Alabama district, who was recenty chosen chairman of the Mobile County G. O. P. Council.—By M. L. Sharpley, in The Birmingham News.

METHODISTS TO WORSHIP FOR FIRST TIME IN THEIR NEW AUDITORIUM

You are cordially invited to worship with us as we enter for the first time into the main auditorium on next Sunday, August 22. We trust that every member of the church will show their appreciation by being present and bringing with them many friends. Use your cars and bring those who have no cars and are not able to walk. Take new courage and let this be the beginning of a new day for Methodism in Clanton. There have been some mistakes made, but they are negligible. Remember, we have built more cheaply than any like building we have any knowledge of, considering material, size and finish. Our indebtedness is small, and the beauty of it is harmony and peace have prevailed throughout, so let us forget the errors, and rejoice over the accomplishment which seemed so impossible to many of our friends. Come to church Sunday and give God the praise Who gave us the wisdom and means, without which it could not have been done.

We are going to register every name present. Will yours be missing? See to it that it is not—we are counting on you.

The choir will put on a special muical program both morning and evening, and if you are a lover of music it will delight you. Encourage the choir with your presence.

Don't come reiterating what ought to have been done and what is left undone, but come with a smile expressing thanksgiving and praise for what the Almighty has enabled us to do. If you ever hated anybody in your life forget it Sunday and let's worship God in the beauty of Holiness. Come with good will and love in your hearts for everybody. This will be pleasing to God.—The Pastor.

OFFICERS DESTROYED STILL NEAR QUINSEY SATURDAY

Federal officers Gillespie and Seale destroyed a 300 gallon copper still near Quinsey in Coosa County last Saturday. They also poured out 27 gallons of whiskey and 25 or 30 barrels of beer. No arrests were made. No one was at the still.

JIM WALKER, NEGRO, ARRESTED FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

Jim Walker, a negro from Birmingham, is in the Chilton County jail, charged with reckless driving. He was said to be the cause of a wreck on the highway above Jemison Sunday night, in which Mr. Brassel, a lawyer of Montgomery, and his wife and children were hurt. The injured people were brought to Johnson's Infirmary here.

Friendship Church Is Now Being Completed

In order that the church building might be completed, the meeting at Friendship has been held up until next Sunday, August 22, when the revival will begin. The building is being painted inside and outside this week, and it will all be finished by next Sunday. The public is cordially invited to come out to our meetings next week and incidentally to see our new building. It is not so fine, however, we are proud of it and want the people of adjoining communities to come out and help us in our meeting.

Rev. Stuckey of Wilton will preach for us, and he comes well recommended as a good preacher and a fine man. Services will be held twice daily at 11:00 o'clock and 7:30, with the exception of next Tuesday when there will be no 11 o'clock service on account of the preachers having to attend a Shelby County Association. There will be preaching Tuesday night.

There will be singing Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Prof. W. M. Devaughn and some other good singers have promised to be present, and all who enjoy good music have a cordial invitation. Let's make this the best singing we have ever had.

OSCAR MIMS ARRESTED FOR VIOLATING PROHIBITION LAWS

Oscar Mims, son of Zed Mims, who lives on the Uncle Mose Robinson place, was arrested by Sheriff Littlejohn last week on a charge of violating the prohibition laws. The officers found five and a half gallons of whiskey buried in Mims's field, and caught him as he was coming from the field to his house with a bucket, strainer and funnel. He was arrested and paced under a bond of $300.

ENOCH AND FRANK DAVENPORT ARRESTED ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Enoch Davenport and son, Frank, were arrested last Wednesday on charges of manufacturing liquor and having still in possession. The two were connected with a raid made last Wednesday when the officers flushed a still in operation and the men got away. The outfit was located near Pleasant Grove. They made bonds of $500 each.

TEAD CASSEL ARRESTED LAST SUNDAY MORNING WITH LIQUOR

Sheriff Lttlejohn and Deputy Foshee arrested Tead Cassel about four o'clock last Sunday Morning on the highway south of Clanton at the Popwell place. He had a small quantity of liquor in his car. Bond was made for $300. A couple of well-known women were with Cassel when the arrest was made. The man acknowledged that the liquor was his.

Another cotton picking season in Alabama is on the way. Several counties have already picked, ginned and sold their "first bale" of 1926, and cotton pickers will soon be seen in many of the fields. By the middle of September picking will be in progress in every section of Alabama.

ALABAMA MERCHANTS TO MEET IN BIRMINGHAM

Arrangements are being made to obtain reduced railroad fares to the tenth annual convention of the Alabama Merchants Association in Birmingham August 24-25-26, according to announcement by B. H. Harsfield, general chairman of the convention. Those in charge of arrangements have asked for a fare and a half for the round trip and decisions by railroads will be made shortly. Merchants may obtain definite information regarding this from their local ticket agents before leaving for the convention.

One merchant who attends the convention will receive a handsome new automobile as a gift, according to the entertainment committee. Several handsome prizes are given away each year and this time the committee has decided that the first prize shall be a four door, Fisher body Chevrolet sedan, the car to be finished in Arizona gray duco, and upholstered in rich velour, one-piece windshield with automatic wiper and equipped with balloon tires, steel disc wheels and all modern improvements.

The outstanding speaker of the convention will be Fred W. Anderson, internationally known "miracle merchant," who built a $300,000 annual business in a town of 1,300 population. He has made Cozad, Neb., his home town, famous.

Other features of entertainment all of which will be free to merchants, will include a matinee at the New Ritz Theater, a musical comedy, Charleston and waltz contests, ball, a barbecue, and Merchants Musical Follies.

More than 3,000 merchants are expected to attend the convention.

FORESTRY LETTER

The piers have been set for an 80-foot steel lookout tower on what is known as Panther Creek hill in Covington County, according to the Commission of Forestry. The site is on the Florala and Kinston road in Section 21, Township 2 North, Range 18 East.

The location of the tower, comprising 40 acres of land, was donated to the State Commission of Forestry by public spirited owners. From Panther Creek hill a large expanse of forest and woodland is visible from the ground. With the 80 feet additional height the range of observation will be greatly increased with the result that it will be much easier to detect fires at a distance in their early stages. The tower will be connected with neighboring telephones so that the observer can more readily communicate with landowners in case any fires are discovered on their holdings.

The concrete work was under the direction of State Forest Ranger W. E. Jordan, assisted by Forest Agent H. F. Smith and various local residents. The work of erecting the steel will be started as soon as the piers have become thoroughly seasoned, probably within the next two weeks.

ABOUT BIRTH RECORDS

Whats all this I see in the Troy Messenger about "lost babies" asked old Uncle Ezra who has nothing to do even in haying time but it in the shade and read. An here's a long list of names. If all o' these are "lost" pears like their folks would go hunt em up and fetch em home. Mary Alice, the oldest granddaughter and senior in the county high school rapidly scanned the newspaper piece over gramp's shoulder. "Why no, these are ones that are not lost. It says if anybody in Pike County has a baby born that month (February) whose name is not in this list that means that their baby's birth record has been neglected and sometime they will be in a bad fix because they can't prove who they are or how old they are or anything. I know all about it cause a man from the State Board of Health told us about it at school one day; its a test just like we have in school to see how well we're doing our work. The State of Alalbama is being tested to see if it is doing good 'life and death bookkeeping'; they sent out cards to all families asking if they had a baby born in a certain month or months to send to the state office. When the replies are all in this is called a 'sample' of the birth recording of the state and if more than 10% of the names do not appear on the official records it means another black eye for Alabama, means she's slipshod, doesn't seem to care enough about her future citizens to count 'em all as they arrive and write their names in the 'Book of Life' like Joseph and Mary did for the Little Savior. From the very earliest times this has been considered important for every individual born, and of lalte years it is seen to be still more important for all the folks considered together, because the State Board of Health depends on these records to know how many babies there are, where they are, and how many get sick and die. How else can they do anything to make this a better place for babies to live or teach the mothers and fathers to bring them up right?

"You see Pike County has a health unit that's why the missing babies get so much attention. They don't want them to grow up and be like the Bible characters it tells about in Ezra 2:62, 'These sought their record . . . . but they were not found.' You ought to take an interest in such as this grandpa cause your name is Ezra. Why don't you get the list from the State Board of Health for your county. We have no health unit to attend to it and you haven't hardly a thing to do. Wouldn't it be nice to reduce the number of Alabamians who are unable to 'show their father's house?'"

Uncle Ezra thoughtfully scratched his chin, looked admiringly at his brilliant grand-daughter and decided it would be nice; so here's the list of babies officially recorded from Chilton County during May, 1926, with Uncle Ezra's compliments.

If you have a May baby and your name does not appear here, write the State Board of Health, Montgomery.

AMERICAN SOLDIERS BEST PAID IN THE WORLD

The American daughboy's most highly prized distinction—that of the world's best paid and best fed fighting man—remains unchallenged.

His pay envelope, according to a coparative table just compiled by the War Department, is 11 times bigger than the Japanese soldier's and its contents would pay off 41 Italian or 58 French men-at-arms.

The meal placed before one American Regular nowadays would have to suffice for 1.4 British, 1.5 Japanese, 2.4 Italian, or 2.5 French fighting men, according to the War Department announcement.

Only Great Britain approaches the United States in the amount of pay alloted to the individual soldier. The yearly pay per man is: Unjted States, $252; Great Britain, $240.90; Japan, $23; Italy, $6.20; and France, $4.38.

REFUGE

Our singing school has just closed, and we believe it was one of the best ever held here. I have talked personally with most all of the patrons and they seem highly pleased with the progress made by their children. But we are not so much surprised, considering our teacher, for we have had him with us and tried him before, and all know he is a good music teacher. Some have inquired if arrangements have been made with Prof. Devaughn to teach a school next year.

SPECIAL NOTICE

Prices cut for 90 days only. Put aside your prejudice; use your own judgment. No need to put off that much needed dental work. Many of your friends come here; why not you? My work covers all alike. All work strictly cash. I have just purchased a large amount of materials; so from now till Sept. 1, for cash, my prices are cut:—Two plates for $25; a fit guaranteed. Wilson, the Painless Dentist; office in Dr. Hayes' new building, Clanton, Ala.—adv.

Those who did not succeed in this school didn't do their part of the work. We hope to have Prof. Devaughn with us again.

On the closing day, last Saturday, was spent to the great pleasure of everyone. A bountiful dinner was spread at noon, and a grand watermelon cutting, furnished by Bro. O. R. Robinson and T. N. Miner, was enjoyed. Everybody had plenty, with some left.

Some may wonder why our singing which we have each 3rd Sunday afternoon, was not mentioned, but due to the baptizing at Mims Pond by the Poplar Springs people, it was postponed. We ask all singers and lovers of music to meet with us on each 3rd Sunday afternoon, and especially the students who attended the school, so that we may put into practice that which Prof. Devaughn has stamped into our hearts and minds.—M. Lockhart.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET

About 300 Republicans met at the court house in Columbiana Thursday, August 12, and nominated a full county ticket, which is admitted by Democrats to be as clean as could have been found in the county. The Republicans of Shelby County had nothing else but a clean ticket in mind and went about it in a careful, cautious and prayerful way. The concensus of opinion was to pick men who were not only upright and honest, but men who were leaders, and who could carry the banner to victory over their opponents. For some of the offices there were three or four men in the running, but after the votes had been cast and the nominee declared, without an exception, he was given a cheerful unanimous vote.

The names of those receiving the nomination will be found at the head of this column. Every one of the nominees seem to be partcularly fitted for the office for which he has been nominated. The ticket has already been certified to by the chairman, S. P. Williamson, and the fight is now on.

Keep it on! Keep it up! "Keep the home fires burning!" Saw wood! The spirit of harmony prevails, and we are on the right road. Keep your eyes open and go straight ahead—vote a straight Republican ticket, and enjoy better roads, better schools and more prosperity. The people shall rule! This is your opportunity to elect a ticket that will represent the County instead of the Town! Use it!

There was a so-called financial wizard who advertised to give lessons by mail which would enable patrons to prosper in their speculations. A subscriber down in the Southwest found himself in difficulties as a result of following the directions for playing the grain market as laid down by the expert. He wrote a letter to this effect:

By wire promptly came back the answer:

J. S. Dennis Charges Dirty Work In Primary

Editor Union-Banner:

I wish to thank the voters for their support in the primary, even though I did not get the nomination for Representative. I believe if I had been treated right, I would have been successful; but I believe that money defeated me.

I saw some dirty things done on election day by both men and women. But when you see these same folks at church, they appear so good that they are ready to die. They are nothing but hypocrits when you really find them out. If anybody wants me to show them I can do it mighty quick.

Now people just wait till November and see if some of the money sharks don't lose out by a big majority. I hate to know that this was done in the Republican primary, but you know money is the root of all evil. Now, I say' let's get the ring rule out of our party.—John S. Dennis.

MINORITY RULE IS UNDEMOCRATIC

Those Alabama Democrats, among them The Advertiser, that have always advocated an election system that would insure the rule of the majority, are under some embarrassment in returning to the discussion of their settled conviction in regard to this matter. They are embarrassed because they fear that a reopening of the question at this time may be misinterpreted by some people as an expression of soreness over defeat in the recent primary election. In simple truth, they are not squawking. The second choice rule was as fair for the defeated candidates as for the successful candidates for the Senate and Governorship. That isn't the point; the point is that the second choice rule is not fair for the people of Alabama.

The chief virtue of a primary, which, it is admitted, has none too many virtues, is that however inefficient it may be, it should leave the people satisfied with the outcome of an election, and leave them reconciled to the government under which they must live for a given period. When a majority of the people vote for an idea or a candidate, the minority can not complain. But when a man is elected to office against the opposition of a majority of the people, the people do not feel that the system is fair to them.

If either of the defeated candidates for the Senate or either of the defeated candidates for Governor had won in the recent election by a minority vote, there would be quite as much virtue in a protest against minority rule as there is in the present situation.

Thirty per cent of the votes of Alabama have elected a Senator and a Governor. Thus all of the people of the State are committed to candidates and political ideas which a majority of the people have voted against. Democratic institutions do not thrive under such a system, and at the first opportunity, steps should be taken to restore a system that will insure rule by the majority. This will require arrangements for run-off primaries. Now, run-off primaries are expensive and annoying, but they have one virtue—they satisfy the people with the government which the majority produces.—The Montgomery Advertiser.

TALK IS CHEAP AND THEREFORE WORTH LITTLE

There are some people who seem inclined to whisper some secrets about dirty work in the recent Republican Primary election. Such a thing means nothing gainful for the Republican party. If anybody has committed a sin, it is not going to help the matter any for tattlers to whisper it from ear to ear.

There is but one safe course for Republicans to follow. That is to pay no attention to rumors of this kind and work for the election of the Republican ticket in November.

If there was anything done in the primary that was out of order, it is certainly to be regretted. But we are now looking to the general election, when there is but one choice. The voter must vote the Republican ticket or the Democratic ticket.

As for The Union-Banner, the safest course we can see is for the Republicans of Chilton County to stand together and support the Republican nominees.

The Republican party would have to get a whole lot worse than it is now in order to justify the Republicans in leaving it and going to the Democrats.

The Republican party has rendered a season of good government to the people of Chilton County, and it is the height of foolishness for Republicans to get wrought up over some little primary differences and start such talk as is being hinted by some at this time.

Hot After It!

FROM PERCY M. PITTS

Editor Union-Banner:

Allow me to thank the voters for the nomination which I received at your hands for Representative from our great County of Chilton, in the recent primary. Since I have received this nomination I will try to not leave a stone unturned between now and the general election, in order that we may elect our entire ticket. To those who voted for me I am very grateful, and for those who voted for my friend, Squire Dennis, I harbor no ill will, and trust that since the majority has spoken by their vote, that we will all place our shoulder to the wheel and put over our ticket as nominated.

As for my political record prior to coming to this county about six years ago, I will say for the benefit of those who do not know, that both my grandfathers and my father during their lifetime in the adjoining county of Shelby fought for the same principles you and I are here today fighting for in Chilton County. And some of the elder leaders of the Republican party in this county have campaigned with them in Shelby County. My late father served Shelby County as Tax Assessor for three terms under the Republican party.

As most of you know, I did very little if any campaigning before the primary, and saw but few voters regarding my candidacy. However, I desire to say that I will do my best to see as many of the voters as possible between now and the general election, and do all in my power to elect a full Republican ticket in November.—Percy M. Pitts.

LETTER FROM MR. WILL G. CULP

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me space in your valuable paper to say a few words to my friends, the Republicans of Chilton County. First, I want to thank you from the depths of my heart for the splendid and loyal support given me in my race for Tax Collector. All the language at my command is inadequate to fully express my appreciation for what you have done in my behalf. Although we fought a losing fight, I hope that I may live long enough—that some time and somewhere down the line I may be able to more fully demonstrate my appreciation to each of you.

I have accepted my defeat as gracefully as I know how, and I hope that each of my friends can share with me this consolation—that we fought a clean fight. I tried throughout the entire campaign to be fair to my opponents and to the principles of the Republican party. I shall continue with the same efforts renewed to fight for the things I think best for the interest of the Republican party as a whole, contending in the future, as I have in the past that the interests of the Republican party in Chilton County is of far more importance than the interests of any man or set of men.

Now, to those who saw fit to vote for either of my opponents, I want to say that I have no ill feeling toward you, for you only exercised that right which the Constitution gives to you and to me, and no man has a right to question.

I believe that most of you are my friends, and I want to insist that we present a solid front in support of the Republican nominees in November, and push forward with every step possible for a bigger and better Republican party in Chilton County.

In conclusion, I want to again thank my friends for your loyalty, and if ever at any time I can be of service to you, I want you to call on me, for I assure you it will always be a pleasure to me to help you when I can.—Respectfully yours, W. G. Culp, Clanton, Ala.

LETTER FROM J. T. ROCKETT

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space to express my thanks to the Republican voters of Chilton County for the confidence expressed in me in the primary of August 10, in whch I was the successful nominee for Tax Collector. To those who stood by me and voted for me, I am deeply grateful. To those who voted for one of my opponents, I want to say that I hold no ill will against any of you because you voted against me. It was your privilege to be against me if you wanted to, and I would not have taken that privilege away from you if I could have done so.

Let me urge all Republicans now to forget our little differences in the primary and go to work for the Republican ticket in November. I am for the Republicans of Chilton County, whether you were for me or against me in the primary. I believe I have made a record for efficiency, courtesy, and service in my office which will stand to the credit of the Republican party in the face of all opposition which may be directed against me by the Democrats.

We know that we must have a united party to win in November. As for myself, I stand ready to put my shoulder to the wheel and push. In fact, I am right now headed for the November election, and I shall not neglect one opportunity in which I may be able to do anything for the Republican ticket.

Again thanking the Republicans for the honors you have given me in the past, and with every wish for your continued success in Chilton County, I am, Yours sincerely,—J. T. Rockett.

FROM R. H. BEAN

To the Voters:

It is with the most sincere and deepest gratitude that I express my thanks to you for your votes which gave me the nomination as candidate for member of the Chilton County School Board.

I assure you I shall do all in my power to aid the Republican ticket in November, and if I am elected I will do all I can to better the conditions of the schools.—R. H. Bean.

To the voters of Chilton County:

COTTON ARMY WORM HAS MADE ITS APPEARANCE HERE

Reports have been coming in to The Union-Banner this week stating that the army worm has made its appearance in many cotton fields around Clanton. It is stated that the present 'crop' of worms is comparatively light and not a great deal of damage is expected at this time.

Farmers who are well posted on the activities and history of this pest say that they look for the second invasion of worms to be about the 28th of August, which, they say, will likely do more damage than the first, unless effective measures for destruction are used against them.

Farmers are advised to watch their fields closely every day and be ready to fight the worms by the second appearance. To do so might mean the saving of much cotton.

S. J. M. WEBB THANKS VOTERS

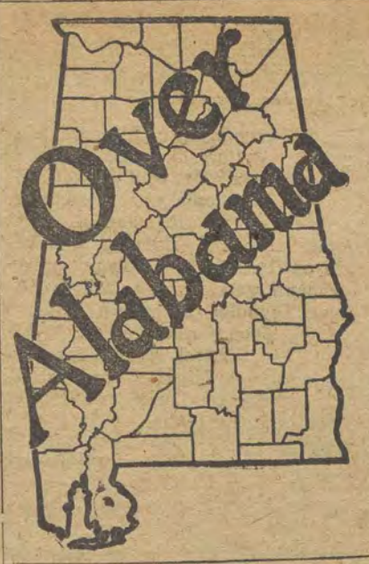
Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to express my deep appreciation and thanks to the people of Chilton County for their vote and influence shown me in the primary. No one can appreciate what has been done for them any more than I, and I furthermore wish to say that I will do all in my power that is just and honorable to elect the entire ticket in November. So do not fail to call on me when I can serve you. I will be glad to do so at all times. Yours for the very best educational advantages—mental and spiritual.—S. J. M. Webb.

LETTER FROM ALFRED F. MIMS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words to the people of Chilton County. I certainly thank those who supported me in my race for Tax Collector. I will never have the language to express my thanks to you fully, although I was defeated.



To those who voted for my opponents I wish to say that I hold no ill will against any of you. It was your privilege and duty to vote as you saw fit. I would do you a favor as quick as I would those who voted for me. I am just as firm a Republican as I was before the primary, because I believe in the principles of the Republican party just as much as I ever have.

I will do everything that is honest and honorable to bring about the election of all the Republican nominees just as quick as I would if I had been nominated.

In conclusion I want to say that I am proud that I waged a clean campaign with my opponents. I will close byaying best wishes to the Republican party.—Sincerely yours, Alfred F. Mims.

NO CURFEW BELLS

(By A. N. Eshman, of Winchester, Tenn.)

Even if we should grant that the Sesqui - Centennial deserved a little knocking for not being ready on time, nevertheless, the first week in August finds the Sesqui a wonderfully great exhibit and it is speedily growing better.

On June 30, I first visited the Centennial, and I could not take issue with those who complained of much unfinished work; but on July 5th, I again reviewed the conditions and was amazed at how much was done in less than a week. So even by that date, I did not hesitate to say to my friends of the South, that the Sesqui-Centennial is already a great exhibition and rapidly growing better with every passing day, and with every passing night, for there are no curfew bells in the Sesqui work.

Again, on July 28 and 29, I returned to the Sesqui, and was abundantly gratified at the progress that had been made between July 5 and the latter dates. A few vacant spaces yet, as a matter of fact; but the splendid exhibits which are now there on a grand scale, are sufficient for the entertainment, instruction and inspiration of anyone and everyone who wants to observe, to learn and enjoy.

You say Jones didn't look well the first time you saw him. Granted so, but when he gets a good shave, his shoes shined and his trousers pressed, he should have credit for the improvement.

The plain man, the big man and the average man, all these will now find the World Exposition at Philadelphia abundantly worth their time and money to take the trip hither, and "The City of Brotherly Love" will welcome you and treat you well, except possibly the taxi drivers, and even some of them seem sometimes to have a conscience.

Do I know a big Exposition when I see it? There are thousands of critics among us to whom I would take off my hat on such a subject; nevertheless I made a creditable inspection of the Cotton States Exposition at Atlanta; of the Centennial at Nashville; of the World's Fair at St. Louis; of the Jamestown Celebration at Norfolk; and of the Panama Exposition at San Francisco. Therefore, I do not hesitate to give it as my opinion that the Sesqui-Centennial at Philadelphia is now a national and international exhibit, which reflects credit upon its immediate promoters and upon our friends in the family of great nations, which are now cordially taking part with our country in celebrating the 150th anniverary of an event so sacred to every American heart.

Concerning the Sesqui, which is both yours and mine, the time has come and the conditions fully justify it that "we put up our hammers and quit knocking."

A news dispatch from Paris quotes the African Phosphate Bureau of Morocco as saying that last year 570,000 tons of phosphate of the total production of 721,000 tons were exported. The production in 1924 was 430,000 tons, and in 1923 it was 250,000 tons. The report claims that due to these exports American phosphates have been practically excluded from the markets of Holland, Germany, Norway, Denmark, the Baltic States, and the Union of South Africa.

It is not too late to put water works in the farm home. Any month in the year is a good month for relieving Mrs. Farmer and the children of "totin" water.

RODEO IN BIRMINGHAM WEEK BEGINNING SEPTEMBER 6TH

A number of sporting men and women from the West who are now "Alabama Bound" for the rodeo here that begins on Labor day and continues day and night at the State fairgrounds during the entire fall trading week, will winter in Paris in case they win the larger purses offered here in cowboy contests. Byron Glasco, who will produce the Stampede for Birmingham is now considering a rodeo contract with the French government, to be staged during the American Legion convention when the boys who wore the olive drab go back to France in 1927.

The purses offered in Birmingham in all sporting events total $32,000. There will be reduced rail rates to Birmingham for the annual fall shopping week. The entertainment offered wil be the Stampede at the fairgrounds. It is entirely a program of Western sporting events, where men and women risk their lives to win big purses riding wild cattle, riding wild horses, roping calves and "bulldogging" longhorns—the latter a very spectacular contest.

The first bale of 1926 cotton from the South Atlantic States was auctioned on the floors of the New York Cotton Exchange on July 29, and brought 80 cents a pound, or $400. Bidding started with 50 cents per pound. The proceeds of the sale will be given to New York City charity. It was shipped to Liverpool to be re-auctioned for charity.

CHEVROLET NEWS

With the Chevrolet Motor Company's $10,000,000 expansion program well under way, providing production facilities for 1,000,000 cars during 1927, more than 800 members of the company's field force will hold a three day convention in Detroit starting Monday, August 23, when the sales campagn for the coming year will be outlined by R. H. Grant, general sales manager of the company.

This convention, the largest and most important sales gathering in the history of the automotive industry, marks the culmination of the greatest sales production period in the activities of the Chevrolet Motor Company—an enormous and startling rise to national popular favor that is conceded to be without precedent in automotive industry.

With more than a half million cars produced during 1925, the close of this year will see production far above the 600,000 mark and the possibility of one million cars in 1927. It is the potential production for 1927 that has called the entire field sales force of the Chevrolet organization to Detroit that plans may be made known to the whole selling organization in every part of the country for the merchandising of the 1927 production.

General Sales Manager R. H. Grant will sound the key-note of the convention—"1,000 more cars per day"—to the selling organization including regional managers, zone managers, division representatives, sales promotional representatives, and service promotional representatives.

His tatement will be backed by the most remarkable record ever made by an automobile manufacturer in recent years and will more than ever accentuate the Chevrolet Company's record as the most interesting and absorbing topic today in automobile circles.

The part that each member of the sales force will play in the handling of the tremendously increased production which the company plans for 1927 will be detailed by Mr. Grant.

A sales organization, serving more than 8,500 dealers, will be told of the service to be rendered through advertising campaigns, nation-wide in their scope, of local dealer campaigns under the Chevrolet cooperative system, and of scores of sales promotional and servce helps that have contrbuted so strongly n the past to the unparalleled growth of the company.

Besides the mebers of the field sales force from the 32 sales zones, the meeting will be augmented by the attendance of officials of the General Motors Corporation, the General Motors Acceptance Corporation, the Chevrolet Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., and various other General Motors units.

Four solid trainloads of Chevrolet factory sales representatives will arrive in Detroit Sunday, August 22, from 4 important centers—Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinatti, and New York. At these points the men have congregated from Chevrolet zones in the east, south, and west. Each train is to be met at the tation in Detroit by a band, guides, and fleets of Chevrolets which will take the men to their hotels where every arrangement has been made for their comfort and entertainment.

The formal opening of the convention takes place Monday, August 23, at 9 a. m., in the main auditorium of Detroit's new Masonic Temple, the largest building of its kind in the world. All the business sessions of the convention will be held in this new and beautiful building. Following Mr. Grant's introductory address Monday several interesting and novel features will be presented by the sales promotion department. John E. Grimm, Jr., advertising manager, will summarize and explain the advertising campaign of the Chevrolet company, the largest campaign ever staged in the United States. Successive days will be taken up with addresses of officials and entertainments. Special importance is attached to group meetings scheduled for Tuesday. On Wednesday representatives will take a lake and river trip on a chartered steamer. On Thursday the men will visit the General Motors' 1125-acre proving grounds at Milford, Mich., and the Chevrolet factories at Flint.

On returning to Detroit the representatives will leave for their respective zone headquarters, carrying with them the inspiration that comes from attendance at a convention that has laid the groundwork for a still more impressive record of accomplishment—a record that will be an enlarged reflection of the vigorous and tremendous vitality of the company.

NOTES OF TRAVEL

(By S. E. Norton)

On a recent afternoon Sereno took his mother and the writer over to Newark, N. J., about 30 miles from Kenvil, on a shopping expedition. Newark is one of the large suburbs of New York City, and is itself no mean city if other avenues leading to it are like the one we traveled on, which for 10 miles from the center of Newark was lined with large towns set so close together that it was not possible to tell where one ended and another began. On this basis we believe that a conservative of the population of Newark and its suburbs within 10 miles of its center would be not less than a million people.

Although the streets for miles on either side were lined with parked automobiles so closely as to leave no room for another, we found a place in the city where for 25 cents the first hour and 5 cents per hour after that one can get room for a car on one of the five floors of a large building devoted exclusively to the care of cars whose owners want to do business in the city, or avoid the delay of congested ferry traffic to New York, leave their cars in the stable and take train, which goes by great railroad tunnel under the Hudson River, and lands them at Grand Central Station in the heart of the metropolis. There are as yet no subways under the Hudson between New Jersey and New York that are available for vehicular traffic or for pedestrians, although one is now under construction; and there are no bridges as yet.

Leaving the car safely guarded we went to one of the great department stores, where we had our first experience with an "escalator"—mark that word well and do not confuse it with "osculator," for we assure you that although the names are so near alike there is a wide difference in their meaning. If you don't know what an "osculator" is, look it up in the dictionary.

An "escalator" is a kind of mechanical stairs, constantly moving up or down, where one steps on the first step, stands still until the step on which you stand arrives at the top or bottom, whichever way you happen to be going, when one steps off, and there they are either up stairs or down stairs by machinery. Its advantages are many and obvious; there is no wearying stair climbing, up or down, no waiting for the elevator and no packing with a crowd after you get in, or squeezing to get out if you want out before the elevator reaches the end of a trip.

Personally, we were not interested in buying, but were glad of the opportunity to see what was going on in the "marts of trade." Although the day was one of the hottest of the season, one of the liveliest places we found was in the fur department, where while waiting for others of our party we found a seat and watched proceedings. On a large square frame, accessible from all sides, were hung a great array of fur coats, most of them big enough to cover one from neck to feet. It was evidently "bargain day in fur coats," and there was a good variety to select from. The cutomers were mostly women, apparently wives and daughters of a class neither very rich nor very poor, attracted by marked down prices, for be it known that the merchant who undertakes to carry over these expensive goods until another season is not only keeping a lot of money tied up, but is in the end very likely to have a lot of unsalable stuff on his hands on account of changes in fashion in that particular line, so they aim to close out their stock, and usually do it. The women flocked around that fur stand like flies around a molasses barrel, the whole show was a lesson in psychology. We noticed one rather slender woman in particular; she walked quickly all around the display frame, catching hold of a garment here and there, giving it a hasty glance, dropping it and passing on, determined to see all there were. Finally she took down one, a half-length jacket, slipped it on and went to a mirror. She soon pulled it off, hung it up and went away. In about 15 minutes she came back and repeated the whole performance. Our thought for her was: "You'd better get something that will cover more of you, or you'll wish you had next winter." Whether it was telepathy or not we do not know, but she evidently came to the same conclusion, for she selected one of another make much more suitable for a northern climate, and after going through the same performance as with the short coat she bought the long one and went away.

Others who did not appear to be haggling over the price were slow to come across, but we were surprised that so many took what was offered that within an hour as we waited that big rack was half emptied. Another department store where there was a whirl-wind sale, was bathing suits, from $1.95 to $3.95. Here again was evident determination to close out the stock, as fashions are decidedly fickle in such goods, and old styles are not wanted at any price, but no matter what one pays, they get little enough for it.

A visit to almost any one of these great stores, if one takes the time to look about them, is somewhat like going to an exposition or a big fair. Their goods are attractively displayed, much is being done to make customers feel easy and comfortable and help them to see many things which they have no idea of buying at the time; their employees are required to render prompt and courteous service because it all helps to swell that intangible asset to any business enterprise known as "good will."

Wherever time and opportunity permit we take considerable pleasure in observation of humanity. A good place to do this is when sitting in a waiting automobile at the curb and "Watching the (pedestrian) World Go By." For many years there has been published both in England and America an illustrated humorous paper called "Puck," which always bears underneath its name the legend: "What Fools These Mortals Be." It seems to us that in conformity with the decrees of "Dame Fashion" womankind lead all others in foolishness—not all, but a good many. Take for instance the matter of dressing their feet, and the agony and abuse they impose on themselves in doing it. One does not have to wait long to see plenty of them who from choice cripple and disfigure themselves in a way which if it were forced upon them would justify war. They wear footgear that prevents them from taking one step naturally, one needs but to see their distorted faces as they hobble along to know that they suffer, then by contrast one comes along wearing shoes that permit a firm step as nature intended—she has an easy swing and a stride that indicates joy in living. She walks erect, her whole being emanating poise and ease of thought and motion, she wears a smile with becoming apparel, and is withal something good to look at. There are enough such women abroad in the land to emphasize the foolishness of their sisters whose ideas are not above being slaves to fashion.

Each morn' at six a buzzing clock
Awakened Edgar Katz.
He yawned and rubbed his eyes a bit
Then tumbled off the slats.

But now he sleeps till half-past six—
The reason, he will say,
Is that he saves a half-hour since
He bought his Chevrolet!

—A used Chevrolet, too. One of the neat, trim, reconditioned used cars that you will find in our display room today. The best place to buy a used car is from a dealer that puts his used cars into desirable condition, prices them fairly, represents them honestly — and backs up what he savs.

WHAT'S THE USE OF LYING?

(A. N. Eshman, Winchester, Tenn.)

Ananias and Old Nick were the champion liars of their day; but their prevarication never got them anywhere.

It is said that Texas and the Grand Canyon are both so big that no man can lie about them; yet somebody has wandered far from the truth as to our Sesqui. Read the following statement:

"Exposition officials have branded as false and ridiculous reports that the visitor must spend from $35 to $150 for admissions to see the features of the Sesqui-Centennial. For only the 50 cents admission fee to the exposition grounds, the following interesting exhibits, valued at $100,000,000 may be seen:

"The palace of Liberal Arts and Manufactures, with many acres of interesting sights; the Palace of Fine Arts, a tremendous building housing art treasures from the four corners of the earth; the Palace of the U. S. Government, Machinery, Mines, Metallurgy and Transportation, housing the most extensive mechanical exhibit ever seen under one roof; the Palace of Agriculture, Food, Civic and foreign Exhibits containing the $1,000,000 Japanese pearl pagoda and the finest products of the best craftsmen of the world; the Palace of Education; the Model Postoffice; the Pennsylvania building and other state buildings; and scores of other structures bidding the visitor welcome without any charge, except the one general admission to the grounds.

"Free organ concerts are given daily at noon in the Aditorium on the largest organ in the world. Clean Up In Alabama Urged By State Republican Meeting

G. O. P. Promises the People An Escape From the "Rottenness" of Democratic Party Domination

"The people have reached the humiliating alternative of concluding that those in control of the Democratic Party in Alabama are either corrupt, or its leaders and newspapers are slanderers and libelers," declares the Republican platform drawn up at the state convention in Birmingham last week.

Scathingly denouncing Democrats as corrupt, the state G. O. P. comes forward with promises of escape from the "rottenness" of the Democrats.

"We appeal to the thinking, patriotic people, who have no ax to grind, to join with us in registering a protest against the degenerate condition into which the Democratic party has fallen," is the plea.

Road improvement, abolition of the convict lease system, nine-months schools and death of the "bugaboo school book trust," strict law enforcement and cautious use of the pardoning and parole power of the governor are the issues on which the Republicans arise to challenge the Democrats.

The platform follows:

"The Republican Party of Alabama through its duly chosen representatives in convention assembled invites the attention and investigation of the people of Alabama to the state of our political affairs.

No Hope From Present Regime

"Is it not time for Alabamians in a serious-minded way to take note of our governmental affairs? The people have for months witnessed the spectacle of the Democrats hurling charges and counter charges of misgovernment, corruption and mismanagement at one another, until at the conclusion of the primary campaign the people have reached the humiliating alternative of concluding that those in control of the Democratic party are either corrupt, or its leaders and newspapers are slanderers and libelers.

"They, themselves, have produced the evidence on whch they should be convicted and sentenced to a long term of retirement. We make no charges against the Democratic party so serious as the charges made and proved by and on themselves.

"The primary campaign leaves one fact absolutely established: Alabama needs a political housecleaning. Can anyone indulge the hope that the present triumphant faction of the Democratic party will be any improvement over its predecessors?

Education Stressed

"Would thoughtful people be glad to see the schools and the school system taken out of partisan machine politics and made the great instrumentality for education that it should be? Or would they prefer to see a continuation of the school book grab and the army of useless officers and employees going up and down the state at the expense of the school fund, while the school terms grow shorter and shorter?

"With a state rich in material resources, we know that a way can be found to provide the funds to keep the public schools open nine months in the year, and if entrusted with power we will find ways to do this. We favor arranging the course of study and the selection of the text books in such a way as will result in benefit to and advancement of the children in school, as well as saving to the parents. Everyone knows that this matter is now handled in the interest of the school book trust, its distributors and agents.

"We pledge ourselves to do all in our power to divorce the schools and public education from partisan politics, sectarian control and school book graft.

Road "Scandal" Scored

"We voted a bond issue five years ago for good roads on the pledge that it would only be spent as the Federal government matched it dollar for dollar, and that highways would be constructed on the most practical and useful routes.

"In violation of this solemn pledge made to the people in order to get their votes, the present administration has spent a large portion of this money on roads and pieces of roads purely as a matter of political expediency and favoritism and under such circumstances that the Federal government would not match many of such expenditures, thus not only squandering our own funds but losing the funds we would have received from that source.

"In place of road building being

EZELL CLOSES FOURTH YEAR AS PASTOR OF CLANTON BAPTISTS

Next Sunday marks the closing of the fourth year of the pastorate of Dr. S. J. Ezell at the Clanton Baptist church. It goes without saying that this period has been one of the most successful in the history of the church from every standpoint.

The spirit of peacefulness and harmony that has existed in the church has been perfect. Not one ripple has disturbed the waters. The guidance and counsel of a great and Godly leader has been the power behind this era of good feeling and great accomplishment among Clanton Baptists.

Notable among the things which the church has done under the leadership of Dr. Ezell is the payment of all debts holding over from the building of the new church, aggregating more than $15,000. Also the purchase of three pianos and lots of other physical equipment for the church plant, and the expenditure of more than $700 in improvements at the parsonage.

There have been 335 additions to the membership of the church since Dr. Ezell became pastor four years ago.

Dr. Ezell came to Clanton totally unknown here, but most highly recommended. He entered into his work with that Christian confidence and determination that can not fail. Every day and every year he has grown in grace and the power of God has bound the people of this whole county to him with ties of Christian love as strong as cords of steel.

MOVED TO LITTLE ROCK

Elder K. R. Haughey and family have gone to Little Rock, Ark., to make their future home. For the past three and a half years Mr. Haughey has been in Canton, engaged in ministerial work for the Alabama Conference of Seventh Day Adventists. He goes to Little Rock to take up this same kind of work for the Arkansas Conference S. D. A.

Mrs. Haughey and little daughter are now in Jacksonville, Fla., visiting relatives, and before going to their home in Little Rock, they will visit in Atlanta and Chattanooga.

Elder Haughey expressed to The Union-Banner that during his stay in Clanton he has enjoyed a very agreeable acquaintance with the people in and around Clanton. He says he has never met people whose acquaintance he enjoyed more than the people of Clanton.

The work which Mr. Haughey has been doing for the Aabama Conference will be taken up now by Mr. Ashlock, who for about a year has been acting as Field Secretary for the Conference. Mr. Ashlock came from Kentucky when he came to Clanton.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL TO OPEN ON SEPTEMBER 6

The Clanton Grammar school will open on September 6th at 8 a. m. All pupils who expect to attend this school this year should be present on the opening date, even though they may not be prepared to attend regularly at this time. Please get your receipt for the incidental fee at Alred Drug Store on the opening day. On account of not having an auditorium, there will be no formal opening.

CHILTON COUNTY SINGING CONVENTION

The Chilton County Singing Convention, using the late books, will meet at the high school auditorium, Jemison, on next Sunday, August 29, at 9:30 a. m. All singers and members especially are requested to attend, and don't forget to bring your song books, and dinner, as you know that we are not expected to feed the people in our conventions as we used to do, for modern methods of travel brings together such large audiences that it makes it impracticeable if not impossible on account of the hardship that it imposes on a community. Come one and all and let's make this convention a big success.

As ever yours, in the song field.—A. H. Glasscock, President; Aiken Collins, Secretary.

PARDON NOTICE

Application will be made at the next regular meeting of the Pardon Board for a permanent pardon and the restoration of all civil and political rights for Henry Bice, who was convicted at the regular term of Circuit Court in Chilton County, and sentenced to serve for murder in the second degree for 30 years, on December 6, 1916.—Henry Bice.

Mrs. Curry invites inspection of Autumn styles and swatches of Franchon Frocks for women and children; also suits for small boys.

First Services Held In New Methodist Church

The congregation of the Clanton Methodist Church worshiped in the main auditorium of their magnificent new church building for the first time last Sunday morning.

The pastor, Dr. C. C. Wilkerson, was in charge of the services, which consisted mostly of special musical numbers by the choir, and a very thoughtful and impressive sermon appropriate to the usages of the new church building and the Christian activities of the members of the church.

For some three or four years past the new building has been in course of construction, and today it stands practically complete. It is a building that speaks volumes for the people who have made its existence possible.

There were about 300 people present Sunday at the services in opening the new auditorium.

Rev. Wilkerson states that the second Sunday in October will be observed by the church as homecoming day. All the former pastors of the church and presiding elders of the district will be invited to come back for the occasion. The ladies will serve dinner on the ground.

A detailed account of the program for the day will be announced between now and that time.

The church expects the pipe organ to be installed by the first of September. Part of it is already here.

The art work in the auditorium is very beautiful. It was executed by Mr. C. V. Malmede, who is the husband of the former Mrs. E. A. Matthews.

BOB CONNELL SOLD FIRST BALE LAST SATURDAY

The first bale of cotton of this season was brought to Clanton last Friday evening by Bob Connell of Refuge. It was ginned by Joe Maddox Saturday morning and old to Mullins & Moore for 20 cents a pound. The bale weighed 363 pounds

A second bale was brought in Saturday by Charley Baker from near White City in Autauga County. His bale weighed 404 pounds. Mr. Baker brought the first bale last year.

Cotton is opening fast. In a few weeks it will be coming at full blast. The Clanton gins are ready for business.

Clanton may well be proud of its church buildings. The Methodist and Baptist churches are both examples of fine architecture that would do credit to any city. As suggested by Rev. Wilkerson in his sermon last Sunday, if the church members of Clanton will let themselves out in the practice of their religion to a degree commensurate with the character of our church buildings, we might expect things to come to pass in a hurry.

AUCTION SALE OF RESIDENCE PROPERTY HERE OCTOBER 6

The Tennessee-Alabama Auction Company has closed a contract with Mrs. P. D. Wilson whereby a valuable and very desirable block of residence property in Clanton will be sold at auction on October the 6th. The property is that which is well known as the Tipton Mullins place comprising practically a whole block between Ninth and Tenth Streets and Fourth and Fifth Avenues west of the railroad.

The block will be cut up into a number of lots suitable for the building of residences. A nice grove of large oak trees covers the place, and gives it a most inviting appearance as a place to live.

We undrstand that the residence once occupied by the Mullins family on the southeast corner of the block will be offered for sale along with the balance of the property.

The sale will be advertised extensively by Col. Millican and his associates, and it is expected that this event will create more interest than any occasion of like kind that has been held in Clanton. The promoters of the sale are experts in the auction business, and their ability coupled with the attractiveness of this piece of property is expected to cause a sensation on that day.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Sessions, Mrs. Mattie Oslin, Grady Reynolds, L. O. Vickers, C. T. Walker, R. M. Hubbard, W. H. Gillespie, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Dennis, Sam Jones, W. B. Foshee, J. M. Mims, T. J. Dorminey, C. L. Wilkins J. N. Scott, Tom Rockett, W. H. Conway, Percy Pitts, L. H. Reynolds, Omar Reynolds, J. L. Dupree.

COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL OPENS SEPTEMBER 6

Prof. Ellis, principal of the Chilton County High School, announces that the 1926-27 session of the school will open on Monday, September 6th. Full particulars of the faculty and school plans for the next year will be announced through the papers next week.

Prof. Ellis wishes to meet the parents of high school students, especially the mothers, on Wednesday afternoon, September 1st, at 3 o'clock, p. m. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss and devise plans for the coming year of the high school.

It is with universal regret that the children of Clanton, as they are marshaling themselves for the opening of another school term, are faced with a situation in which they will have to enter the same old school building that was pronounced miserably inadequate a long while back. We thought a new building was in sight when the town voted a bond issue for school improvement some months ago. But our hopes have gone glimmering. Great pity that Clanton can not afford school buildings equal to the fine houses of our two leading churches.

Tom Ham Killed By A Train In Oklahoma

Tom Ham, a young white man, who ran away from Clanton some months ago in possession of a stolen automobile was reported to have been killed by a freight train in Oklahoma last Saturday.

The dispatch carrying news of the young man's unfortunate circumstances was sent to his father who lives on the Crayton Lenoir place west of Clanton. It stated that he was riding on a freight train and fell underneath the wheels of a car and was crushed very seriously. The physicians found it necessary to amputate his leg but the young man would not agree to it.

The telegram was sent to his father for advice as to what to do, but before the father could communicate with them another message was received stating that the boy was dead.

The young man left Clanton some months ago in possession of an automobile belonging to William Fiquett. The car was recovered over about Tallassee but Ham was not found. He was not heard from until about three weeks ago his people received information that he was at some place in Arkansas. They never heard anything else from him until they received the telegram stating that he had been hurt by the train.

We understand that the father was making efforts Monday to get money to have the body brought back here, but that he was informed that the body had already been buried in Oklahoma.

WILL T. BEAN CANDIDATE FOR STATE SENATE

Will T. Bean of Clanton has been nominated as the Republican candidate for the State Senate in this district which is composed of the counties of Shelby, Chilton and Autauga. His opponent on the Democratic ticket is L. H. Ellis, attorney, of Columbiana.

Mr. Bean is a prominent figure in the Republican party. He is a good man, one of our leading educators, having been Superintendent of Education of Chilton County for a number of years in the past. He is well fitted to represent this district in the State Senate.

OMAR REYNOLDS REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS

Omar L. Reynolds, prominent young attorney, of Clanton, has been nominated as the Republican candidate for Congress in the Fourth Alabama District. He will oppose Lamar Jeffers, present representative and nominee of the Democrats.

Every Dining Car Meal is Served at a Loss to the Railroads

Few, if any, railroads in this country fail to suffer a substantial loss in providing dining-car service for their patrons, in order that they may save time in travel and be afforded every comfort. During the year 1925, the L. & N. served 615,238 meals, at an actual loss of $195,103, or an average of 32 cents each meal. Here are the figures: Expenses—wages, provisions, repairs, etc., $907,900; Revenues from meals, cigars, etc. served, $712,797; Net loss, $195,103.

Each meal, therefore, cost our patrons on an average of only $1.16, or practically the same as they would pay in any first-class hotel or restaurant; yet it cost this Company $1.48 to produce and serve it.

These figures do not include interest on the investment in dining cars, which, fully equipped with linen, china, kitchenware, etc., cost about $52,000 each.

"The Old Reliable" has earned a reputation for the consistent superiority of its dining-car service and the fairness of its prices.

NEW HIGHWAY ON WALCO ROUTE IS SUGGESTED

"What is going to become of Walco?" is a question that is often being asked by people of this section. Now that the road bed has about been taken up below Pine Creek, it looks like that end of the section is positively settled, but is it? That is an opening for a great good to the people in this section, according to Mr. McClelland, of the Eureka Marble Company, who has worked out a most practical plan for the use of the old logging road bed. "See here," said Mr. McClelland,, as he pointed to a road map, "the state has just contracted for a highway from Clanton to Autaugaville into Selma, making a connection with the trans-state road into Mississippi, already completed. This will give the people entering Clanton an outlet to the west over good roads, but it is now almost impossible for the people of this section to reach Clanton. There is an Alabama Power Company road from Clanton to their plant near Mims Ferry. Now, my plan is to have Sylacauga connected with the ferry over the old Walco logging road bed, that runs practically to it. It would cost very little to convert this railroad bed into a first class highway, giving a direct route from north Georgia into Selma and the west. It would open a good territory for development in the cut over lands of the logging company. With the road bed in its present good condition it would now be the cheapest time to do the work before it is damaged through non-use."—Sylacauga News.

Mrs. B. F. Pool and Mrs. W. J. Prowell of Linden were in Clanton last week. While here they made a contract for the Tennessee-Alabama Auction Company to sell the Tipton Mullins block at public auction on October 6th. Full details of the sale will be published later.

IN MEMORY

On Tuesdy, August 17, the death bore away the spirit of our beloved husband and father, Mr. Henry Driver. He was sick only about a week, dying at the Central Alabama Hospital. He bore his suffering with patience. He was 36 years old; he leaves his wife, 6 children, father, mother, 3 brothers and 6 sisters, and a host of friends and relatives to mourn his loss. He was a kind and loving husband and father. It is hard to give him up, but we feel that our loss is Heaven's gain. May we all live so as to meet him some day where there will be no more partings.

We were very grateful for the beautiful floral offerings. His remains were laid to rest at Highland cemetery Wednesday, with Martin in charge. Rev. Trice conducted the funeral service.—Wife and children.

ARMY TO ENLIST MORE MEN

The Union-Banner has received the following letter for publication:

By a recent order from the War Department the Air Service of the Regular Army is now known as the Air Corps, and 1,200 men will be added to the Air Corps each year until 6,000 additional men have been secured.

We now have authority to accept a few men with high school education or better for the Air Corps. This is a fine opportunity for young men who are ambitious to learn airplane motors and flying.

This station (United States Army Recruiting Station, No. 1927½ Second Avenue, Birmingham) also has authority to accept men for service in the Infantry at Forts McPherson, Ga., Benning, Ga., Savannah, Ga., and Charleston, S. C.; the Cavalry at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and the Field Artillery at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Enlisted men of the new peace time regular Army may now learn one of 22 trades, free of extra charge; pay goes on just the same.

In the Army the enlisted man receives pay from $21.00 to $126.00 per month, and free board, lodging, clothing, medical and dental service.

Before so very long we hope to send one of our canvassers to Clanton, so that he may get in personal touch with prospective applicants for enlistment.

Famous Family Returns To Power In Alabama

Winning by a safe majority over his opponents our next Governor of Alabama is Colonel Bibb Graves of Montgomery. The political aspects of his nomination have been widely discussed before and since the Primary but it is interesting and appropriate that the romantic and historical significance of the Colonel's success be remarked upon, for these aspects of his victory should be of special interest to those Alabamians who are rooted deep in the soil of the State and are the direct heirs to its traditions.

COL. BIBB GRAVES

The nomination of Bibb Graves, soldier and lawyer, means the return of an old and famous family to political power in Alabama. The return to power of that old family is doubly emphasized by the circumstance that both Colonel Graves and his wife, who was Dixie Bibb, are distantly related by virtue of the Bibb blood stream which has long flowed in many directions through Alabama. During the first 60 years of the history of Alabama the Bibbs were prominent and influential in politics. At all times one or more Bibbs have been more or less conspicuous among their fellows, sometimes under the Bibb name and sometimes under another name, but always acknowledging a biological debt to the Bibbs.

Take them as they come—Dr. William Wyatt Bibb, son of a Virginia Colonial officer and Legisator, was a Congressman and Senator from Georgia. He was much esteemed in Georgia, and left a permanent impression upon the State. Bibb County, in which Macon is situated, was named for him. In the end, however, he was beaten for the Senate, and President Monroe appointed him as Governor of the Alabama territory. In 1819 when Alabama was admitted as a State he became its first Governor, but served only a few months when death removed him from office.

Governor Bibb's brother, Thomas, planter and merchant and citizen of Limestone County, presided over the Constitutional convention of 1819 and so helped to give the State its first organic law. He was president of the State Senate, and upon his brother's death, automatically succeeded to the Governorship.

But that isn't all. There was old Benajah Smith Bibb, another brother. He was judge of the Montgomery circuit court, representative and Senator in the State Legislature from Montgomery County at one time, and another time from Morgan County. His wife, it is interesting to note, was a sister of Governor Gilmer of Georgia.

But there was still another brother who rose above the crowd. John Dandridge Bibb was once State Senator from Montgomery County. He died in Mississippi.

Colonel Joseph B. Bibb, commanding the 23rd Alabama in the Confederate Army, was a nephew of the others, and a good man.

The surviving Bibbs themselves do not know how many Bibbs are now living in Alabama, but we suspect that if the truth were known the cousins, uncles and aunts and in-laws of the family constituted the balance of power in the recent primary. There is almost no old family in Montgomery, for instance, that is not now or does not face the prospect of one day becoming related to the Bibbs.

The Bibbs came out of Wales, but arrived in this country early enough (like the Graveses) for the family to be represented creditably in each of the wars that have been fought since 1775.—Wetumpka Herald.

FROM STUMPS HILLS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me a little space to express my appreciation to the voters of Chilton County for what they have done for me in the past. Although I was defeated, I was defeated by a mighty good man—a man that I know and have known all his life as a high-toned gentleman. I am ready to do all I can for him or any of the other nominees of the Republican party. Now, let's stand by our party, regardless of our own selfish ends—we, as good Republicans, can not afford to do anything else.

We have a fine corn crop; cotton not so good; we have a fine crop of watermelons, and we have the protracted meetings. There is no excuse for the Stumps Hills brethren not getting better every day of their lives. We have everything to make us happy. Those who want to serve the Lord can go to a protracted meeting, and those who want to serve the evil one can go to the lick log or still and get some white ink and fly up and down the road in their automobiles. So you see we are in good shape in Stumps Hills; if anybody wants to be happy just come to Stumps Hills.—T. J. Dorminey.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends and relatives for their many deeds of kindness, and their liberal contributions during the sickness and death of our beloved husband and father, Mr. Henry Driver. May God's richest blessings rest upon each and every one of them.—Mrs. Henry Driver and Children.

Communicate with any of the Arrangement Committee for further particulars.—R. L. Duffey, J. D. Armstrong, Q. C. Meroney, Arrangement Committee. 2t.

FROM J. H. WOOD, CANDIDATE FOR BOARD OF REVENUE

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space to thank the Republican delegation from dirtrict two, and also the Republican delegates from all parts of Shelby County for the confidence expressed in me in the county convention held August 12, 1926, in which I received at their hands the nomination for member of the Board of Revenue from the Second district. I am unable to express my appreciation in mere words.

As I have been told that many people are inquiring what sort of man I am, I will outline a few things for which I stand.

First, I will say that I believe in pure and undefiled religion. Second, I believe in good schools and good roads, and if elected I shall do all I am able to do to better the schools and roads of Shelby County.

I believe every officer ought to be a servant of the people, and not the people servants of the officers. If I am elected as a member of the board of revenue, I shall be a servant of the people of Shelby County, and I expect to render full measure of service to the people.

I do not find anywhere in the blessed Book of God where He showed any difference in men. He treated them all alike. I do not believe public officials of this day should show any differences among men.

If elected I shall do my best to serve the people to the best advantage and the interest of Shelby County, and nothing short of that will please man or God.

Now, come on boys and let's elect the Republican ticket in November, and have better roads and better schools and better government for Shelby County in every respect. With best wishes for the success of the Republican ticket, I am, yours very truly.—J. H. Wood.

J. D. COLLINS THANKS VOTERS

Editor Union-Banner:

I wish to say to the people through your paper that I thank them for giving me their votes on August 10. There is no one who appreciates the help of the people more than I. I want to say that the campaign has so far been pleasant. Everywhere I went the people treated me nice and seemed glad to see me. I hope to be elected by a good majority in November. If so, I expect to try to make the whole people as good a sheriff as they have ever had, but without the help of the people the sheriff is almost helpless. I have no ill will toward the ones who supported Mr. Cleckler—that was their right and privilege. I wish to thank Mr. Cleckler, who was my opponent, for the nice way he treated me. I never heard of one word of disrespect he had to say about me. I feel sure Mr. Cleckler will stand by the entire Republican ticket and help to elect every one on the ticket. I hope and believe the people are satisfied with the nominees. While everyone did not get their hoice, just be satisfied and say there will be another day yet. Some of our political enemies will come around and tell you that you were mistreated, and try to make you sore, in order to defeat the ticket. Pay that no attention; just stand pat and let's elect the whole ticket.—J. Dudley Collins.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES FOR ALABAMA STATE OFFICES

At the State Republican Convention in Birmingham last week, the following candidates were nominated for the state offices to oppose the Democratic candidates in November:

For United States Senator: Erskine Ramsay, of Brmingham.

For Governor: Dallas Smith, of Opelika.

Lieutenant Governor: Sumter Cogswell, of St. Clair County.

Secretary of State: Charles B. Phillips, of Clay County.

State Auditor: Robert C. Lowery, of Randolph County.

State Treasurer: L. A. Carroll, of Geneva County.

State Superintendent of Education: Mrs. Mattie Owen, of Blount County.

Commissioner of Agriculture: G. R. Horton, of DeKalb.

Public Service Commission: Oscar Drake, of Winston County, and G. N. Huckabee, of Lauderdale County.

Justice Supreme Court: Alex C. Birch, and E. H. Dryer, both of Jefferson County.

Justice Court of Appeals: Jerre Murphy, of Madison County.

Attorney General: J. Foy Guin, of Franklin County.

SOUTH ORIGINALLY WAS FOR PROTECTIVE TARIFF

The South was originally a protective tariff question, and the first great Southern leaders of the country were protectionists, according to Harry M. Wurzbach, the active Republican Congressman from Texas, who asserts further, in the current issue of the National Republic, that the South has as great a need for protection now as it has ever had in its history. In concluding his interesting article, Mr. Wurzbach says:

"Now finally in summing up it may be stated first that the great leaders of the South in the early days, Madison, Jefferson and Jackson, were protectionists, second, that before the Civil War and before the slavery question had absorbed all other issues, the South was at least equally divided in sentiment on the tariff, and that, too, in the face of the fact that the protectionists were at a disadvantage upon the issue, the Democratic Party there having espoused the popular and growing pro-slavery cause of the South.

"It is a matter of common knowledge and needs no proof that during the period of 1836 to 1848 the South had little if any foreign competition in the American market so far as its slave labor-produced farm and ranch products are concerned. Today the South depends upon free labor for its production with high labor cost, and it is forced to meet in home markets the competition of the world. Then it had no manufacturing worth mentioning; now it is in about the same "infant industry" position that New England occupied a hundred years ago, and the South is just in as great need of its manufacturing interests being protected now as New England was then.

"My conclusion is that if the South had any reason at all in the past to favor the policy of protection it has all of those reasons and many more to favor it now."

An official of the Government Labor Bureau at Ft. Worth, Texas, has requested the farmers of that state to organize for systematic handling of labor to obtain cotton pickers and "avert a probable serious shortage of labor to gather the crop."

THE REYNOLDS RESOLUTION IN REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

A great furore was created in Alabama last week by the publication in the daily newspapers of what was said to be the intention of Judge L. H. Reynolds of Clanton to introduce in the Republican state convention a resolution bitterly attacking the Ku Klux Klan. Much speculation was indulged over what the Republican convention would do with the proposal.

Later developments have borne out the prediction which was made by some that perhaps the original idea of attacking the Klan was more the hope of the Democratic newspapers which were spreading the propaganda than the intentions of Republicans who held representation in the convention.

The Republican convention did not entertain any remote idea of making an attack on the Klan. Neither did Judge Reynolds go to the convention with such a resolution as he was reported to be carrying.

On last Tuesday morning before he left for Birmingham, Judge Reynolds submitted to The Union-Banner a copy of the resolution which he intended to introduce and which he did introduce. Part of his resolution was embodied in the Republican platform. No part of it was directed as an attack against the Klan.

Following is the Reynolds resolution in full, about which all the unnecessary fuss was kicked up by the Democratic papers:

We establish ourselves firmly upon the fundamental principles upon which this government was established, adhering unqualifiedly to the Constitution of our National and State Government.

We believe men and women should be elevated to office because of merit and qualification only.

We favor nine months free school. We are opposed to increasing taxes, but advocate a decrease in the overhead expenses of the school system, and that close scrutiny should be given to every dollar that the greatest possible portion go to the school child. It is an astounding fact that the increase in school age for the past ten years has been about 10%, and school attendance about 23%, and the increase in appropriations over 200%, yet the country school child is getting less education than ten years ago. We believe that if the school finances were now economically and properly administered that a full nine months school could be given every school child in Alabama without raising additional taxes.

We advocate that business principles and methods be installed in the school system of Alabama, and that politics be taken out.

We declare ourselves opposed to working convicts in the mines, and advocate removing them at the earliest possible moment that means can be provided for caring for them.

We declare ourselves in favor of good roads and that the movement for good roads in Alabama be not retarded, but that the work be continued until every County in Alabama have a good road system.

We urge the women voters of the State to look well to the interest of the State before they vote. If the women voters will take an independent stand for the right, their influence and vote will be a controlling factor in election, but to follow in the foot-steps of their predecessors is to make their vote and influence negligible. It would be well for the women of the State to consider whether their influence is now going backward or forward.

The old time drunkard used to fall into the ditch. He still does so, but now he takes his automobile with him.

With more corn and other feed crops, Alabama farmers can afford to make less cotton this year.

A lot of waste can be avoided by using good judgment and good methods in harvesting all crops.

It is said that women don't wear as much jewelry as they used to, but then, the same thing applies to everything else.

PRIMARY PUTS PERSONALITY ABOVE PRINCIPLE

Reason for the increasing expenditures in primaries is given by the National Republic in that party politics is no longer a matter of principle but of personal ambition. In commenting on this change the editor says:

"Largely by reason of the direct primary party politics is shifting from a question of educating public opinion in behalf of given principles and policies to one of promoting personal ambitions and procuring place and power for individuals, organizations and blocs. An inevitable accompaniment of this new form of politics is the excessive use either of money or official power to control primaries and elections. The use of offices to promote candidates or the power of political organizations is indirectly the use of public money for that purpose, and for that reason is no more scandalous than vast expenditures of money made necessary in many instances to equalize conditions as between those who have patronage and newspapers behind them and those who have not. Rigid limitation of expenditures in behalf of candidates is proposed as a means of reforming the evils accentuated by the direct primary. Such limitations would work unequally in many cases. Assume the case of a candidate for office in a city where the political machine is enabled to maintain a huge organization thru the distribution of offices, and where the press may be hostile to him. He can overcome the handicap of the patronage controlled by the opposition only through the employment of workers. He can overcome the handicap of a hostile press only through the purchase of advertising space, or flooding the mails with printed matter. If there is to be rigid limitation of campaign expenditures, even tho legitimately expended, then there would have to be in all fairness, complete prohibition of the activity of municipal, state and federal employes in politics, and laws requiring the newspapers to give every opposing candidate as much space in their columns as they give without charge to the candidates they favor.

"We need to get back to the system of making campaigns conflicts of public opinion upon questions of principle, rather than mere struggles between individuals for place and power."

CAN'T REMEMBER HISTORY

Who was the hard-hearted creditor a quarter of a century ago, when the foreign Powers presented China with a bill for suppressing the anti-foreign outbreak of 1900? Was it Uncle Sam? The bill he put in was so moderate that his European associates called him not a Shylock but a silly old sentamentalist. When he subsequently returned a large portion of this indemnity to China he was severely criticized in Great Britain and on the Continent for setting an example which other countries could not follow without giving up money which they needed in their business. Some of this money went into armaments that figured in the war for which Europe is now so reluctant to pay. The Powers which "squeezed" China in 1901 and which now protest against paying the United States a moity of what they borrowed from it must have short memories.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

A Domicile for All Eternity

One of the surest tests of the excellence of a story is whether or not it speedily reaches the stage. Some stories no doubt originate there—born in the minds of patter-comedians or monologists; but the majority I think are built up on a foundation of fact elsewhere and then by adoption go into the theater.

Here is a sample. I heard it years ago; it was told as an actual occurrence. Since then I have heard it at least thrice in the music halls, slightly altered in form but basically the same. The first version, as I recall it, had to do with a couple of darkies in Memphis.

One of them, who posed as bad, had just announced his intention of breaking into a chitterling supper where his presence was not desired. His companion followed him to the door.

"I'll be waitin' fur you outside yere," he stated.

"Ef you ain't gwine in wid me tain't no use fur you to be hangin' 'bout," said the truculent one.

"Oh, yas dey is," said the friend. "I'll wait 'round to carry you to yo' home after dem niggers in dere gits through wukkin' on you."

"Not a chance!" proclaimed the first negro, vainglorioously; "'sides w'ich I ain't got no home."

"Oh, dat's alright," murmured his friend softly, "I'm gwine dig you one."

The easiest way for a farmer to get rich is to find a nice oil well on his land.

England is expending on education about 75,000,000 pounds of public money every year, or in round figures about $365,000,000. Teachers' pensions call for 3,374,000 pounds. The average pension is about 150 pounds, and the retirement age is 62.

Briefly, Alabama farmers expect to make more corn, hay, sweet potatoes, more sorghum syrup, but less cotton this year than they made in 1925. Peanut production will be lower also, while sugar cane syrup is due to be about the same.

METHODIST S. S. CONFERENCE

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 24.—The plans are complete for the Methodist Sunday School Conference convening in Auburn next Tuesday night, August 31, and remaining in session thru Thursday noon, September 2. The Auburn arrangement committee is planning for an attendance of at least 1,000 people from the 600 Sunday schools of central and south Alabama and west Florida. Prominent churchmen from over the south will speak and special musical attractions will be presented.

ALABAMA COTTON CROP REPORT

Auburn, Ala., Aug. 25.—An Alabama cotton crop of 1,073,000 bales, or 284,000 less than the state produced last year, is indicated by the condition of the crop on August 16, according to F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician cooperating with Alabama Extension Service, and the State Department of Agriculture. This forecast is for 14,000 bales more than were expected on August 1.

The condition of the crop on August 16 is estimated at 65% of normal, compared with 70% on this date last year, and 67% on the first of this month. Best conditions are found in the northern districts.

Conditions on August 16 by crop-reporting districts follow: northwest, 70; Tennessee valley, 71; mineral, 73; northeast, 68; east blackbelt, 62; west blackbelt, 61; east central, 62; southwest, 73; south central, 63; and southeast, 62.

The yield per acre indicated by the condition on August 16 is 137 pounds, a gain of two pounds over that expected from the condition on August 1. This is much less than the acre-yield of 185 pounds which the state made last year, and is less than the 154-pound average of 1924.

More than 500 counts, made in fields of all sections of the state about the middle of this month showed an average of 4.2 safe bolls per plant, as against 6.5 per stalk safe last year at this date. This reflects both the lateness of the crop, and the hopper damage, as well as poor fruiting due to rainy weather.

While the crop over most of the state has reached a stage where hopper damage is past, the cotton is now being injured considerably by the boll weevil, and the army, or leaf worm.

For the state as a whole the per cent of weevils present compared with this date last year is 115. The serious weevil damage is confined largely to the southern and central sections. Weevil infestation in most of the northern counties is even lighter than last year.

The army worm appeared in the northwest corner of the state shortly after the first of the month, and have spread until they are now present in numbers in nearly all counties of north and west Alabama. On account of the lateness of the crop, the worms are causing more than usual worry. Most farmers are detemined to poison them, but have been hampered by the rainy weather. With the bottom and middle crops cut short by the hopper, growers will make an effort to prevent the army worm from desroying the top crop, and injuring the grade and staple, as well as the quantity of the other cotton.

FROM S. M. PATE

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space to express my thanks to the voters of the county, although it will be impossible for me to express my thanks in words. As you all know, it makes me feel good to think that I had as many supporters as I did. I want to thank every one who voted for me, and I also want every one that felt it was his duty to vote for Mr. Vinson not to think in the least that I am sore with you, for everyone has his choice and he should be allowed that privilege Now, I want everyone to come out and help us elect our entire ticket in November. I am going to do all I can in every way honestly to be elected.—S. M. Pate.

FROM KIN M. VINSON

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words to the Republican voters of Chilton County.

I want to thank everyone for the consideration given me, and especially I want to thank those who saw fit to cast their votes for me.

This is the second defeat that I have taken in the primary elections of our county, and I want to tell you that I am just as good a Republican today as I have ever been, and that I have no ill feeling toward anyone. I made a clean and fair campaign and you will always find me to stand for the right thing, and for fairness and justice. I can't say now whether I will ever be a candidate any more or not, but in event I should offer myself any time in the future I will continue as I have in the past—be fair with everyone and let the majority rule.

Now that we have our men nominated doesn't mean that we can go to sleep on the job; there is still work that we can do, and let's all, as Republicans, work together and elect the entire Republican ticket in November. —K. M. Vinson.

MRS. EMMA E. MIMS

Mrs. Emma E. Mims was the wife of William A. Mims, and daughter of the late Benjamin W. Scarbrough, who came to Alabama from North Carolina when a young man.

She was born March 23, 1861, in what is now known as Poplar Springs community. She was married to William A. Mims December 26, 1878. Practically all of her married life was spent at the place of her death.

Mrs. Mims accepted Christ as her Savior early in life, affiliating with the Methodist denomination. Later she became a member with Maple Springs Baptist Church, where she remained a constant and active member until her death.

She was the mother of 12 children, all of whom she saw reach mature age, and nine of whom are still living. Those who survive her are Albert F., Oscar D., Benjamin E., and Dacil R. Mims, all of Birmingham; Mrs. Lucinda Dunlap, Mrs. Belle Z. Coggins, Mrs. Alsie Parrish, Chester G., and J. Z. Mims, all of Clanton.

The body of Mrs. Mims was laid to rest in Maple Springs cemetery last Wednesday.

For fear some of our citizens may not know about it in time to be on hand, we beg to say that we have heard it rumored that there is to be a city election in Clanton some time during September, in which there is to be chosen a mayor and town council for the next succeeding two years. If we can find out any of the exact details we will publish same for your benefit.

IN MEMORY

About 4 o'clock last Sunday afternoon, August 15, the death angel carried away the spirit of Ethel Rea Blackmon. She was 19 years old, the oldest of four children at home. She leaves a father, four sisters, Mrs. Dora Hubbard of Marion, and Misses Anna Mae, Ruth, and Mary Sue, of Clanton.

She joined the Baptist church of Thorsby about 4 years ago, and has lived a Christian life ever since. To know her was to love her. Just before she passed away she told her brothers and sisters not to grieve for her, for she was going to rest in a better world where sin and suffering never come.

The remains were laid to rest in Pleasant Grove cemetery Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Ezell conducting the funeral service.

CLARENCE EZRA FOSHEE

Clarence Ezra, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Foshee, died last Saturday morning at the age of eleven days. The body was buried in the Clanton cemetery.

Child-birth

Here is a wonderful message to all expectant mothers!

When the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy, "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says:

"With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used 'Mother's Friend' and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes." Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Bradfield Regulator Co., BA 46, Atlanta, Ga., for a free illustrated book containing information every expectant mother should have. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all drug stores—everywhere.

NOTES OF TRAVEL

(By S. E. Norton)

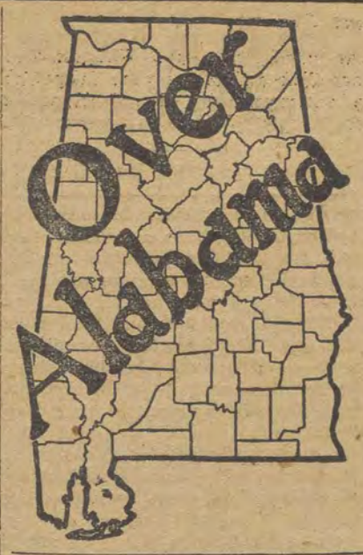
Since our last letter we have spent about four days in the far-famed Catskill Mountains, where Washington Irving laid the scene for his legend of Rip van Winkle. Here, too, John Burroughs, our greatest American naturalist, who has done so much to make America's great out-of-doors and its teeming population of animals, birds and insects known to humanity, now sleeps amid the scenes of his boyhood home, and where in his rustic summer home he entertained his friends, including such illustrious Americans as Henry Ford, Edison, and Firestone; where Helen Gould Shepherd has her summer home; where the United States government has some hundreds of square miles of reservation as a national park, and where the waters of mountain and valley are impounded by great dams forming, 20 miles in length and of varying width, great artificial lakes, as a source of supply for the great city of New York, with its 6,000,000 inhabitants, 125 miles away, to which the water is conducted by gravity through a conduit the size of which may best be understood by the fact that a section of it over 18 miles long just opened this month was inspected from end to end by officials of the Board of Water Supply of the City of New York, riding inside the great concrete tube in a Ford car. In spite of the great distance the water travels the elevation of these great resevoirs is so geat that there is no need for a pump of any sort to deliver the water to the top of the highest buildings in New York City, upwards of 599 feet above the sidewalk. We will have to leave this subject right here, because what we saw and learned at the office of the engineers in charge of construction can not be told in the space alloted for my letters in The Union-Banner.

The Catskill Mountains can scarcely be called a range of mountains but rather a mountainous area comprising approximately 1,000 square miles, located in the central part of eastern New York state, and beginning about 10 miles west of the Hudson River they range in height from a few hundred feet to 4,000 feet, and are for the most part verdure clad. They afford a pleasing variety of beautiful scenery, and on account of their accessibility on good state highways, are very popular as summer home sites, and for hordes of tourists and campers. Many farms on the mountain sides and in the valleys seem to be chiefly devoted to the dairy industry, and must be exceedingly productive during the short growing season, as indicated by the enormous barns for storage of a winter's supply of food for their stock. The thrifty farmers often make substantial addition to their income by taking summer boarders at prices that would an Alabama farmer gasp for breath until he realized that these people really have a very short season in which to "make hay," and, also, that prices for commodties and labor are about three times what he is accustomed to pay. The state highways are usually kept open for one way traffic during the winter, but anywhere within this mountain area, away from the state roads, the people of this mountain area are liable to be snow bound for six months in the year, and a lot of cold weather for two months more.

We left Kenvil, N. J., about 7 a. m. standard time, and arrived at our destination in Grand Gorge, N. Y., about 3 p. m., having traveled about 165 miles, stopping an hour for dinner at Kingston. As we stepped from our car in front of the home of Rev. and Mrs. Edward Tracey we received not only a cordial welcome, but a great surprise. Mrs. Tracey is a niece of the writer whom we had not seen for 25 years. When she knew we could come to see her she wrote to her sister, the wife of another Methodist minister, about 200 miles away, and she had arrived before us with her husband and two children, making all together a very delightful house party. We had visited Rev. and Mrs. White at their home in Wellsville, N. Y., when we were east four years ago. Both of these delightful ladies are so situated that they seldom see any of their own kin-folks and their gracious hospitality made us feel at home immediately.

We soon saw that they were all keyed up and excited over something we knew nothing about, but they very much wanted us to know about it by personal contact, yet feared we would be too tired, after riding all day, to go 21 miles further to Bloomfield, where Mr. Tracey had been pastor of the Methodist church for 4 years previous to going to Grand Gorge last spring. The great event was the annual chicken-clam barbecue, which the said Methodist church was putting on that particular evening for the fourth consecutive year, an event which Mr. and Mrs. Tracey had greatly helped to inaugurate as a means of raising money for the church. When they had told us what was on we said we were "game" and would be glad to go with them. So we rested a couple of hours, then our whole party, filling two automobiles, set out and soon arrived at the church.

We enjoyed this "clam bake" very much, and listened to a full explanation of preparations for these occasions. We noted no guests were more warmly welcomed than our host and hostess, and even we were permitted to bask in the warmth of it.



Sereno G. was somewhat skeptical about having a good time on a week end visit in the home of a Methodist minister, but we assured him they were pretty apt to be human. He subsided, and after he got into the game we failed to note any ennui on his part, even with two of them to cope with, and on the way home while his mother and I were discussing how much we had enjoyed our visit, he admitted that he, too, had had a good time.

STRANGE EAR OF CORN

Tom Powell of Beat 16 has added another curious specimen to our collection. It is an ear of corn, the cob of which has seven different branches. There is a large ear about the normal size. At the base of this big ear there are six "shoots" or "suckers" of different lengths, each one bearing grains of corn.

Dr. O. E. Wilson of Ensley was in Clanton several days the past week. He was here to spend a short vacation with his father, Uncle Wash Wilson, of Falakto.

Philip Horn of Montgomery was a visitor to Clanton last Thursday.

"I'VE waited in line for a Sale. I've come to regard the elbow as a deadly weapon, and I know the law of 'a toe for a rib' on bargain day.

"I've bought things without knowing the name of the maker—and sometimes I didn't get stung.

"But when it comes to a Tire—give me a pedigree, the name of the firm that made it and a standard warranty.

"No foundlings for me. I want a tire that is made by a firm that admits it, that backs it with the standard warranty, a United States USCO, and it doesn't cost one penny more."

Clean Up In Alabama Urged by Republicans

carried on as a strictly business proposition, it has been a political football, and used for the upbuilding of a political machine, and the net result is we have about one-half the roads we should have had, and road building has been almost discontinued while a wild scramble has been staged as to who should enjoy the rich prerequisite of handling another large bond issue.

"Road building and maintenance should be taken out of politics and conducted as a great business affair. Funds for the building and maintenance of these roads should be provided so far as possible by the collection of a reasonable tax on gasoline and motor vehicles, but due care should be taken to avoid making such taxes too burdensome on these modern necessities of travel and commerce.

"Additional funds should be procured by such reasonable bond issue as may be necessary to carry on with expedition the building of roads, at all times having due care for the safeguarding of the state's finances.

"Convict Leasing Blot"

"The convict lease system is a blot on the good name and repute of the state. We have for years declared for its abolition; we favor its abolition now instead of cajoling the people with insincere promises every four years as Democratic officials have been doing.

"We believe all good citizens should do their part in making this country more law abiding by themselves observing and obeying all of the state and national laws and insisting that others do likewise, and we believe in the strict enforcement of all the laws both state and national through the duly constituted and legal channels only, and where necessary we favor the enactment of such additional laws as may be necessary to make more effective the administration of the law, and the eradication of evils and abuses.

"We establish ourselves firmly upon the fundamental principles upon which this government was established, adhering unqualifiedly to the constitutions of our national and state governments.

"We believe men and women should be elevated to office because of merit and qualifications for office only."

The last paragraph was interpreted as a guarded hint to Ku Klux Klan politicians. A resolution condemning the Klan was stifled in committee.

"Abuse Of Pardon Power"

"It is a reproach to the state for the pardon and parole power to be exercised as a matter of favor to politicians or as reward to political or personal henchmen. We do not disapprove of the liberal use of the parole power when exercised for the good of the state and the encouragement of the convice, but to pay political debts through the abuse of this sacred trust is reprehensible beyond all expression.

"We view with enthusiasm the administration of our national government by Calvin Coolidge. Never before have any people anywhere, at any time, attained to such happiness as in the United States. Under his fiscal policies taxes are lessened, the treasury overflows, and the great war debt of billions melts away; while the people engage in the pleasing dispute over which is the more prosperous, labor or capital.

"Following a time in which the nation and the people had become accustomed to national and personal extravagance to a degree that was a threatening peril to our existence, President Coolidge, as the leader of the nation, not only by a clarion call of words, but by actions, has inaugurated economies and retrenchments in national expenditures which have already resulted in the saving of many hundreds of thousands of dollars to taxpayers.

Coolidge Endorsed

We believe in the administration and policies of President Coolidge, and respectfully commend them to the thinking people of Alabama, who have so long been accustomed to extravagance, wastefulness and heavy taxation, by each succeeding Democratic administration, all elected on platforms pledging economy. It is a regrettable fact that by the relief afforded us from national taxation, due to the wise federal policies of the Republican party, the Democratic state, county and municipal governments in Alabama have only been encouraged to reach deeper into the taxpayers' pockets.

"We reaffirm our unfaltering belief in the principle of a protective tariff. The history of this great country from the time of Washington to Coolidge completely vindicates this wise policy. We rejoice that our own people here in Alabama, and in the great industrial Birmingham district are now reaping a share of the prosperity that prevails throughout the country, due to the Republican tariff policy enacted into law. We rejoice that the Republican party has given protection to iron, steel, farm, poultry and other products of Alabama, and has provided work for idle labor in mills, factories, shops and on the farms, thereby bringing back prosperity to the bankers, the merchants and every class of people in this state.

Women Voters Courted

"We urge women voters to look well to the interest of the state before they vote. If the women voters will take an independent stand for the right, their influence and vote will be a controlling factor in election, but to follow in the footsteps of their predecessors is to make their vote and influence negligible. It would be well for the women to consider whether their influence is now going backward or forward.

"We appeal to the thinking patriotic people of all classes who have no selfish ax to grind to join with us in registering a protest against the degenerate condition into which the Democratic party has fallen.

"If entrusted with power, we should exert our utmost endeavors to put into effect the foregoing policies and to free Alabama from the political abuses from which it is suffering."

The Ladies Guild will meet today (Thursday) at the home of Mrs. A. K. Horn, next to the Congregational church.

There will be preaching in English next Sunday morning at the Lutheran church.

Mr. P. W. Horn of Birmingham passed through Thorsby Thursday evening on his way to Clanton to get his wife and son, who have been visiting there for several weeks. Mr. Horn stopped in Thorsby long enough to shake hands with old friends.

Miss Lorena Prim returned Monday from a week's stay with Union church near Mt. Creek, where she has been working in the Christian Endeavor Society.

Miss Essie Belle Wiliis and mother returned last week from a visit to friends in Billingsley. Miss Willis is back at her post in Harper's store.

Mr. E. W. Butler and wife were the guests of Mr. A. K. Horn for dinner last Sunday.

Messrs. Rascoe Maddox, Sumner Gerald, and Miss Agnes Gerald all returned home Wednesday morning from Nashville, Tenn., where they have been attending Peabody College for teachers.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Self of Birmingham, who have been spending a few days at Lock 12, passed through Thorsby on their way home and spent Sunday with Mrs. Self's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Peterson.

Rev. J. P. Lowery and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Billingsley attended the Shelby County convention on Tuesday.

ADVENTIST CONFERENCE CLOSED LAST SUNDAY

The annual conference and camp meeting of the Seventh Day Adventists, which continued ten days here, closed Sunday night. The officials of the conference are very much pleased with the results of the meeting.

Returned missionaries from several foreign fields were present, and gave very interesting lectures. Among them were Elder Devinney, from China and the Phillipine Islands; Elder Nethery, from Europe; and Eld. Moon, recently from Mexico. They related many impressive instances of how the Gospel is saving and civilizing the heathen in those benighted countries.

The personal second coming of Christ and preparation for that event was the keynote of the teaching during the ten days. One speaker said, in part: "According to appointment with His people on earth, Jesus Christ will soon return to take his people to Heaven—to the mansions He has gone to prepare for them. At His second coming the righteous dead will be resurrected, and the righteous living translated. The unsaved will be slain by the brightness of His coming. This event opens the millenium period of one thousand years during which time Satan will spend his vacation in 'no man's land'—the earth depopulated." The speaker earnestly urged all to prepare for that event.

The closing consecration was conducted Sabbath morning, by Elder Behrens. Almost everyone, young and old, came forward and entered into a new covenant with God.

About 60 tents were required to accomodate the visitors and delegates. Adequate preparation had been made for the comfort of all who attended, in small tents for living purposes, and a large cafeteria in connection.

With many "good-byes" and "good wishes" the camp broke early Monday morning, and in a short time the delegates were on their way home.

The president of the conference, Elder C. B. Stephenson, wishes to express to the people of Clanton appreciation of the Conference Committee for the many courtesies extended to the delegates while they sojourned in our beautiful little city.

GRAGG REVIEWS THE PAST SIX YEARS

"I am not a candidate for re-election as Mayor of Clanton," was the statement of Dr. V. J. Gragg Tuesday in discussing the forthcoming city election to be held in Clanton Monday, September 20th. Continuing his statement, he said:

"During the past six years I have put forth an honest, sincere, and untiring effort as Mayor to give to our city an administration of public affairs that was in keeping with our opportunities for expansion and permanent improvement. I would not fail at this time to assert that this effort has been shared by the men who have sat with me on the town Council. I would rather prefer to say that whatever of progress our town has made has been due to the splendid and faithful efforts of the council. These men have studied their duties closely and followed sound business policies, and thereby have achieved for our town a record of which I am not ashamed."

The statement of Dr. Gragg, as he warmed up the subject, included a bit of figures which we jotted down hastily, thinking that the same might be interesting reading for the people of Clanton.

Waterworks

"You will recall," he said, "that six years ago rather than the exception, it was the rule that we were out of water about half the time. We realized that if Clanton should have a water system worth while, it must be a system that could be depended upon for water when water was needed. Consequently, one of the first problems we tackled was to put the city water system on a dependable scale.

"Since that time we have installed three pumps, we have doubled the depth of the well and installed curbing. We have reclaimed the underground reservoir which had been abandoned, and have had it in use since its reclamation.

"We have laid 20 blocks of cast iron water main for fire protection and water supply, all at a cost of $18,000. Before this there were 23 blocks of water main. The town has bought $1,000 worth of fire hose in the past six years.

"Four years ago there were 184 water stations in our system. Today there are 315 stations. We now have, and have had for many months, an ample water supply, by virtue of which the property owners of our town are enjoying the material benefits of a lower insurance rate. Our water has been tested by different chemical experts at different times, and has been in every instance pronounced wholesome and pure."

Streets and Sidewalks.

"What can you tell us about the street and sidewalk business, Doctor?"

In reply to this question the Mayor stated:

"There has been spent for paving streets and sidewalks alone, in the neighborhood of $61,650, which is less money for the amount of paving built than we have been able to find in the records of any other town of equal size in Alabama.

"Besides this, there has been much street grading all over town, much pipe laid, and culverts built at a cost of approximately $20,000 for the six year period.

"At the beginning there was no street working equipment—not $10 worth. The council saw much street work needing to be done, and nothing with which to even start. There was not a vestige of a street building, working, or improvement organization. Uncle Jim Baker was the whole force.

"The council set about this big problem cautiously, yet determined to make a show. We have bought more than $10,000 worth of machinery for building and maintaining the streets. Many new streets have been opened and unused ones reclaimed—and all of them have been worked.

Garbage Truck

"The sanitary condition of our town has been greatly improved by the employment of a scavenger force with a truck, which goes to all parts of the town and gathers up the refuse and garbage and carries it to the swamp where it is burned. We have had splendid co-operation among our citizens in this work, for which I want to express the thanks of the Mayor and Councilmen. For after all has been said and done, the best town we can have is a clean town and a healthful town."

Other Expenditures.

When asked about some other financial matters the Mayor did not have all the figures in his mind, but stated that an audit of the town's business operations had been made by a certified public accountant every year, adding: "These reports are on file in the city clerk's office, where you will find them open to public inspection. I will state, however, that we have spent for annual interest on waterworks bonds $7,500 in 6 years. There has also been redeemed $7,000 of school bonds with interest, besides about $7,500 which the town has contributed to our two schools during this period.

"In addition to this there has been paid $17,000 worth of sewerage bonds and $15,000 worth of street bonds. And the town is now carrying about $4,000 worth of sidewalk assessments not bonded. In other words the town has done $4,000 worth of sidewalks for citizens and property owners which is charged to the property owners 'on open account,' so to speak.

"The number of street lights in the town has been about doubled in the past six years"

Our Vision.

"The Mayor and Council have had visions of better days for Clanton. We have made an effort to improve every opportunity for doing good for Clanton and Clanton people. We have hoped it could be truthfully said when we retired from our places that our town is a better town for our having served it as best we could under the circumstances. Soon we shall step out, and we are willing to leave the verdict with our people—our fellow-citizens of Clanton."

JADIE CLECKLER AND BUD BOSWELL MAKE BOND

Jadie Cleckler and Bud Boswell, who live near the Uncle Mose Robinson place, came in Monday and made bond on a charge of petit larceny. The warrant was sworn out for the two men alleged to have stolen an automobile tire. When the officers went to seach for the tire they found it in their possession. They will have preliminary trial next Saturday.

CHILTON COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL OPENS NEXT MONDAY

The Chilton County High School will open next Monday, September 6th. All students are requested to enroll on that date so that classification can be made as rapidly as possible. The fees are $5.00 per pupil per semester, and must be paid before names can be placed on regularly enrolled list of pupils.

Six grades of work will be attempted at the school this year, as follows: Junior I, Junior II, Junior III, Senior I, Senior II, and Senior III.

Mr. O. V. Bruner, Miss Helen Evans, and Miss Lillian Taylor of the last year's faculty will return this year. The following new teachers have been added for this year: G. G. Williams of Howard College, Miss Evelyn Hix of Howard College, Miss Ethel Gilbert of Peabody College, Miss Louise Nichols of University of Alabama. Miss Catherine Donnelly, a graduate of the Bush Conservatory of Music, Chicago, will have charge of the work in music and expression.

Prof. Ellsworth Ellis, Principal, urges the cooperation and assistance of the people of Clanton and Chilton County, both patrons of the school and others, to the end that this may be made the most successful year in the history of the school.

PRELIMINARY TRIAL FOR DAVENPORTS

Preliminary trial of Enoch Davenport and his son, Frank, was held by Judge Gulledge last Saturday. The men were charged with manufacturing liquor and having a still in possession. They were bound over to the grand jury under bonds of $500 each. Bonds were made and the men were released.

CHESTER DOWNS AND OSCAR KNIGHT CAUGHT WITH LIQUOR

Chester Downs and Oscar Knight were arrested last Saturday night about 10 o'clock at the home of Claudy Jones near Cooper. There was a dance at the home of Jones. Sheriff Littlejohn and Deputy Foshee, thinking there might be something going on there besides dancing, went to the Jones place and concealed themselves in the edge of the yard.

After a while Downs and Knight came out of the house and approached close to the officers. A half gallon fruit jar was displayed, and when the officers made their presence known, they found that the fruit jar contained liquor.

Downs and Knight were taken in charge by the officers and were later released on bonds of $300 each.

THOMPSON WILL ESTABLISH LAUNDRY IN CLANTON

Mr. J. W. Thompson from Montgomery has moved his family to Clanton and is living in the house of Mrs. P. D. Wilson on Fourth Avenue West. Mr. Thompson states that he has secured the building of H. F. Chandler near the railroad on Second Avenue, where he expects to open up a modern laundry a soon as machinery can be installed.

Meanwhile he will operate the pressing shop which he has purchased from Frank Foshee, in the same building, taking charge of that business on September 1st.

For some time there has been some agitation favorable to the establishment of a laundry here. It is believed that Clanton offers a field that will be profitable for a business of this kind.

Mr. Thompson is meeting with the encouragement of our citizens, and it is hoped that he will be able to carry his plans through to success.

FOUR ARRESTED IN CARD GAME EARLY SUNDAY MORNING

Last Saturday night about midnight Sheriff Littlejohn and Deputy Foshee went over in what is known as the Mullins Addition to Clanton to see how things were getting along. They heard some loud talking and saw a light in an unfinished building. Upon closer investigation they found a card game in progress, the attendants of the affair being Pud Walker and Hall Tyus, white, and Jess White and Will Pelmore, colored.

The four were arrested on charge of Sunday gaming, and were released on bond.

ALL DAY SINGING AT WALNUT CREEK

The Union-Banner is requested to announce that an all day singing will be held at Walnut Creek church, 3 miles northeast of Clanton next Sunday, the first Sunday in September. Prof. W. M. Devaughn will be in charge of the singing, and all good singers over the county have a special invitation to attend. Prof. Grant of Cooper, it is announced, will be there. It is hoped that several other singing professors will be there to help in the singing.

The public has an invitation to come and bring your dinner basket.

A NEGRO CONFESSED KILLING JUDGE SMITH

Says Son-in-law of Judge Smith Made Him Fire; Claims Batchelor Was Present.

The mystery veil which enshrouded the killing of Judge Lamar Smith, former probate judge of Elmore county, shot through a window in his Wetumpka home while reading in bed Monday night, was cleared within an hour after the funeral Tuesday with the arrest of Clyde Reese Batchelor, son-in-law of Judge Smith, and Hays Leonard, negro tenant of Batchelor's farm, Sheriff John Golden announced.

Details of the sensational crime which at once shocked an entire county and left officers confronted with a blank wall for a motive, were brought to light when the negro, arrested near his home near Wetumpka, broke down and confessed that he fired the fatal shot.

He pressed the trigger, while Batchelor stood at his side with a revolver threatening to end his life if he refused to fire, according to a signed statement obtained in the city jail at Montgomery where the negro and Batchelor were rushed for safe-keeping.

Batchelor, questioned for two hours in the Montgomery jail, where he was later removed, steadfastly denied his guilt. The motive for the crime had not been ascertained Tuesday night.

Officers, however, pointed out that Judge Smith's estate was valued at upwards of $30,000, and that about one-third of the property would have reverted to Mrs. Batchelor.

In his signed confession the negro admitted that the original plan was to slay Judge Smith and his wife. After the shot had been fired Mrs. Smith moved with such rapidity that it was impossible to draw a bead on her, he said, and his nerve failed when she began screaming. Mrs. Smith was wounded by one shot that ploughed its way across her forehead.

The negro told officers that the first plot was formed last March. Batchelor came to him, he said, and stated that he "had some white folks he wanted killed." Batchelor told him, he said, that if he would "get" Judge Smith and Mrs. Smith, that in return he would be paid several hundred dollars, cancel the debt which the negro owed him as tenant on the farm, and pay the remainder of installments on a Ford automobile the negro had purchased.

FOR THE COMMON GOOD

(An Editorial)

The paramount and one great aim of the Union-Banner is the election of the entire Republican ticket in Chilton County in November. We appeal to the Republican voters to lay down all matters that might tend to cause division in our ranks.

We have only to look back a few years to see what a Democratic administration would mean to us. We have tried it in Chilton County and it proved almost disastrous. The interest of the county cannot afford the election of Democratic officials. The present Republican administration has placed our county in a condition to be proud of from every point of view. Would it be wise to give the Democrats another whack at the affairs of the county? We say emphatically "no," and we believe a big majority of the voters of the county will agree with us.

A primary is always the supreme test of a man. We have always said that it is easy for a person to stand hitched as long as he gets everything he wants, but it takes a real man to stand up under defeat and remain staunch to the principles of the party. But the latter are the kind of men it takes to make a success of anything one goes at. It is a safe bet to say that majority rule is the salvation of a country.

The men nominated on the Republican ticket are all good men. They are men to whom we can safely entrust the management of our county's affairs.

Now, let's look forward to the election of the Republican ticket in November. If you have any personal differences, forget them and look to the general welfare of Chilton County. What would satisfy your own personal desire might not be the best for the county as a whole. And it is the duty of big and true citizens to vote not for personalities and petty personal differences but for the common good of us all.

The Union-Banner stands ready and anxious to do what it can for the election of the Republican ticket as nominated in the primary, and we here and now place ourselves as opposed to anything that will cause division in our ranks and thus make possible the defeat of the Republican ticket in November.

SOME FINE CROP SAMPLES; SOME NOT SO FINE

Visitors to The Union-Banner office last Saturday were impressed with the samples of corn, cotton, sugar cane, etc., which were on display. The corn was good, but the cotton was bad.

Prof. F. Iven Popwell of Fairview brought a stalk of corn that was a little more than 14 feet high.

Elijah Thomas brought a stalk of corn whch was wrapped in a full growth of corn field beans; also a fine stalk of sugar cane.

J. P. Jackson brought some samples of cotton that were intended to show the bad side of the cotton situation, asd they showed it mighty plain. It was a fine weed almost shoulder high, and ranging from none to one boll to the stalk. The samples came from a field where 750 pounds of fertilizer were used to the acre.

Some say there will be as much cotton grown in Chilton County this year as there was last year. Some say not. At any rate we shall be able to compare a dry year with a wet one. Last year was dry and we got more cotton than in several years. Watch this year and we will see what can be done in wet weather.

STEPHENS NAMED BY REPUBLICANS

Gadsden, Aug. 26.—John J. Stephens, prominent business man of Attalla and life long member of the party, was nominated Thursday afternoon by the Seventh District Republican Convention to make the race for congress against the Democratic nominee and incumbent, Miles C. Allgood. Mr. Stephens was nominated unanimously after a roll call of counties had failed to bring forth any nominees except A. P. Longshore of Etowah who declined.

Mr. Stephens was put in nomination by T. R. Robinson of St. Clair County following a caucus of party leaders. In accepting the nomination Mr. Stephens expressed a desire to meet his opponent on the stump. "I have a business in Attalla," he said, "but I would like nothing better than to close it up for 30 days and stump the district with my opponent."

Heard have been properly certified or petitioned to go on the ballot as candidates for mayor, and the following names for members of the council: J. H. Alred, G. D. Broadhead, J. W. Last Thursday Sheriff Littlejohn and Deputy Foshee made a trip over in the western part of the county. As they were maneuvering around over there they came upon Dan Maddox and Brad Lawrence in the woods just as they were measuring up eleven gallons of liquor which they had just made.

REPORT, MEMORIAL COMMITTEE OF CHILTON CO. CONFERENCE

We, your committee on Memorials, beg to submit the following deaths:

On investigation we find that the death angel has been a frequent visitor in our midst and has called from our membership Brethren I. N. Langston, W. M. Gray, and H. E. Scott, from Jemison Lodge No. 411; J. M. Grant, Amand Lodge No. 250; J. A. Collie, Marbury Lodge No. 534, and J. L. Long, of same Lodge; C. T. Fisher, Marbury Lodge No. 534.

We are constanly reminded of the brevity of life, the changing season, the Serf leaf, the fading flower, all remind us that life is but a span that leads from earth to glory, connecting the past and the future, the two great eternities. Again God, in His infinite wisdom, has called some more of our Brethren from the walks of men. These Brethren have answered the last great call which sooner or later comes to us all. Though our friends be dead, yet their influence lives on; of such are those who build monuments which neither rust, corrode, nor time efface.

Therefore, Be it Resolved, That, though we miss their genial presence, their sunny smiles, and their wise counsel, we can, in humble submission, bow to the will of God, Who takes and gives at His pleasure.

Be it further Resolved, That, we extend our heartfelt sympathy to all the bereaved, and point them to the Star of Hope, the resurrected Lord, Who gave the beautiful promise: "I go to prepare a place for you that where I am, you may be also."

Be it further Resolved, That, a copy of these resolutions be sent to each of the county papers for publication, one sent to the families of each of the deceased Brothers, and one spread upon the minutes of the Chilton County Masonic Conference. Respectfully submitted,—R. L. Duffey, M. A. Pinson, B. Lawrence, Committee.

Mr. S. R. Barnes, a good old friend of The Banner, was a visitor to our office last Friday. Mr. Barnes lives in Beat 8, where he runs a farm, a gin, and is trustee of Riderville school. His business over here was to go before the county board in the interest of his school.

NATIVE TREES SHOW BEST WEATHER RESISTANCE

That the lumber manufactured from trees native to any particular region withstands natural deteriorating influences better than that made from trees grown in other localities is an opinion that is gaining considerable ground, according to a statement issued by the Alabama Commission of Forestry.

It is obvious, of course, that as a general rule the trees that grow best in any locality are those that are native to the region. Whether lumber from these same trees will last longer than imported material in the uses of which it is generally applied in the same locality is an interesting question with certain recently obtained information answering in the affirmative.

Under present commercial conditions, lumber from distant producing centers is competing with that manufactured near the point of consumption. It has been found, however, that certain western woods, which answer exacting requirements when used in the general region in which they are produced, fail materially in their structural uses in the eastern half of the country. It is possible that if the situation were reversed eastern timbers which are thoroughly adapted to eastern requirements might similarly fail if used on the west coast.

There are various theories to account for this seeming regional difference in structural adaptability. It is generally thought that it is largely due to those wood characteristics having to do with the absorption of moisture. Other involved considerations entering into the problem, however, are also being made the subject of close study.

NON-RESIDENT NOTICE

State of Alabama, Chilton County.—Circuit Court In Equity, August 27, 1926. Cora Mae Thornton, Complainant, vs. Zebiedee Thornton, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of G. C. Walker that the Defendant is a non-resident, and that his place of residence and post-office address is unknown, and that such address can not be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is of the age of twenty-one years:

It is, therefore, ordered by the Register that publication be made in The Union-Banner, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him, the said Zebiedee Thornton, to plead, answer, or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 28th day of September, 1926, or, in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

LEGAL NOTICE

Notice of Petition to Probate Will of Bolling H. Nelson.

ESSEX BODIES SHOW STRENGTH

In many parts of the country Hudson-Essex dealers are demonstrating in interesting and spectacular ways the unusual strength of the Essex all-steel coach. In one city more than three tons of wooden and steel beams were placed on the roof of the body without in any way affecting it. After this demonstration was over, in fact, the body was mounted on a chassis and is being used as a demonstrator by the distributor.

In another city, located in the cotton belt, a dealer piled two bales of cotton on the roof of the car and drove around the streets. Inasmuch as all Southerners know that a bale of cotton weighs 500 pounds or more, the sight attracted a great deal of attention.

The test of the wooden and steel beams was tried by Walter Zibberman of Columbus, Hudson-Essex distributor in the mid-Ohio district. After wooden beams and a platform had been placed on the roof of the car, a set of steel beams was obtained from a nearby sky-scraper under construction. These were piled atop the coach body until the total burden was 6,850 pounds.

It was shown as an exhibit in the main salesroom. As a part of the proof of strength, salesmen opened and closed doors of the car, showing that there was no strain or distortion on the body.

"Such tests as these," according to Mr. H. M. Bates, Hudson-Essex dealer here, "are evidences of the Hudson-Essex claim that there is no automobile body made, at any price whatever, which is more solid, rigid and strain-proof than the all-steel Hudson and Essex coaches. Not only are they built exceptionally strong and rigid, but also they are so united with the chassis that the whole structure is virtually one unit.

"The whole conception and construction of the bodies is original with Hudson-Essex, and we believe that the results are entirely unique in the automobile field. There has naturally been a strong demand for Essex coaches—so strong that although they are built in the world's largest single body plant, we shall be pushed to meet the public demand."

WEST CHILTON

Not necessary to tell you readers how hot the weather is.

Mr. Lee Martin died Sunday morning, after a long illness.

The primary election is a thing of the past, and we think a good ticket has been nominated. Practically all the candidates' letters in the last Banner had the right ring. The letters of Messrs. Culp, Mims and Cleckler were really good. There is a future for the true and loyal.

Mr. Oscar Waldrop of West Frankfort, Ill., is visiting here now. His father, Mr. Isaac Waldrop, who has been spending the summer in Illinois, came down with him. They came through in a Hudson.

H. L. Smith of Randolph attended Mr. Martin's burial Monday.

The writer had the treat of his life Saturday and Sunday, being visited by four of his cousins and a friend. They were E. T., William, and Davis Jones of West Milton, Ohio, Prof. Maurice Jones of Lebanon, Ind., and Mr. J. W. Davis of Dayton, Ohio. They came through in a Buick. Our relatives never had been south before. They enjoyed meeting the southern people very much. We found them lovely people of fine intelligence. They left Monday to visit Attorney Jones at Newberry, S. C.

Loyd Smith returned from Birmingham Saturday, where he had been visiting his sister, Miss Bevie Smith.

Mrs. Ludie McCary of Randolph became very ill suddenly. She was rushed to the hospital in Selma, where she has been reported very sick for several days.

Rev. Lowery did not hold revival services at Macedonia on his last visit, but will in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Langston had a great time Saturday and Sunday. Their children were all with them at one time.

We West Chilton people are still looking to the authorities to improve our roads, which seem to need attention now.

We are expecting great things of the new nominees for Commissioner, should they be elected. Mr. Maddox has lived over here, and he knows the situation. We believe he will be very prompt and active, and will give us all we merit. That is all we want—no more and no less.

Revival services at Mars Hill this week, Rev. Littlejohn, Pastor.

Miss Modene Waldrop, who has had a position in Blocton for some time, recently returned home quite ill.

BUSINESS MAN SINGS OLD SONG

"I suffered for years with stomach trouble and gas continually. Doctors thought I had stomach ulcers or cancer. After last attack they advised going to Rochester, Minn., for an operation. A friend advised trying MAYR'S, which I did, and I can not sing its praises too highly, as I can now eat anything and everything." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. J. H. BENSON THANKS VOTERS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words to the Republican voters of Chilton County. I want to say in the beginning that I am still as I have always been—a true Republican from head to foot, and I will be the next time you hear from me. As you already know, this was my second time to be defeated in the race for Commissioner from the 2nd district; but if I had not been willing to accept the people's choice, I woulld have never offered myself for consideration in the primary.

I am well pleased with the number of votes I received in my home Beat, which is Beat 9, also my old home Beat, Beat 12. When I went into tht campaign I went in for a clean race and I am proud to say that I came out the same way.

I believe all the nominees are good men and will, if elected, do their very best to prove worthy of your choice.

I may never ask for an office of the county again, but I stand ready to help in any way I can to make the Republican party stronger in Chillton County.

In conclusion, I want to ask that you go to the polls and help elect every nominee on the Republican ticket. Since the primary is over, forget it now and work and vote for the welfare of your county. The best will be a straight Republican ticket. Again thanking you for your consideraion, I am, yours ruly,

J. H. BENSON.

J. N. SCOTT THANKS VOTERS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me through your paper to express my thanks to those who saw fit to support me in my race for Commissioner from the First District of Chilton County. Please overlook this short letter as well as my delay in writing it, but business matters and the fact that I am attending church much of the time now has caused the delay in expressing my thanks to the voters. I will write more some time soon.

Yours as ever,

J. N. SCOTT.

CHARLEY WYATT WRITES

I want to say just a few words to the good people of Clanton and Chilton county. I truly hope that I may be able to serve you again with much more than I have in the past. I cannot express my appreciation for the confidence that was given me by many of my good friends. But I can only say that I tried to treat everybody just and fair and as nearly alike as I could and will endeavor to do so in the future.

If I can be of any service to you I stand ready to do so at any time you may call on me. Thanking you very much again for the business given me and the loyalty and kindness shown toward me, I remain, Respectfully,—Chas. E. Wyatt.

MEASURING PROSPERITY

If you want to know whether prosperity is still with us you have only to read the recenty issued report of the Controller of the Currency on the condition of the national banks of the United States, Alaska, and Hawaii. This report shows that the resources of these national banks were nearly a billion dollars greater at the close of this fiscal year, than at the end of the last fiscal year. A billion dollar gain in resources by our national banks is not to be sneezed at, even in these days of inflated figures.

To be more exact, the resources of the 7,978 reporting banks were $25,315,624,000 on June 30, 1926, while on the corresponding date in 1925 they were $24,350,863,000. The gain in these resources was steady, the gain during the last six months of the year being fully as great as the first six months. The total deposit liabilities of these banks on June 30, 1925, were $20,642,164,000, a gain in deposits over the preceding year of approximately $750,000,000.

Some time ago the situation with regard to the state banks of the country was made public and showed a tremendous gain in business over the preceding year. The savings banks are gaining too. So are the building and loan associations and the life insurance companies.

These figures can mean but one thing. The people of the United States are prosperous and are steadily adding to the old bank balance, and are savng one way or another. Each year more and more of our people in humbler circumstances are owning their own homes, and learning something about the pride and satisfaction and ownership.

All of this makes against socialism in the United States, and if socialism ever comes it will be due to our carelessness and our failure to appreciate the great blessings which have been bestowed upon us by the constitutional government of the United States.

Based on "intention to plant," America should produce a bumper wheat crop next year. A long distance forecast is that the export surplus will be around 168,000,000 bushels as compared with 64,000,000 bushels last year. Only in one year (1924) was the export above 168,000,000 bushels.

An automobile at Cincinnati the other day leaped into the Ohio River and crashed into a launch, which will show that you can't get away from the reckless driver.

Twelve New Jersey high school girls face expulsion for belonging to a secret society. If the girls can really keep a secret they ought to be rewarded, not expelled.

It is said that women's skirts are going to be even shorter than ever this fall. If they get much shorter we will have to quit calling em' skirts and refer to them as ruffles.

M. Clemenceau tells us that France is not for sale. And it must not be forgotten that had it not been for America there probably wouldn't be anything to sell anyhow.

HIS Glory !

THE SILVER LINING

There is a silver lining to the cloud of the corn farmer, according to the Department of Agriculture. The price of corn, unless all signs fail, is going to be higher in 1927. The crop, although there is every indication that it will be good this year, is not apt to equal the bumper yield of 1925. And the price of hogs is so high, in comparison with corn, that there will doubtless be more hogs raised this year. More hogs will mean a greater demand for corn, and a greater demand for corn will mean higher prices and better times for the corn farmer.

The condition of the corn farmer during the past year has not been the same in every locality. The farmer who follows the practice year by year, of selling his grain in the market has been compelled to take a low price for it. But the farmer who has fed his corn into hogs, cattle or dairy herds, has not been affected adversely by the low price. For example, in one typical middle western agricultural county last year farmers sold about $250,000 worth of corn in the market, but shipped about $2,500,000 in live stock. In this country 90% of the farmers made money, and the 10% who followed the custom of selling corn did not come off so well.

Doubtless more hogs will be raised next year and the price of corn will come back to a balance with live stock. Farming is a business, as much so as any business carried on in town. The city business man often has to change his policies and his merchandise to meet shifting conditions. The successful farmer does the same thing and finds a way to convert what he raises into the highest priced commodities. That is why he is successful.

Pannonia of Friendship, a mature Jersey cow owned by King Pharr, of Catherine, Ala., has completed her third official record and won her second gold medal. The test started when she was 9 years and 5 months of age. Her record was 15,613 pounds of milk, and 725.1 pounds of butterfat. The Pharr herd of Jerseys ranks among the best in any state, it is said.

More than 250,000 farmers in the United States now have electricity. Experimental work in twenty states has shown that the farmers can use advantageously many times the current required by the average city family. The electric industry, according to reports, is ready to deliver power to the farmers at reasonable rates. Alabama is a leading state in rural electrification.

THE BEST-SELLER

The Bible, in the English language, still continues to be the most widely sold, and, it is to be presumed, the most widely read book. Reports of the American Bible Society year after year have shown that as many Bibles are sold annually as all other books combined, and perhaps more than that; and in a time when records are being broken in other lines Bible sales do likewise.

Latest figures available in connection with Bible sales are reported from the 122nd meeting of the British and Foreign Bible Society, held recently in London. These figures show that in 1925 more English Bibles were sold than in any previous 12-month period, and that the society's output for the year reached the remarkable total of 10,500,000,000. Increases were shown in China, Japan and thruout the Far East. Russia alone declines to admit the Bible as an influence for good.—Dayton News.

The slump was attributed to the sudden success of German chemists in making synthetic nitrogen.

PLEASANT VALLEY

A glorious revival was held here last week with Bro. Lewis Kelley helping Bro. Hughes. Inspirational sermons were delivered each day and night throughout the week. Two of these outstanding sermons were on "The Ten Commandments," and "Influence." Young and old were made to see the reality in serving God, to bow down to Him, and submit their lives to Him. Twenty-nine members were added to the church, 23 being by experience. This church was very fortunate in getting Bro. Hughes for pastor for next year. Remember, next Saturday afternoon and Sunday Bro. Hughes will fill his regular appointments. Let's be as anxious to hear the messages he has to deliver as he is to deliver them. When time comes to attend these services let's remember these words from the scriptures: "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."

THE ROEBUCK REUNION

Last Sunday, Mr. R. M. Roebuck, commonly known as "Uncle Bob," who resides near Adams, celebrated his 79th birthday with a family reunion. Relatives and friends began arriving at his home at 10 o'clock. From there they went to Mt. Carmel Baptist church, where a special service had been arranged for the relatives and their friends. After a few familiar hymns were sung, Rev. Mims of Maplesville preached a good sermon on "Christ, the pilot of the ship of life." Following the services the crowd returned to the residence, where a sumptuous dinner was served. The afternoon was spent in renewing old acquaintances, talks of old times, family relics of bygone days, crops, politics, etc., in order.

"Uncle Bob" was one of the "boys who wore the gray." A mere lad, he volunteered in '64 as a private. He saw service in battles at Selma and Mobile. He afterwards met and married Miss Mollie Donovan, now deceased. To them were born six children, five of whom are living, the following four of them being present: R. N. (Buddie) Roebuck, W. M. Roebuck, Mrs. Mary Robinson, Mrs. Bertha Roper. A host of in-laws, close relatives and warm friends were present. We were dismissed by a short prayer by T. J. Deramus.—Stanley N. Davis.

NOTES OF TRAVEL

(By S. E. Norton)

There were several matters of interest that were omitted in our letter last week. One important feature of that chicken-clam barbecue was the fact that the 1,200 tickets were practically all sold and the money in hand before the supplies or provisions were ordered. About the only element of uncertainty about it was the weather, and we are told that none of the previous affairs of that kind put on by that church have been seriously interfered with by rain.

How the people were fed was interesting to look upon, and reminded us of occasion when Jesus fed the multitude. An orchestra from a nearby town furnished music.

Saturday and Sunday, when not at church, we spent considerable time visiting places of interest in the Catskill Mountains. One place was where work on the Gilboa Dam, which is to impound the water of Scoharie Creek, to reverse the flow of that stream and form a great reservoir for New York City water supply, or more correctly, a part of it, although it is located 120 miles from the city and 1,000 feet above it, is going on.

While getting stone for the dam in a quarry near the site, workmen uncovered fossilized stumps of trees, which geologists pronounce to be relics of the oldest forest ever discovered, and estimate the period of its existence to be at least 3,000,000 years ago. They consider it a great find. One fine specimen was sent to the Museum of Natural History in New York City; the rest were sent to the New York State Museum at Albany.

The village of Gilboa, having upwards of 600 residents, stood in the valley on the ground that was to be flooded by the reservoir. Every vestige of it, except some concrete walks, had to be removed. Rev. Edward Tracy, our host, has the only Protestant church in that community, as an outpost, where he goes to hold services each Sunday afternoon. Just now his people worshp in a school house. But he was an exceedingly busy man, making arrangements to let a contract for a new church in the old town at its new home half a mile from its original site, all of which aroused considerable interest in the whole proceeding.

Including coming in and going out we had the best part of four days in which to visit many delightful scenes and places of historical interest. The church where they had the big supper was built in the year 1800, and has several times been altered and repaired, but is still in good condition. The highways wind around the sides of the mountains affording an ever changing view of distant mountains and wide, fertile valleys, terminating in wooded glen or rocky gorge with its accompanying stream of pure and sparkling mountain water. On our way out we stopped at Haines Falls in one of those gorges where a stream of water comes tumbling down, having a sheer fall of 225 feet. On the rocky sides of this gorge, above the stream we saw several summer hotels. We also saw a pile of ashes where The Twilight Inn had stood until a few weeks ago, when it was burned, with the loss of many lives.

From Haines Falls our route lay over mountain, valley, and gorge, in a southeasterly direction, until we were well out of the mountain section, thence for about 20 miles due east to Saugatier, on the bank of the Hudson River about 55 miles north of New York, and only a few miles from the country home of the parents of Mr. Carl Tissal, who was for two years a member of Thorsby Institute faculty. We stopped for dinner at Newburgh, another Hudson River town, then took a road leading southwest away from the river and skirting West Point, Storm King and Bear Mountains, and Palisades Park, into New Jersey, thence wesa to Kenvil. At Bear Mountain there has recently been opened, to carry a state highway, the only bridge over the Hudson River south of Albany, which is 125 miles from New York. The Bear Mountain bridge, 50 miles from New York, is of the suspension type, and 250 feet above the river, with its ends anchored in a mountain on each side of the river. Up to the present time, with the exception of tunnels under the river for railroads and subways for street cars, all crossing the river, except at Bear Mountain, for vehicles and pedestrians, must be done by ferry, with great loss of time.

There is under construction between Fourteenth Street in Jersey City and Broome Street in New York City, a monster engineering project designed exclusively for vehicular and pedestrian passage beneath the Hudson River, which is, I believe, more than a mile wide at this point. I do not have at hand detailed descriptions of construction, but know that it will be ample and safe for an enormous daily traffic each way. A serious problem to be worked out was to keep the air pure in the tunnels by disposing of the poisonous monoxide gas generated by the exhaust of an automobile engine. The difficult problem was solved. The work has been under way for more than two years, and is now so far advanced that within the past few days the Governors of New York and New Jersey, with the members of the joint commission of both states, together with a large party of officials of the two cities, and their friends, made a tour of inspection in busses and automobiles. They were the first passenger carrying vehicles to pass through the tunnel, although it is not expected that it will be ready to open to the public before next March.

Governor Smith said on that occasion that if the plans worked out as expected it would settle for all time the futility of building bridges over the Hudson River to connect New York and New Jersey, because, although this tunel is estimated to cost $46,000,000, the initial cost of tunnels would be far less than a bridge of like capacity, and upkeep would be greatly in favor of the tunnel.

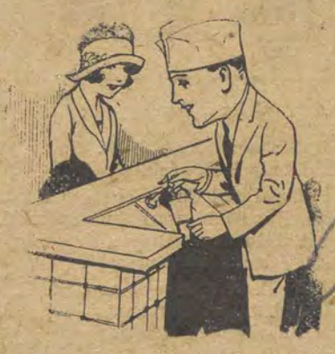
CHEVROLET NEWS

Development of distinct types of commercial car bodies, designed and manufactured in their entirety by the Chevrolet organization now affords the public a complete line of Chevrolet-built passenger and commercial vehicles for the first time in the company's history.

Complete trucks are available for immediate delivery to the purchaser. They are the 1-ton panel delivery, 1-ton stake, and 1-ton grain carrying body.

The chassis can be furnished also with cab only, suitable for mounting any special truck body desired by the owner.

Substantially the same cab is used on all bodies. The cab is entirely enclosed and weather-proof and affords the same comfort in the driver's compartment as a Chevrolet passenger car. The doors are 24 inches wide, with high grade locks. Plate glass side windows are furnished with Ternstedt regulators as in the standard closed car. A full ventilating windshield, glass rear windows, cab lining and cushion covering of fabrikoid leather, combination stop and tail light and conveniently-placed instrument panel are features. Seats are arranged for easy handling of controls and steering wheel. The cab is Biscay green, duco striped in gold and cowl lights are standard equipment.



Each of these body types has been designed for the utmost utility, convenience and adaptability to the work for which it is designed.

With these modern advantages at an attractive price, these new trucks are expected to attain a prominent place in the favor of the commercial car buying public.

JOHNSON BIG TWINS ARE NOT QUITTERS

Two Johnson Big Twin outboard motors attached to a 44-foot V-bottom cruiser made a 50-mile trip recently without any trouble.

The boat had formerly been powered, but the engines had been removed for some time, leaving no means of propulsion execpt the Johnson, as shown in the accompanying photograph.

Mr. Gerald Brusher of the Marine Sales and Service Corporation of Terminal, California, together with five others, took the boat out one morning and started for Avalon on Santa Catalina Island, some 25 miles away. The open water of the channel had no sooner been reached than a fog settled down, causing all land marks to be lost from sight. Some apprehension was held by one members of the party that the boat would not reach its destination. The remainder of the party, however, knew the sterling qualities of Johnson Outboard Motors and never had any doubts in their minds about their arriving at Avalon.

An estimated speed of five miles per hour was maintained, which was considered quite good as the motors were new—having just been removed from their packing cases—and in addition, considering the size of the boat and its water-logged condition. The motors ran smoothly, and without a complaint of any kind, they kept plugging at the job. One never stooped from start to finish; the other motor stopped once from running out of fuel.

It was not long before the harbor of Avalon was reached, and soon quite a number of people had come down to see such a large boat powered with these comparatively small outboard motors.

When the return trip was started, the boat, which had leaked, was bailed out and motors again attached, having been removed during the stay at Avalon. The original party, with the exception of Mr. Brusher, had taken the steamer back to Los Angeles, and this time only three made the trip.

As before, a fog had come down, and in addition a brisk wind was blowing which made the channel quite choppy. With some inward doubts but no spoken thoughts, the start was made. At times they were on top of a great swell and then down in the troughs, but the Big Twins kept right on, the high seas causing no trouble whatsoever. They ran as before—smoothly and powerfully— and in due time Los Angeles harbor was reached safely. It had taken five hours, again making the average five miles per hour in spite of the wind.

The motors were removed and cleaned, all that was necessary to make them as good as new, proving the sturdy qualities of the Johnson Big Twin and the dependability of these motors, for not once did they quit and refuse to go on.

Uncle Jack Jones was at the court house Monday greeting his friends. He is able to walk with the aid of his crutches. He has had a hard fight to get over his injuries received in the early spring when he fell from a bluff near the river. He spent many weeks in the hospital, later going to his home, where he remained unable to get out for several weeks.

Mrs. A. J. Baker and daughter, Senie of Birmingham were here Sunday.

Good Health Depends Upon Good Elimination.

RETENTION of bodily waste in the blood is called a "toxic condition." This often gives rise to a dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. IN MEMORY

On Tuesday night, August 24, the death angel bore away the spirit of our beloved wife and mother, Mrs. D. D. Hand. She was well when she went to bed, having eaten a hearty supper, and at 10 o'clock she was dead. She must have been the victim of a fit, for she was given to fits and had been for 35 years. She was 55 years old, and had lived in Clanton about 25 years. She leaves her husband, 2 children, 4 sisters, 5 brothers, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn her loss. She was a kind and loving wife and mother. It is hard to give her up, but we fee that our loss is Heaven's gain, and may we all live so as to meet her some day in that land where there will be no more parting.

We thank the good people for their help, and for the beautiful floral offerings. May God bless each and everyone. Her remains were laid to rest at Pleasant Hill cemetery Wednesday, with Martin in charge. Rev. Lowery conducted the funeral service.—Husband and Children.

MONTEVALLO NEWS

Montevallo, Aug. 28.—Few small towns in Alabama can show the progress which is being made by Montevallo—the home of Alabama College. The streets of the town are at present piled high with excavation for a complete sewer system that extends from one end of the town to the other. The system will be installed within the next few weeks and will add tremendously to the sanitation of the town and its desirability as a place to live.

The state highway engineers have this week been making a survey of the road from the east gate of the college to the state highway from Calera to Wilton with a view to paving this distance of about one mile through the heart of Montevallo. These general improvements have stimulated the citizens of Montevallo to wide-spread interest in home building and other building enterprises.

J. R. Lewis' new $12,000 home on Vine Street is nearing completion. Mr. W. J. Kennerly, professor of chemstry at Alabama College, has begun a new home on Highland Street. The St. George hotel has recently been overhauled and added to. A complete system of water works has been installed. Mr. R. A. Reid has recently completed a magnificent home on East Boundary Street. Mr. Pat J. Kroell has just completed a large warehouse on Middle Street, which is a distinct addition to the business houses of Montevallo. The Masonic Temple, which was completed some weeks ago, has been occupied by Mr. Ivie, who is in charge of the sale of Dodge cars.

A new garage has just been opened at the end of Main Street.

The interest in building and in the development of Montevallo indicates that a new era of prosperity and growth has arrived for one of the oldest towns in Alabama, whose history goes back 100 years.

SHELBY OFFICERS ISSUE THEIR ULTIMATUM TO SAM BOONE

Barricaded Man Must Leave Home Peacefully Or Take The Consequences.

Columbiana, Aug. 31.—Sam Boone, farmer, of near Boonetown, Shelby County, who has barricaded himself in the house he is alleged to have sold and refused to give possession, hurling defiance at officers attempting to oust him, will be given an opportunity to peacefully withdraw and if he refuses, state law enforcement officers will throw a net about the structure and he will be forcibly evicted, it was announced by Solicitor John J. Haynes, Tuesday.

This announcement followed a conference between Pinkney Scott, of Bessemer, attorney for Boone, Walter K. McAdory, chief of the state law enforcement department, Solicitor John J. Hayes, and Sheriff A. J. Falkner at Calera today.

It was agreed at the conference to permit Boone to peacefully and without arrest go to Bessemer for a conference with his attorney in an effort to arbitrate the difficulty between himself and the Shaw Brothers, who purchased the farm several months ago.

A corps of officers is scheduled to visit Boone at his home tonight and offer him an opportunity to peacefully surrender possession to Shaw Brothers.

In the event Boone declines to accept the arbitration measure, he will be forcibly evicted, officers announced.

About 18 months ago Boone is said to have sold the farm to Shaw Brothers. Shortly after the sale he is said to have refused to surrender it or the money received. The brothers appealed to the circuit court for assistance in possessing the property. The court ruled that the sale was legal and issued orders to Boone for dispossession. Boone appealed the case to the supreme court, which affirmed the decision of the lower court.

Monday, officers, armed with dispossession papers, called upon Boone and he defied them to oust him from the house. Using his wife and children as a shield against gun fire from the officers, Boone declared that he would not surrender or vacate until they were shot down. Officers withdrew in order to avoid endangering the lives of the women and children in the event trouble ensued.—Montgomery Advertiser.

TWO BIG STILLS CAPTURED IN COOSA COUNTY

Information has been received in Clanton stating that two big 1,000-gallon stills were captured in Coosa County early Sunday morning, and two men who were operating them placed under arrest. The men were Bennett Penton and Truman Holman, age about 25. The scene of their operations was about nine mies south of Rockford. The raid was conducted by three state officers, Jesse Blake, Eugene Lewis, and another whose name we could not learn.

The story of the raid asserts that the officers, having knowledge of the location of the stills, went there at an early hour Saturday night. They are said to have found the two men, Penton and Holman, engaged in making a run. The officers watched the operations of the men until they had finished their run. When the job was finished Penton and Holman lay down at the still and went to sleep, and about daybreak the officers took charge of them and their entire outfit. About 45 gallons of whiskey and a large amount of beer are said to have been destroyed.

The two men were carried to Rockford early Sunday morning, where they made bonds. The stills were of the zinc box type and were coupled together. They were near the Elmore County line.

ERSKINE RAMSAY DECLINES

It is to be truly regretted that Mr. Erskine Ramsay has seen fit to decline the Republican nomination as a candidate for the United States Senate from Alabama. The reason he gives for declining the nomination is something to the effect that his extensive business interests will not permit him to give any time to a political campaign.

We do not doubt that the business of Mr. Ramsay is a pressing matter with him at all times. He is such a good business man that he has acquired interests that command his constant attention both at home and afar off. But we are not quite willing to accept the excuse of Mr. Ramsay.

Our guess would be that if Mr. Ramsay should open up his heart and discuss the real underlying truth that prompts him in declining to be a Republican senatorial candidate in Alabama, it would be a far more interesting story than his reference to his pressing business interests. However, we do not expect him to do that.

REVIVAL AT BAPTIST CHURCH WILL CLOSE TONIGHT

The revival meeting, which has been in progress at the Clanton Baptist church for the past ten days, will come to a close to-night (Thursday). The preaching of Rev. Jerome O. Williams has been the means of drawing great crowds to the services. He is rated as one of the greatest preachers of the Baptist denomination in Alabama, and his work here has borne out the opinion of him. He is a Clanton man, born and reared near here, and his gospel messages seemed to have an appeal to people not usually evident with an evangelist.

The singing during the meeting has been excellent. It has been furnished altogether by home talent under direction of Mr. Herbert W. Lowery. We do not have at hand accurate information as to the number of additions which have been made to the membership of the church, but will say that it will possibly be in the neighborhood of forty or fifty.

Rev. Williams has been for recent years pastor of the Baptist church at Bessemer. He has given up that place and accepted a call to the Fourth St. Baptist Church at Louisville, Ky., where he will go to take up his work after completing the program here.

Baker and family of near White City are invited to the church at White City next Sunday, September 12, to celebrate, with them the birthday anniversary of their son, Carl, who will be 21 years of age on that day. Extensive preparations have been made for the occasion, and a good time for all who attend is assured.

EAST VIEW

Last Saturday and Sunday were our regular preaching days. Two interesting sermons were rendered by Rev. Trice. Our Sunday School was fine Sunday, but if all the pupils would become more interested we could have a better school.

A good crowd from this place attended the singing at the home of Miss Levada Trice Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Pritchett visited Mr. and Mrs. Huff Burkhalter Sunday.

Mr. Dock Martin visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Martin, Sunday.

ELIJAH JONES DIED MONDAY

Death was caused by blood poison setting up from having a tooth pulled.

FRIENDSHIP CHURCH IN MEETING SUNDAY NIGHT

The members of Friendship church met last Sunday night for the purpose of calling a pastor and other officers for the church for the coming associational year. Rev. W. P. Lowery was re-elected pastor without a dissenting vote, and likewise J. Dudley Collins was elected church clerk.

The election of the Sunday school officers resulted as follows: Superintendent, T. T. Wyatt; Assistant Superintendent and Lecturer, H. F. McCary; Secretary-Treasurer, Ed Miller, Jr.; Teacher of Bible Class, E. W. Miller; Intermediate Teacher, Mrs. Jean Wyatt; Card Class Teacher, Mrs. Henry Miller. Delegates to the association were appointed, who will represent Friendship at the Chilton County Baptist Association.

The Sunday school will resume services next Sunday at 10 o'clock. This will be the first meeting of the Sunday school since the church was built back after the storm over two months ago.

The meeting and conference Sunday night were exceptionally pleasant and agreeable, and quite a crowd was in attendance. Everybody seemed well pleased with the outcome of the calling, and there was no friction at all during the whole meeting.

Preceding the calling of conference several songs were sung by the choir, followed by a splendid talk by Mr. H. F. McCary, his subject being "And in hell he lifted up his eyes." The subject was discussed very forcibly by Bro. McCary and everyone present seemed to enjoy it thoroughly.

In the future, services will be held at Friendship just as they were before the church was blown down. Sunday school every Sunday at 10 o'clock; preaching at 11:00 and 7:30 every Fourth Sunday; and singing every Fourth Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The public is always more than welcome at any and all of our services.

EAR OF CORN WEIGHS OVER TWO POUNDS

Commissioner J. M. Mims brought to The Union-Banner Monday an ear of corn which weighed 2½ pounds. The ear was 13 inches long, containing 22 rows, or about 1,000 grains. It was red corn. Uncle Jim claims to be the champion corn raiser of his section, and he always shows the corn to prove his title.

JOHNSON BUREAU OF WATERWAY TRAVEL PROVES SUCCESS

Canoeing and boating have become so popular with the advent of the outboard motor that even the old original out-of-doors people have come to realize that long trips can be made much more easily and with more enjoyment, having an outboard motor behind, that they have heartily endorsed these types of motors. For the novice there is no longer a fear of a long back-breaking paddle to reach a definite point by dark.

From all over the country come reports that more and more people are turning to water travel or water motoring, if you will. It is the ideal way to spend a vacation. Trips are being made every day that before the coming of the outboard motor would have been impossible during the average man's vacation time. Yet in using these motors, the increased weight at portages is almost negligible, for outboard motors are surprisingly lightweight, although nothing in their construction has been slighted to make them less sturdy, powerful, or speedy.

With this increase in waterway travel it became apparent that something was needed to give people who wanted to make long, delightful, and thrilling trips, some advice relative to routes, logs and equipment. It was with this thought in mind that the Johnson Motor Company, of South Bend, Ind., manufacturers of Johnson Light Single, Light Twin, and Big Twin Motors, founded the Bureau of Waterway Travel.

This bureau gathered and compiled data on interesting canoe trips in various sections of this country and Canada. Some of the routes were long, some short, a variety to meet the requirements of those wanting to go for a day or two and those who could take weeks. The maps were made very accurately and this material together with many interesting stories of experience by well known outdoors writers was compiled, the Guide to Waterway Travels being the result.

This guide was the first of its kind ever to be published, and the welcome it received from the more than 50,000 people who obtained copies was as great as anyone could wish for.

Judging from the host of letters received, the Johnson Motor Company believes it has been well repayed for their efforts.

THANKS FROM J. M. MIMS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please permit me space to thank the voters of Chilton County who supported me in the recent Repubican primary.

In asking for the office of Commissioner again I had hopes of being permitted to hold the office long enough to see our present plans carried thru whereby our county could be relieved of all debts.

But the voters have expressed a preference for another man, and I want to say that I am satisfied with the verdict.

I want to say now that I am for the whole Republican ticket in November, and I hope every Republican will stand true to our Republican nominees. I believe the best interest of our county demands that we keep our county affairs in the hands of the Republican party. We have good men nominated, and I want to see every one of them elected. Yours for the Republican party and the best interests of Chilton County.—J. M. Mims.

FORESTRY BENEFITS LABOR

Labor is the greatest single beneficiary of forestry and the forest industries, points out the Alabama Commission of Forestry. Not only has the working man the usual citizen's share in the general benefits derived from the availability of home building material and other forest products, but he also has another even more direct interest in the employment afforded by lumbering and naval stores operations and in the wood using industries.

Out of each dollar received by lumber manufacturers for their output, 60 cents is paid for labor in logging and milling. Much of the remaining 40 cents also goes to labor engaged in supplying the materials and facilities used in the operations.

The employment of labor does not end with the placing of lumber on the market, however, but continues in the building trades using such material and in many other wood using industries such as furniture factories, cooperage plants, the vehicle industry, handle making, wood chemical plants, box factories, pulp mills, the rayon industry, and a host of other enterprises requiring for their output the use of forest products. In many parts of the country, as in Alabama, the production of timber and the manufacture of forest products employ more wage earners than any other industry.

Secretary W. M. Jardine, of the Department of Agriculture, recently expressed an opinion that 1926 corn will sell from 10 to 20 cents per bushel above the 1925 price, and that the market for the new crop will open up about 75 cents a bushel in the Corn Belt.

GIST WARNS ABOUT LOW-GRADE COTTON

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 7.—Foreseeing a danger of producing low-grade cotton this fall, which will complicate the situation due to an over-supply over from 1925, F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician, is reminding farmers of the importance of picking early but allowing it to dry and cure before ginning.

Mr. Gist says that on August 1, the unused supply of American cotton amounted to about 3,500,000 bales. A large portion of it was of very low grade, due to weather damage during picking season last fall. This is being sold with difficulty.

"At present," said Mr. Gist, "strict low middling is 128 points off, low middling 335 off, strict good ordinary 545 off, and ordinary 690 off. Middling tinged is 278 off, while middling stained is 320 off. Since each 100 points represent one cent per pound, the loss from low grades may be readily seen."

He added:

"Cotton is now opening rapidly, and if rain should find it still in the field, low grades are bound to result. The presence of the cotton caterpillar, or leaf worm, also promises damage to grade from the trashy leaf and excrescence of the worm. Small particles of leaf render cotton more undesirable to the spinner than large pieces of foreign substance, since the threads berak at every point where the small trash passes over the spindles. Grades are also seriously affected by discoloration from rain and dust.

"Cotton should be picked as rapidly as possible and before rain has fallen or worms have produced trash. Howeve, after picking, cotton should not be ginned until thoroughly dry and cured. Ginning cotton damp or green is a source of low grade always to be carefully watched. Farmers should, therefore, pick their cotton as quickly as weather and labor will permit, and allow it to dry and cure before ginning."

THE WALNUT CREEK SINGING

An all day singing was held at Walnut Creek Church last Sunday. The singing was fine all day, and especially so in the afternoon At noon a bounteous dinner was spread and evevryone present was invited to come up and take part. Everyone seemed to enjoy it immensely.

Those directing the singing during the day were: L. T. Grant, Russell Cleckler, Dalton Bice, Otto Miller, A. W. Williams, Floy Devaughn, Luke Calloway, Amie Boswell, Dewey Huett, Dovard Cleckler, Jesse Baker, Willie Mims, T. E. Wyatt, Melvin Mims, J. A. W. Mims, Archie Devaughn, S. V. Miller, Clydie Mims, and Frank Cleckler. Each director used two songs. During the day several quartets were sung, arranged by W. M. Devaughn, L. T. Grant, and Jesse Baker, all of which were well rendered and thoroughly enjoyed.

The closing song was sung by Prof. W. M. Devaughn, and the service was dismissed with prayer by Mr. W. A. Calloway.

According to the fashion notes the men are going to wear brighter colored hats this fall. This is all right with us so long as they don't start that bare knee habit.

Lloyd George says America alone can save the world. Having had some expensive experience in world saving, Americans have reached the point where they would prefer to save a little something for themselves.

It is said that American tourists spent over $226,000,000 in Paris last year. No wonder the thrifty French are chasing an American whenever they see one.

The Mexicans have dug up another ancient buried city in Yucatan. What we would like to know is how much parking space did they find?

It is said that the two Democratic candidates for the United States Senate in Indiana spent less than $1,500, but they have yet to prove that the nomination is worth even that much.

Playing With Fire!

REPUBLICANS, BE ON YOUR GUARD

Republicans of Chilton County may well take warning right now that they should be on guard against the arguments and nice talk that is being peddled out by the leaders of the Democratic campaign in Chilton County.

Now, of course, we have no right to object to the Democrats conducting a political campaign. But we do have a right to warn Republicans against being misled by the opposition.

The best thing the Republicans of Chilton County can do in a political way is to remain true to the Republican party. That is our opinion about it.

Of course, for campaign purposes, the Democrats will take some of the Republicans up into exceedingly high mountains and show them all the world and the fullness thereof. And they will tell you that if you will fall down and worship at their feet, you can have all the wonderful things of the political world.

They will lead you beside the still waters and show you the beautiful green pastures, and promise to restore your souls to the greatness and goodness and power of full political fellowship with Democratic political nothingness in Alabama, if you will only follow them.

But we warn you, Republicans, that instead of bread, they will give you a stone. If you follow them out of the Republican party you will wake up one of these days and find yourself in a desert that is dry and parched, there to wander and suffer and starve. The green pastures they show you will wither and perish, and the still waters will dry up and vanish.

Let your answer be: "Get thee behind me, satan."

What has become of the old-fashioned girl who was so popular with the boys because she was the best bread baker in town?

Maybe one reason why the women don't turn out and vote is that they are afraid they will have to tell their real age, but that is no excuse for the men.

A JAR FOR FREE TRADERS

One statesman who can speak for the farming interests of the country is Senator Arthur Capper, and the free trade disciples of the country, who hoped to wean the farmers away from protection this year will find scant comfort in the statement recently made by the senator from Kansas, who declared that there is no desire among the farmers of the West to tear down the protective system, but a growing realization that with the declining market in Europe the farmer must depend more and more on his home market. And of course every farmer who thinks knows that the only way he can keep his home market is through the protective tariff on farm products.

Free traders who have expected the farm leaders to call for a general reduction of the tariff were doubtless shocked to read that Senator Capper's principal recommendations are not for reductions but increases in the tariff. The Kansas senator expressed the opinion that there ought to be a duty on hides which now come in on the free list, a duty which he feels will help the cattle raisers. He suggested also a higher duty on beef, in the face of the present fierce competition from Argentina, for the same purpose, and declared that there ought to be a greater duty on wheat.

In commenting on his proposal for a duty on hides the senator wisely called attention to the fact that although hides and shoes are both on the free list there has been no decrease in the price of shoes. Evidently the philanthropic shoe manufacturers of Europe and our own tender hearted importers have overlooked this situation which would offer them a fine chance to show how free trade helps the poor working man and the still poorer farmer by giving him cheaper products.

Senator Capper's statement will do much to clear up the misapprehension which has existed among some protectionists as to the state of feeling of the western farmer with regard to the tariff. The thinking farmer realizes now, as he always has, that the tariff is beneficial to him. What he wants is not less of it but more of it wherever he thinks it will do him any good.

Returning tourists say that German visitors in Paris get better treatment than Amercans. Anyway, the Germans are getting much better treatment than they would have had they arrived back in 1917.

TARIFF AND THE FARM

Evidently the tariff on products from the farm and any proposed increase of the same are not entirely popular with all those persons and organizations which pretend to have a deep sympathy with the farmer.

Benjamin C. Marsh, executive secretary of the People's Reconstruction League, an organization which is always hostile to the protection of American industries, recently issued a broadside in which, among other things, he said:

"Tariff on wheat, oats, corn and also on wool, sugar and butter is a subsidy to owners of farm lands, paid by the consumers of America, which injures the actual producing farmer almost as much as it does the consumer. It tends to another orgy of speculation in farm lands, like that of 1916 or 1920."

It is a little difficult to follow Mr. Marsh in all his statements, but he evidently fears that an increased tariff on farm products will induce another era of "speculation in farm lands." Just now farm lands are not selling very easily. Now if we are to have speculation and a rising tide of the value of farming lands it will be necessary first for the farmers to get higher prices for their products and to make more money. For it is profitable farming above all else that tends to increase the value of farm land. And if, as Mr. Marsh states, the tariff on farm products tends to increase the price of land it will do this of course for the reason that the farmers are making more money. Mr. Marsh pretty well proves the case of the protectionists without going any further.

What the farmers want is higher prices and more profits on their products, with the subsequent stiffening in the price of land. They prefer this to any theoretical program which promses to do something for the "producing farmer" but fails to land anywhere. What is hurting the farmer more than all else is the depressed price of farm lands, which has reduced his credit and prevents those who have borrowed too heavily from selling off some of their land and thus making ther financial position safe. Farmers will surely not "view with alarm" Mr. Marsh's prediction of rising land prices as a result of the protective tariff.

Mr. Marsh deplores the fact that a third of the farms are operated by tenant farmers, and if Mr. Marsh will interview a few of them he will find that the owners of tenant farms during the past few years have been just as sorry about it as he can be, since they have been holding these farms without much profit to themselves. If there has been any increase in land tenancy it has not been due to the tariff but to the fact that every year a new supply of farmers moves to town.

Farmers who were successfully urged to relieve their distress by voting against a protective tariff in 1892 do not remember that 15-cent corn helped much along in 1894.

DR. JOE JOHNSON STANDS HIGH AS INSURANCE EXECUTIVE

Now President of Interstate Life and Accident Company With Headquarters at Chattanooga.

The Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times, in its issue of Sunday, August 15, contains a picture of Dr. Joe W. Johnson, together with a very comprehensive and interesting story of his rise to power and fame in his adopted city of Tennessee. Dr. Johnson is a native of Clanton, a brother of Mrs. P. D. Wilson, and his many friends here have followed the news of his success in recent years with much interest.

Dr. Johnson went to Chattanooga several years ago and engaged in the practice of his medical profession, taking to the surgery end of his training with much success. He is regarded as one of Tennessee's most eminent surgeons today. Medicine and surgery must have been a natural trait with him. It is natural with his whole family. Long years ago the Johnsons started out to being doctors, and as the younger ones came along they took to it just like ducks to water.

The story referred to in the beginning of this article, however, deals mainly with a somewhat new activity which Dr. Johnson has taken on in later years, the insurance business. He has apparently made as much or more of a success as an insurance executive, than he has of medicine or surgery. The Times story says in part:

"The Interstate Life and Accident Company now stands second in size among institutions doing its type of business in the United States, it is stated, and has, under the administration of Dr. J. W. Johnson, president, and well-known physician, more than doubled its income during the current year. It is recognized as one of the leading industrial companies operating in the United States. Dr. Johnson was for 20 years medical director of the Volunteer State Life Insurance Company, and it is largely due to his untiring efforts with this ocmpany that it has recorded such an outstanding success."

Under the plans of Dr. Johnson his company, the Interstate, recently bought out and took over the business of the Southern Life Insurance Company, of Nashville, consolidating the same with the business of the Interstate. It is said that the deal involved a sum in excess of twenty million dollars.

The Hamilton County Herald, another Chattanooga paper, has this to say about Dr. Johnson:

"Doc Joe deserves a lot of credit for his work. He has done a lot for the city both directly and indirectly. The gilded dome calls him prominent local physician and financier. We'd call him (and his friends would all agree) fine physician, fine gentleman, fine soldier, and danged fine insurance man."

When "Doc Joe" was a boy growing up around Clanton, and when he later left here to go out in the world to make a place for himself, there were those, plenty of them, who knew he had the right kind of spunk to put himself across somewhere. That he has done so is a source of much gratification to his friends in Clanton and Chilton County. He comes down here to see his falks every once in a while, and of course everybody is always glad to see him.

CHEVROLET ZONE MANAGERS HAVE ROUSING CONVENTION

Marked by an enthusiastic optimism over the prospects of increasing Chevrolet sales by 1,000 more cars per day during the coming year, more than 1,000 members of the company's sales force, who supervise 8,500 Chevrolet dealers, closed a 4-day convention in Detroit August 26, held for the purpose of formulating plans for 1927 sales.

From every division of the company—sales, advertising, parts and service, and engineering—came technical experts who contributed their specialized knowledge to the convention, held in the magnificent new Masonic Temple auditorium—the largest of its kind in the middle west.

As a result the delegates left for their zones with a profound conviction that the additional cars the company will be enabled to build under a $10,000,000 expansion program inaugurated June 1 of this year, will be marketed through increased efficiency in sales methods.

NOTES OF TRAVEL

(By S. E. Norton)

We have had another exceedingly enjoyable trip and a delightful visit with our former Thorsby friends, Mr. and Mrs. Yancey M. Kelley and their little daughter, Audry, at their home on a hill side in Portland, Conn., overlooking the Connecticutt River valley and the city of Middletown, with a population of 25,000 just across the river and less than a mile from their home. On this trip, instead of going up the east bank of the Hudson River, as we dd two years ago, we went in a northeasterly direction from Kenvil, passing through the great industrial cities of Passaic and Patterson, climbed to the top of the Palisades, a rocky eminence on the east bank of the Hudson River, where we zigzazed down a wide and steep highway blasted from the face of the rocky cliff to reach the river side at the bottom, where we waited for the ferry boat, just docked, while they discharged 23 automobiles, besides pedestrians. All clear, we were permitted to drive on and secure a place near the front of the boat, which gave us an unobstructed view up and down the river while crossing, which was accomplished from shore to shore in 7 mnutes.

This ferry landed us at the northern end of Manhatten Island, the Bronx, which was at one time the northern limits of New York City, but greater New York of today embraces a much lalrger area, crossing intervening waters and taking in several boroughs on the surrounding islands and mainland. After crossing the narrow end of Manhatten we reached the mainland by a bridge spanning what is called the Harlem River, which is a part of the waterway under various names which connects Long Island Sound, which is really a part of the Atlantic Ocean, with the Hudson River about 12 miles above where it flows into New York Bay at the south end of Manhatten Island. Let me say further, that while the Hudson River, without a bridge, borders the entire west shore of Manhatten Island, the east shore, with several bridge hof world-wide reputation span the water flowing and ebbing with the ocean tides between Manhatten and Long Island, as well as some lesser bodies of land.

After crossing the Harlem River bridge we made our way through the traffic congested streets of Bronx borough, once a big farm, but now an important part of New York City, to the open country on the Boston Post Road skirting Long Island Sound.

After crossing the state line into Connecticut the firrst town reached that was of any special interest to the writer was Stamford, where the writer and a younger brother were cared for by an aunt during the interim between the death of our mother and the time our father provided a new one for us. Another place on our route that was of special interest to us was Branford, among whose early settlers 1,635 to 1,645 were English emigrants, one of whom was John Norton, to whom our branch of the norton family can directly trace their ancestry, and whose name appears among a list who received grants of land at Branford, from the King of Enugland.

The shore lne of Long Island Sound is indented with numerous inlets and river mouths adjacent to which are located several towns of historical interest which have been from early times, as they are today, mportant in the industrial life of the state and nation. Among them is Greenwich, said to contain the homes of more than 100 millionaires, many of whom do business in New York City. However, as it was noon when we arrived we were more interested in getting something to eat than in nabobs. The most convenient and attractive place we saw happened to be a Y. W. C. A. restaurant—a delightfully neat and pleasant cofeteria, where the food was good and prices reasonable.

The next important town was New Haven, a regular hive of industry, and the seat of the great Yale University. From New Haven our route lay in a northerly direction, taking us away from the sea shore about 35 miles to Middletown, Conn., where we arrived without incident worthy of mention. Here we crossed the Connecticut River to Portland, and in a few minutes arrived at our destination, where we received a cordial welcome, and were glad to leave our car, as the speedometer showed we had come 164 miles from Kenvil.

After a night's rest and a good breakfast Saturday morning, while the others were busy at their various taks, Sereno G., with his mother and the writer, slipped away to Hartford, the state capitol, 15 miles from Portland, only 30 minutes drive over a splendid highway along the Connecticut River, where every mile is crowded with picturesque beauty so that one can never forget it. At Cromwell we saw the great Pierson greenhouses, covering many acres, and at Wethersfield a monstrous elm tree with a trunk of about 8 fee thickness, lofty spreading branches, and probably centuries of growth—a veritable land mark, without a rival of its kind.

While Sereno G. and his mother went shopping, the writer, like the small boy in one of Dickens' stories, was "left till called for" at the rooms of the Connecticutt Historical Society, where he spent an enjoyable hour perusing records of his ancestry, which he finds to be both "ancient and honorable," even before America was discovered, and having considerable influence in making early history in New England soon after the arrival of the Pilgrim Fathers.

At noon we drove back to Portland where we had dinner; then accompanied by our host and hostess, we took a highway which winds among the hills and valleys of central Connecticut, leading to the shore of Long Island Sound, literally the Atlantic Ocean, where we stopped at Hamonassett Beach, one of the upwards of 30 state parks scattered over the state and comprising about 10,000 acres of land and water, provided by the state as recreation places for all the people. At Hamonassett space is provided for campers and automobile parking; a great pavilion on the beach furnishes free benches and tables where at least 1,000 people can be seated at once, either to spread their own provisions or to eat whatever they choose to buy at the refectory, where prices are reasonable. Free drinking water and sanitary accomodations are ample and convenient. Lockers or dressing rooms large enough to accomodate 4 or 5 people are furnished at 25 cents. People are allowed to bring their own bathing suits, provided they conform to the ideas of decency promulgated by the management. No dressing or undressing is permitted in automobiles. The restrictions are few and simple; the people are put on their honor, which is seldom violated; life guards are stationed at intervals along the beach, and in the past 7 years since the park was opened there has never been a drowning accident.

How the people appreciate and enjoy the opportunities for recreation in the open spaces provided by the state is demonstrated by the fact, told the writer by the manager of this park, that the Sunday previous to our visit, there were 11,000 automobiles parked there and probably 40,000 people in attendance—an orderly, happy crowd. On Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Kelley and little Audrey accompanied us to another state park located on the bank of the Connecticut River, a quiet and restful place where one can sprawl on the grass without fear of being attacked by red bugs, etc., and enjoy the sunshine and the sparkling surface of the river.

Early Monday morning we bade good bye to our hosts and Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth, who had been very helpful in entertaining us, and started on our homeward way. This time much of our route lay over highways and through towns previously noted in "Notes of Travel" two years ago, until we reached Peekskill, on the Hudson River, where we stopped for dinner. After leaving Peekskill our route for the next hour was strewn with a continuous succession of the wonderful works of nature and triumphs of engineering skill. We started at the foot of a mountain called Anthony's Nose; for five miles we climbed up a highway blasted from the sandstone rocks in the side of the mountain, the great stones being used to form a parapet to prevent people and motor vehicles from falling down the cliffs, which rose higher and higher as we ascended, affording a great panorama of river and valley. Near the top we were stopped by a state trooper at a little pavilion and permitted to help pay for the blessings we had received and those of which we were about to partake, in tht form of $1.00 for toll. Proceeding on our way we soon reached the top, where we stopped a bit to take in the scene, which was simply indescribable. Valleys, mountains, river, and the great suspension bridge stretching across to the face of Bear Mountain, 250 feet above the water. After crossing the bridge our route lay for eight miles in Palisades Park. At one point we saw about 100 ships owned by the government and for sale by the U. S. Shipping Board, but being in something of a hurry we did not stop to buy. From this point there was nothing new to tell about.

AMERICA OF 1776 TO LIVE AT FAIR

Dramatic Incidents That Put British On Run Will Be Depicted In Fire

Alabama will observe the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence at the Alabama State Fair, with one of the largest historical pageants ever produced, according to President R. A. Brown and Secretary J. L. Dent, who have obtained this gigantic spectacle in commemoration of this milestone in early American history. The pageant will tell the story of the early struggles for liberty and many of the most stirring climaxes, such as the Boston Tea Party, the Ride of Paul Revere, the signing of the Declaration of Independence and the Battle of Yorktown will be produced in real life.

To do this effectively on the gigantic scale proposed, the best in drama, pageantry and spectacle have been combined into narrative founded on fact. Every episode of the story will be presented with historical accuracy. Colonial days of a century and a half ago will be brought to life again with strict fidelity to fact.

Their realism will serve to emphasize the strides in development this country has made in the intervening 150 years since the forefathers of this country laid down their life blood in order to lay the foundation of the present form of government.

The pageant to be styled "1776," will take place along more than 500 feet of exhibition field before the grandstand in view of the largest oil painting in the world, rising more than 50 feet in the air. This required over 50 artists nearly six months to paint. It presents the scenic background for much of the action, reproducing such scenes as old Boston in the day before the Revolution and Yorktown. An actual battle will be staged by hundreds of troops before this background.

Episodes requiring a wide change of scene from that of the historical panorama will be presented on a large outdoor stage at the center of the painting. This is over 75 feet in width and equipped with latest devices of approved stagecraft.

Hundreds of costumes are required to represent the dress of the times, while scores of cannon, hundreds of rifles, and thousands of bombs, shells and rockets will be used.

"Seventeen Seventy-Six" will be presented under the direction of the Thearle-Duffield Fireworks Company, a division of the World Amusements Service Association, of Chicago.

A CORRECTION

Editor Union-Banner:

Please permit me space to correct a statement made in your Mulberry-Isabella news last week. The item referred to is as follows:

"Mr. and Mrs. S. J. M. Webb and daughter, Aveline, attended the singing at Jemison Sunday."

Instead of going to the singing at Jemison, as above stated, I went to the Fifth Sunday meeting of the Chilton County Baptist Association at Union Springs west of Jemison.

The error was no doubt caused by a misunderstanding of your correspondent as to where I went. I hold it of no consequence, but I would like to have it corrected in order to keep the record straight.

The executive committee placed me on the program of the Fifth Sunday meeting, and I went there to comply with their request as best I could.

Thank you.—S. J. M. Webb, Maplesville, Ala.

More and more people are learning to use Doan's Pills, occasionally, to insure good elimination which is so essential to good health. More than 50,000 grateful users have given Doan's signed recommendations. Scarcely a community but has its representation. Ask your neighbor!

CAMP BRANCH

We are having quite a bit of sickness in our community.

Mr. Hermon Holcombe who is working in Birmingham, spent the week end with his father.

Mrs. Lillie Benson of Birmingham attended Sunday school at Camp Branch Sunday.

Miss Lola Mae Moody of Birmingham spent the week end with Miss Joyce Smith.

Mr. George Roach attended the singing in Birmingham Sunday.

Our school opens at this place on Monday, September 13, with Mr. R. F. Lyon as principal, and Joyce Smith as assistant.

The writer held a conference with W. T. Bean of Clanton, in which he stated that he would gladly accept the nomination for State Senator from the Counties of Shelby, Chilton, and Autauga, and that he would be glad to assist in any public meeting, held on week ends, for the benefit of the party and the ticket in Shelby County. Mr. Bean is a man of broad experience, having served his county as Superintendent of Education with the highest of honor and praise. Then, for a number of years he was general manager of Bean Brothers, mercantile establishment, where he proved his worth as a business man. At the present time he is principal of the Thorsby public school. In fact he is just another strong man added to the G. O. P. ticket in Shelby County. No man should feel ashamed, or hesitate to ask anyone in the county to support the entire ticket.

J. LeCroy of our own community, the lower grades. We hope this will be a successful year, and all teachers, pupils and parents should co-operate to make Isabella one of the best rural high schools in Chilton County. Prof. Earle Thomas is still in charge of the vocational department of the school.

Well, hurrah for "Uncle Remus, just from Shultz!"

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Armstrong attended the burial of Mr. George Martin at Providence on the 30th.

Died in the infirmary at Selma on the 29th, Mrs. Ludie McCary of Randolph, wife of L. M. McCary. She was formerly Miss Ludie Greene. She was buried at Randolph cemetery on August 30th.

Rev. J. B. Price of the Christian Alliance persuasian, Montevallo R 2, preached to a large audience at Freeman school building Sunday night, August 30th.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hodgens, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Armstrong motored to Lomax Saturday and Sunday to the singing convention.

Isaac Waldrop and son, Oscar, after visiting here for several days left for Illinois Saturday. Mr. Waldrop will stop at Maben, Ala., to visit his daughter, Mae, en route to the north.

Mr. W. R. Redden motored to Lomax to the singing Sunday.

Oscar Waldrop with his father and Mrs. Ernest Smith, Vince Crumpton, Homer Jones, and his mother, all motored to south Lawley visiting on August 29th.

The writer had the pleasure of being at the semi-annual session of the Harp and Harmony singing convention at Lomax Sunday. It was a great success. Attendance was large as usual. Many directors were present. The music was sweet and inspiring. Nice order and good attention prevailed. Mr. John Hayes left the infirmary at Birmingham to be there. There were a half dozen children and young lady directors there, and their direction was admirable. The young men did fine work also. The service in memory of Messrs. Lowery, Martin, Baker, and Profs. White and Walker was well conducted by Messrs. Armstrong, Jackson and Hayes. Prof. W. L. Sanders was one of the leading spirits of the occasion, and is doing a fine musical work at Lomax. He informed the writer that there is talk of erecting a large union music hall at Lomax, the center of the state. The people of Lomax sure know how to entertain a convention. Such dinners, free for all. They were wonderful—they were a bounty. Next session goes to Pleasant Grove M. P. church, southwest of Clanton, First Sunday in May.

But the smiling candidates were conspicuous by their absence.

JOHN F. BONE DIED SUDDENLY

John F. Bone, age about 75 years, died suddenly on the road west of Clanton last Thursday night about eight o'clock.

Mr. Bone lived at Sylacauga. He wrote to his daughter, Mrs. F. S. Headley, that he was coming to Clanton on No. 3. The train was late and no one met him. He started walking toward the home of his daughter, and was picked up by a boy with a wagon. When the wagon was about Green Foshee's place, the man died suddenly.

Undertaker Martin brought the body back here, prepared it for burial and shipped it to Sylacauga Friday. The decased was a brother of the old preacher Bone.

COMPETITION IN WORDS

One who goes into the market to buy a motor car today is naturally confused.

He has read the words best and greatest so often that they have ceased to be convincing. Where all is best, he reflects, there can be no best.

Thousand-dollar cars have been described to him in ten-thousand dollar language. And vice versa.

He finds himself the target in a war of adjectives; the helpless victim in a gigantic competition of words.

And so he is forced to rely on chance—the advice of friends—or his own limited experience.

Dodge Brothers, Inc., have never participated in this verbal competition.

They are content with the position they have long maintained in the far more vital competition of honest value.

They have continued steadily to improve their product, not only in comfort and beauty, but basically—beneath the body and hood where fundamental values lie.

Yet they have not unduly stressed each betterment that has marked the steady progress of their motor car toward a higher perfection.

And when economic conditions or greater sales have permitted them to reduce prices without reducing quality, they have announced the fact without excessive emphasis.

Unexaggerated truth is not spectacular. But in the long run, implicit public confidence has been Dodge Brothers reward, and this they propose to preserve forever by continuing to build just a little better than they tell.

No Extra Session For Roads Likely At Present

Brandon Willing to Help Avert Cessation of Building, But Waits on Colonel Graves

Montgomery, Sept. 14.—Governor Brandon is willing, he says, to cooperate in every way with Governor-designate Col. Bibb Graves to prevent a cessation of road building in Alabama, but will not call a special session of the Legislature unless the incoming administration desires it.

The interview by Governor Brandon resulted Monday when his attention was called to the publication in the Sunday morning press of a letter written by Col. Graves to the Anniston Chamber of Commerce wherein the governor-designate said he did not think it advisable to have an extra session during the present administration.

Governor Brandon, when asked for a statement, said, "Unless the incoming administration desires an extra session and a definite program can be agreed upon, I can see nothing that can be accomplished by such call. However, I will co-operate in every way possible with the governor-designate that there may be no cessation in road building in Alabama. Governor-designate Graves being out of the State, I have been unable to ascertain his plans, except what I have read in the newspapers, and I cannot say whether he will ask for an extra call or not."

Civic bodies and boards of revenue in Alabama have recently become active in an effort to devise some way to keep road building going in Alabama. It has been pointed out that the proceeds of the $25,000,000 bond issue will be exhausted practically before the present administration will go out of office in January. It has been pointed out that under the constitution an amendment to the constitution cannot be submitted to the voters of the state until 90 days after final adjournment of the Legislature submitting the amendment. It has also been pointed out that in the event Col. Graves decides to have a $25,000,000 bond issue submitted, the people cannot vote on such a proposal until 90 days after adjournment of the Legislature submitting it.

Voting Day in December, 1927.

It is pointed out that in the past, Legislatures have had what is known as split sessions. That is, the Legislature uses up from 15 to 20 working days when it convenes in January and then adjourns until mid-summer when the incoming governor has had time to study better the problems of the State. It is then that revenue and appropriation bills are passed. It is pointed out, that should this course be followed by the Graves Legislature it will be the middle of September, 1927, before the Legislature finally adjourns. Ninety days would have to elapse, it is pointed out, before the people could vote on a $25,000,000 issue if it were submitted. This would mean that the voting day would be in December, 1927. No bonds could be advertised for and sold and contracts let for road work before the middle of February, 1928, it is pointed out.

Advocates of a continuation of road building say that Governor-desgnate Graves may decide to construct roads by the imposition of an additional gasoline tax. Road builders point out that in event he should do this, it would be a year or more before a fund of any appreciable extent could be laid up in the treasury for the construction of roads.

Governor-designate Graves could not be reached Monday for a statement as to his plalns. He is in Washington, it was learned, and is not expected back in Montgomery for several days.

THREE STILLS DESTROYED TUESDAY

Sheriff Littlejohn, Deputy Foshee, and Federal Agent Gillespie, destroyed three large stills Tuesday near the old Stooping Pine school house close to Shaw's Mill on Waxahatchie. The three stills were connected, each being of 300-gallon capacity. Two of the stills were "loaded" but the owners had neglected them so long that the beer was spoiled. It is thought that they had got suspicious about the officers watching the still. No arrests were made, as no one ever came to the still while the officers watched.

THE KINK IN MR. JONES

Mr. Jones was one of those nervous persons inclined to hypochondria. His imagination, from time to time, afflicted him with maladies which never really materialized. Nevertheless, his devoted wife continued to share his apprehensions at each fresh alarm.

One afternoon long before his usual hour for returning from business he fell into the house. His face was white as chalk, and in his eyes was a stricken look. He was bent forward. He tottered to a chair, and, still curled into a half-moon shape, dropped into it.

"Maria," he gasped, "it's come at last! I'll never be a well man again!"

"Merciful heavens!" she cried. "Henry, what has happened!"

"There was no warning," he said. "All of a sudden, awhile ago, I found I couldn't straighten up. I can't lift my head. I feel all drawn."

"Is there any pain?" she asked, fluttering about in her distress.

"No," he said, "there's no pain—that's what makes me think it must be paralysis. Run for the doctor!"

She ran. She returned in a few minutes, bringing with her the family physician. She ushered him into the room where the sufferer was and waited at the door, wringing her hands and dreading the worst.

Almost immediately the physician emerged. He had his face in his hands and his shoulders heaved and shook as though under the stress of an uncontrollable emotion.

"Oh, doctor," cried the agonized Mrs. Jones, "is there any hope for him?"

"Well, madam," he said, "it'll help a good deal if he'll unhitch the third button of his vest from the top button of his trousers."

Improvement Noted At Chilton Co. High School

Outside appearances at the Chilton County High School indicate that somebody has arrived upon the scene —somebody with a notion of doing something. The grounds have been plowed and are being put in shape for sowing lawn grass. A curved driveway has been laid out extending from either corner of the west campus past the main front entrance of the building. It looks good, and will soon look even better. A concrete walk is to be placed from the front of the building straight to the sidewalk.

Inside the school house many changes are taking place. Some improvement is being done every day. A little paint, a little plaster, and other things here and there, are making the building look much better.

Not only are the physical needs of the place being attended to, but also the atmosphere of school work has taken a change. The students of the school are saying: "It looks like we might learn something in this school from the way it is starting off this year."

Congratulations to Prof. Elsworth Ellis and his associates on the teaching staff. They appear willing to work to make the school what it ought to be. May they have the full cooperation of the citizens of Clanton and Chilton County.

The fact that our county high school has not been what it ought to have been in recent years does not mean that it can't be done. It menas that somebody has failed to do their duty. It may truly be said that a portion of this failure belongs to an indifferent citizenship. Unless this citizenship expects to take all the blame for what failure may come from now on, it is evident that we have got to get busy for the school. The teachers and students, unless we guess wrong, have fully determined to do their part.

Mr. Ellis took hold of the school in the middle of last year at a time when it was badly disorganized. Little progress could be made then, but he got his bearings and set his course. Now he has started out in a year all his own, free from whatever incumbrances he inherited last year. The start looks promising.

JOHNSON MOTORS CHOSEN BY THE TURKISH GOVERNMENT

Better than Ever-

Following their traditional policy of constant improvement with no yearly models, Dodge Brothers, during the past eight months, have vastly bettered their motor cars in many vital respects.

Indeed, there has never been an equal period in Dodge Brothers history when so many refinements of a popular and fundamental nature have been made.

The public is registering its appreciation of this progressive industrial service by purchasing every motor car Dodge Brothers can build—in spite of the fact that Dodge Brothers production, during these months, has broken all previous records by an impressive margin.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION AT WHITE CITY

Several people from Chilton County gathered with Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Baker at the church at White City last Sunday, the occasion being the celebration of the birthday anniversary of their son, Carl, just 21 years of age. Rev. E. A. Norris filled the pulpit in the morning. At the end of the service, the birthday celebration began, when Mr. Gillespie, Ford dealer of Prattville, arrived with a 1927 model Ford roadster, a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Baker to their son.

An invitation was extended to everyone to remain for dinner, and several stayed, making a merry group who, after thanks had been offered by Rev. Norris for the good things of life, enjoyed a sumptuous dinner, which was spread on the platform near the church. After dinner, pictures were made of the crowd and of individuals. Friends and relatives of the young man from Chilton County who were present were: Mr. and Mrs. John Baker, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Bill Coggins, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tippett, Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Johnson and children, Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Mims, Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Mims, Mr. Reese Baker, Miss Orabelle Easterling, and others. Singing was enjoyed in the afternoon.

The young man received gifts and congratulations on every hand, and the Ford roadster presentation was all the better in that it came as a complete surprise.

NON-RESIDENT NOTICE

State of Alabama, Chilton County.—Circuit Court In Equity, August 27, 1926. Cora Mae Thornton, Complainant, vs. Zebiedee Thornton, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of G. C. Walker that the Defendant is a non-resident, and that his place of residence and post-office address is unknown, and that such address can not be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is of the age of twenty-one years:

COTTON CROP REPORT

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 8.—A crop of 1,085,000 bales is indicated by the cotton condition of 61% of normal, according to a summary of the September 1 cotton report released by F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician, today. This compares with 1,357,000 bales harvested in 1925, and less than a half million bales in 1924.

The indicated number of bales is obtained by computing the prospective acre-yield of 139 pounds into an average of 3,730,000, which are left growing after an abandonment of 1.5% from the acreage growing on June 25, is accounted for. The acre-yield last year was 185 pounds, while in 1924 the average per acre was 154. The present crop is therefore only about 75% as good as that of last year. The average this year is, however, greater than that harvested last year by 226,000, or 6.4%.

The final harvest of the crop now indicated depends, of course, on normal development from this time to final harvest.

Cotton has, in the ordinary course of things, just about completed its setting of fruit which may be expected to mature and open. A very favorable season with late frost might result in a greater yield in most of the state, while weevil and worm damage may lower the yield now in prospect.

LEGAL NOTICE

State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Notice is hereby given that on this, the 4th day of September, 1926, Dezzie Littlejohn, guardian of Evelyn Littlejohn, a minor, and Evelyn Littlejohn, a minor over the age of 18 years, filed in the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama, In Equity, a petition seeking to remove the disabilities of non-age of said Eevelyn Littlejohn, and any person may appear in said Court and contest said petition as they deem proper.

CHEVROLET FACTORY EXPANDING

Preparing facilities for manufacturing 1,000 more cars per day in 1927, the Chevrolet Motor Company is proceeding rapidly with additions to its plants and equipment in the United States.

These additions are being made under the $10,000,000 expansion program announced recently by W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager of the company.

The addition to the huge motor plant at Flint is now well under way. New machinery for making cylinders, cam shafts and small parts is arriving daily and extensive enlargements are being made at the Flint sheet metal division. A building 206 feet long and 134 feet wide is under construction to increase production at the Toledo transmission plant. Enlargement of the heat treat department of the Bay City small parts plant will provide additional facilities there.

In Detroit the building known as General Motors Truck Company plant No. 7 has been purchased for manufacturing axles and small parts and will be merged with the gear and axle plant.

New buildings and the erection of 37 steam forging hammers at the Detroit forge plant will make this plant one of the largest forging centers in the United States.

Chevrolet factories at Cincinnati, Janesville and St. Louis will be extensively enlarged under the program. Fisher body plants at these cities are to be augmented, providing facilities for manufacturing 750,000 closed bodies and 250,000 open models.

A proportionate increase in employees will follow the completion of these plant additions.

UNION GROVE

The United Singing Society met in regular session here Sunday afternoon and did some real good singing. Directors for the afternoon were Messrs. A. H. Glasscock, Akins Collins, and E. L. Glasscock, with A. H. Glasscock directing the second time. Organists were Misses Jewel Bean, Lois Glasscock, and Mrs. Belle Dorminey. A good crowd was in attendance, and all seemed to be unusually interested, as both the Showalter and Stamps books were used, and many new songs sung, to the delight of the great audience who listened throughout the two hours of almost continuous singing.

After a short discussion the society decided to accept the special invitation and attend the all day singing at Maplesville next Sunday instead of meeting in regular session as usual at Collins Chapel, and to meet with the Verbena class at the Verbena Baptist church the fourth Sunday afternoon instead of Oak Hill. Now, let all who can possibly do so visit the above named places on these dates, for you may feel sure there is a great blessing in store for you if you are a lover of good music.

The Withdrawal of the Candidate

When Miss Annie Oakley, the famous rifle shot, was traveling through the country giving exhibitions of her skill at theaters, she reached a small town in Texas; and her manager inserted an advertisement in the home paper for a smart colored boy to assist in the performance. Applicants were instructed to apply at the stage door of the local opera house at 1 p. m. sharp.

When the manager arrived he found the passageway congested with little negroes, each eager to testify to his smartness. He made a selection, picking out a spry boy of about twelve. He took his applicant inside and stationed him near the wings.

"You will stand right here and not move," he said. "When the curtain goes up, Miss Oakley will come out and talk to the audience for a few moments. Then I will balance a small apple on your forehead and the lady will go over on the other side of the stage yonder and shoot it off."

The candidate grabbed for his hat, his eyes wildly rolling in search of the nearest path to safety.

"Mistah," he demanded, "who's goin' to shoot whut apple offer whose haid? Me, why I wouldn't let mah own mammy shoot no apple offer mah haid, let alone it's some stranger!"

And he was gone.

Gives You confidence

HOW conscious we are of our skin! Even one little pimple or blackhead will so embarrass us that we want to hide right away. And eczema boils, blotches and rashes! Why, these awful things simply destroy all our ambition!

But what confidence we have in ourselves if our skin is clear and unblemished—free from any eruptions or breaking out! A clear skin is one of the greatest possessions in the world—and it is so easy to have it. All that is necessary is to keep our systems full of rich, red, pure blood. S. S. S. helps Nature build this blood. And the impurities that cause these so-called skin disorders are driven right out of the system.

If you want the kind of skin that captivates men and compels the admiration of other women, just remember that you can't have it if your blood is impoverished. But, just build red-blood-cells in your blood with S. S. S. and your dream of a soft, rosy velvet skin, clear of blemishes, will be realized. Then notice the difference in the way you feel.

S. S. S. has proven for generations that it helps Nature build the rich, red blood that makes beautiful skin and healthy bodies. Let S. S. S. prove it for you.

Get S. S. S. from any drug store. And get the larger bottle. It's more economical.

WHAT THIS COUNTRY NEEDS

What this country needs isn't more liberty, but less people who take liberties with our liberty.

What this country needs is not a job for every man, but a real man for every job.

What this country needs isn't to get more taxes from the people, but for the people to get more from the taxes.

What this country needs is more tractors and less detractors

TAKING AN INVENTORY

Every town likes to grow, and every town likes to develop into a city. It is human nature to desire progress, and it is the progress we make which marks us from the lower animals. Of course every city can not develop into a metropolis, and all towns can not develop into great manufacturing cities. But in nearly every city and town it is possible to get better year by year.

There are different ways of developing. The commonest one of course is to bring new industries into the community. Before this is undertaken the community might well take a survey of its industries and its natural advantages. This ought to be done every year or two so that any work performed by the commercial club or civic organization will not be done blindly, but with some definite plan in view. Every enterprising merchant takes an inventory of his business once or twice a year. Why should not the city and town take stock of what it has and what it expects to do in the succeeding twelve months?

Some cities and towns are ideally situated for certain kinds of industries, and other communities would naturally attract different industries. The thing for the enterprising community to do, of course, is to find out the kind of business it can get and then go after it.

If this is done there is little doubt that the average community can do some developing. There are many industries anxious to leave the congested centers of population for various reasons. As a general thing small factories which are apt to grow into big institutions do a town more good than the larger kind which are apt to make its industrial life one-sided. And as like attracts like one or two industries of a certain kind are likely to bring similar or correlating industries into the city.

Why not take an inventory of our town and see what can be done?

What most of these European countries who are trying to find a place in the sun really need is a set of awnings.

AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP IS MOST PRECIOUS HERITAGE

One of the most precious heritages which can be bequeathed to the future generations is the heritage of American patriotism, according to James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, who has written a stirring article for the current number of the National Republic on the subject. Secretary Davis emphasizes the importance of the proper training of our children along patriotic lines and declares that the future of civilization rests with America.

The Secretary says:

"I believe that every child should receive a high school education, that he should be taught a trade by which he can earn a living, and that he should be instructed in the eternal truths of religion. My great work in life has been to see that our youth receive a proper training to fit them for the performance of the necessary tasks of existence, and to make of them loyal and patriotic Americans.

"We can never do too much for the children of our nation. The Talmud declares that the world is saved by the breath of the school children, and in this declaration is heard the voice of wisdom. In every generation there are great statesmen, thinkers, artists, inventors, warriors, persons of every high and needed excellence. But none of them remains in the world long. The years of a man are only three score and ten. And sometimes when a great man dies, we wonder if it will be possible to replace him. Who will do our thinkink for us, who will make the great scientific discoveries, who will invent new machines or improve the old ones, who will inspire mankind to new heights of endeavor, who can be trusted to conserve the gains that have been wrested from nature by the past? We shall be here only for a little while before we go to join the "silent majority," and who will take up the burden when we have laid it down? It is these children to whom we often pay such slight heed that will succeed us. They are the ones who will do the thinking and inventing and all the other necessary work of life in a not remote future. It is the children of today who will save the world if it is destined to be saved.

"There is reason for thinking that the future of civilization is now in the hands of the American people. The World War left the Old World stricken with an all but fatal wound. Its people are burdened under the weight of a mountain of debt. In some places pessimism tends to be the creed of the hour. Never before has the responsibility of America been so great. Are we big enough to meet the issues of our day? Have we the capacity of mind that our age demands? Are our hands sufficiently strong and steady to carry on the torch of civilization that has been passed on to us? These are solemn questions to which history can furnish no answers."

Tests have been made which are said to prove that airplanes can make it rain. But the cheapest and most effective way to get a shower is to plan for a picnic.

MORE EVIDENCE WE SHOULD "HOE OWN ROW"

The discussion of an economic boycott by European countries against America will furnish the thoughtful American with another good reason why we ought to direct more and more of our attention toward the development of the Western Hemisphere, according to the National Republic, which comments in its current issue in its Departmtnt of the Trend of National Affairs, on the subject of economic boycotts as follows:

"There is talk in Europe of an economic boycott directed against the United States. There is bitter complaint because American financiers are investing billions in Europe and seeking to reduce the continent to 'economic serfdom.' It is evident that more and more the United States should 'hoe its own row.' We have a world in this hemisphere, and even within the boundaries of the United States. We produce as much of the staples of industry as all of Europe combined. We could live and prosper if the wish of Thomas Jefferson that the Atlantic Ocean 'were a lake of fire' were realized. With the present tremendous export of American capital to Europe, and the importation of European goods and immigrants, we should think a little less of Europe's prosperity, as Jackson once said, and a little more of our own. Our helping Europe has brought us only ingratitude and deep hatred. The more help we give the more hatred and ingratitude we may expect. Therefore the sensible thing to do is to attend to our own business strctly, and let Europe attend to hers. If Europe finds American tourists distasteful, the granting of passports for tourist travel in Europe should be suspended."

IN REGARD TO PUBLISHING POETRY

Since we have received a number of "poems" recently with request that they be published, we deem it proper to state that as a rule, The Union-Banner does not cater to the publication of amateur poetry. Such compositions are usually worthless. The best poetry is bad enough. It is about once in a century that a poet comes along in the world able to write poems that are worth while.

It is a custom with some folks to write articles about the death of friends or relatives, and conclude with a "poem" about a yard long. We seldom publish that kind of poetry. Space is too much needed for other things. We do not object to folks writing obituaries about their friends and loved ones. But we do reserve the right to revise such articles according to our own notions.

SIGNS OF FALL

Fall Weather Forecast

You can look for quite a few warm days yet - - due to an atmospheric condition that will be produced by the hot air emanating from leather-lunged politicians doing their pre-election promising.

Hospitals all over the country are putting in extra beds and cots. The football season is about to start!

Stockings come high these days. In price we mean - - not because of cooler temperatures.

Newspapers are no longer boring. Bathing beauty pictures of perfect "56's" are now out of season.

"Easy Trousers" are the new Fall style for men. Yes, a lot of 'em do look "easy." Roomy enough to be worn by Charlie Chaplin!

Many a married man is hocking his car to get his wife the demanded fur coat. And he'll have to keep warm by "getting hot under the collar" thinking about the deal.

Lot of bank accounts are being repaired - - after the wreck that vacation time made out of them!

English As She Is Spoke !

Certain persons are making the English language less understandable every day. Had a friend take us for a fish this morning. "Let me take a fin," he said. Further explanation, however, revealed that he was only trying to make a touch. But - - he didn't hook us.

Flapper Flips

A flapper's life is just one quarrel after another - - with her complexion. Isn't she always making up?

If conscience is a person's guide, the modern flapper - - with her shortage of wearing apparel - - is in danger of catching cold

Smilin' Charlie Says-

"When a fellow starts tellin' you how good he is, it shows he doesn't believe it himself, and is afraid YOU won't--"

They Should Hire A Hall !

Folks who live in the modern, small, try-and-find-me apartments - - shouldn't try any "daily dozen" exercises. They might "skin" their knuckles on the walls.

Fellow got the best of us today - - our watch and wallet. If he'll come back, he can have our gold teeth, too.

We Were Much Impressed

Now we know what our birthstone is. Had a birthday yesterday and an enemy dented our memory with a - - Brick!

"Hope springs eternal in the human breast," said the speaker of the evening. Just then - - his starched shirt front buckled with a loud "Bang!"

"Over the top!" - - shouted the ex-army sergeant, as his wife let the coffee boil over.

Now that the ladies have taken to wearing extreme boyish bobs and rompin' about in golf knickers - - it won't do for us men to run up behind somebody, thinking we recognize an old friend, and administer a stinging slap on the back.

Chilton County High School Department

New Departments In High School.

Several new subjects are being offered in the Chilton County High School this year, including: Voice, Piano, Expression, Harmony, and Music Appreciation. A new piano and orthophonic Victrola have been installed for the benefit of the music students. Anyone in the community who is interested in studying Expression or Music should see Mr. Ellis or Miss Donnelly at the office of the County High School, to make arrangements for enrollment.

Athletics.

All students who expect to attempt to qualify for athletics in Chilton County High School must remember to enter before the end of the first 20 days of school.—O. V. Bruner, Coach.

Library Work.

Parents of high school students, especially the mothers, are requested to meet at the high school building next Friday afternoon at 3:30. We hope to make this an important meeting, and all who can are urged to be present.

A library drive is being started to increase library facilities. We want the best county high school library in the state and the people of Clanton are urgently requested to help us put this over immediately. No doubt a number of books belonging to the library have not been returned in years past. If such books are found about your homes, please have them returned. All books are being catalogued, and a drawing system will be used. We hope by this means to be able to keep up with all books in the future.

A number of other improvements are being pushed rapidly. We ask the cooperation of the people of Clanton to the end that Chilton County High School can take its place in the front rank of all things. School has started off splendidly, and we want to keep up the spirit.

Repairs Being Made.

The Manual Training boys have painted the new Music and Reception room; repaired doors and seats; made mallets; and are now making library and sewing tables for use in the study hall and Domestic Science rooms. The city has been kind enough to prepare the campus for seeding. A new walk is to be laid, and a semi-circular drive leading to the front entrance. The campus will be an attractive setting for the school, and a beauty spot for the citizens to be proud of.

Music Appreciation Class.

Many students have shown an interest in the Music Appreciation class which is meeting for the first time this week. This is proven by the large enrollment; about 35 have enrolled, which number is about equally divided between boys and girls. Any student in Junior or Senior classes may elect this subject, for the one period a week in which it meets. A new portable Victor, built on the orthophonic principle, and the Ginn Music Appreciation records have been purchased.

Dramatics.

All students who are interested in Dramatics and care to take part in plays and operettas, will see Mr. Ellis about try-outs. A cast will be selected in September for a play to be given this fall.

ELMER JACKSON IN THE ARMY

Editor Union-Banner:

We have just enlisted one of your young men of Clanton, Ala., and were much impressed with his class and physical proportions. Mr. Elmer Jackson has been ordered to Field Artillery at Fort Bragg, N. C., one of the very best posts in the Army, and one that has proven very attractive to the many young Alabamians now serving there.

Mr. Jackson wishes his relatives and many friends of Clanton and Chilton County to know of his movements, and states that he will be home on Christmas on furlough if possible. He is particularly anxious for his buddy, Eulious Foshee to join him at Fort Bragg, and has written to him. From our experience with thousands of recruits, we believe that Private Jackson will develop into a fine Artilleryman. If you have any more boys like Jackson, Mr. Editor, send us their names.—R. S. Woodson, Lt. Col. U. S. A., ret., Recruiting Officer.

PROTECTIONISTS ON OFFENSIVE

A few months ago we heard a lot about how the free traders were going to force the tariff issue and make it the leading bone of contention in the campaign which is now opening. We were told that the farmers were tired of protection, that it was of no benefit to them, and they wanted free trade so that they could buy cheaply of European products and find a better market abroad.

But something has happened to change the situation. Evidently the free traders have found that the desire for free trade among the farmers is not so keen as they thought it was. The statement of Senator Capper that what the farmers want is an increase in the tariff on certain farm products, came to them as a rude shock. And they have doubtless learned too that there is a demand in the South that the tariff wall be let alone so that the American producer may continue to have a chance. For the tariff is no longer a party issue. There are thousands of protectionists in the South now, and the farmers of the West have not changed on the subject. The industrial centers of course have always been for protection, but in certain localities where the financial interests have invested heavily in Europe, there has been a recession of protectionist sentiment. This has made the tariff less of a partisan issue than ever.

The free traders are no longer on the offensive so far as this campaign is concerned, and there is evidence that they will be on the defensive in the not distant future. For it is now becoming evident that the candidates in the coming election who have always favored protection, are going to make that the issue in their own campaigns. They realize that the country has not changed on the tariff and they are going to make the most of their position.

NOTES OF TRAVEL

(By S. E. Norton)

The week end comprising Saturday, Sunday, and Monday (Labor Day), was characterized by an unprecedented rush of people in and around New York City, to get somewhere, almost anywhere, into the open spaces of country and small towns.

Since there was practically a cessation of labor for three days the labor world and its family took advantage of excursion rates, by rail and water, in hordes. All manner of motor vehicles were pressed into service and filled to capacity by an eager throng intent on getting further afield than is practicable at ordinary week ends. All railroads in the district arranged to use every piece of rolling stock available for passengers. The Pennsylvania Railroad planned to run 340 extra trains of unusual length, and the New York Central 100. In each case these trains were in addition to the great number they run daily, all of which had extra coaches. Pullman reservations on all railroads were exhausted two weeks before the great exodus.

Trouble developed in the afternoon when a fierce electrical storm broke over the district, accompanied by a deluge lasting from 4:30 to 9:30 p. m. Nearly 3 inches of rain fell, flooding several subways and stopping the train service therein. Steamers landed thousands of passengers at the piers only to find motor vehicle traffic of all kinds practically suspended, because of the very dangerous condition of the streets, hence they must wait or walk in the rain. Many accidents and some fatalities were recorded in the papers the next day. The storm did not reach Kenvil until after 7 p. m., and was not severe then.

Knowing that traffic on the highways would be fierce, Sereno G. did not take his car out until about 4 p. m, when he invited his mother and the writer to visit the great experiment station of which he is one of the two assistant directors. The director has just returned from a two-months business trip in Europe. It being Labor Day there was nobody working, else we probably would not have been invited. Although our son has as a part of his duties, showing visitors the many interesting things the company has, and how they are used, it is usually present or prospective customers who are so favored.

Although the company name is The Hercules Powder Company, and their principal business the manufacture of powder and high explosives, they also manufacture what is known as naval stores, and other chemicals. At the experiment station a large number of chemists are employed in various laboratories, who are engaged in testing the ingredients used in the manufacture of their products, as well as the products themselves, and in developing new products and processes. In a large room which they call the arsenal, we saw shot guns and rifles of almost every known make, each requiring for its most effective use its special make of ammunition. Shells for the shot guns and cartridges for the rifles are loaded and each tested in the gun for which it is designed. They have apparatus to register the force of the powder when exploded, and also the speed at which the shot or bullet travels in an electrically operated shooting gallery. Time and distance are recorded—there is no guess work. In another room they have the breech of a big cannon without the barrel and no opening where the barrel belongs. A small charge of dynamite, a definite portion of a full charge, is placed in the chamber which is then tightly closed and electrically exploded and the force of it recorded, establishing the quality of the ammunition, so that any variation from the required standard may be corrected before making a quantity of it. A machine in the dynamite laboratory records the time required for an explosion to travel the length of a stick of dynamite. Although the explosion is half a mile from the machine the time is recorded in thousandths of a second. This determines how quick or how slow the stuff is, and also its force.

The company has other branches of industry requiring a vast amount of research work in a series of commodious and well equipped laboratories, physical, electrical, chemical, analytical, and photographic, each conducting a wide range of experiments under a force of trained experts. As a whole it appears to be a great educational institution of an advanced type; because here men learn what has been done, as recorded in the books in their large library. They must also learn by doing, much that has never before been done, discovering new elements in old things by subjecting them, or some constituent of an old thing to new and refining processes and develop a new product that is applicable to practical commercial use, to meet a demand for the ever changing processes of manufacture.

We can give two instances of ramifications of their business that are of interest to people of the South in utilization of by-products of our industries. One branch of their business is the manufacture of what is termed naval stores, consisting of turpentine, pine oil, and rosin.

At Brunswick, Ga., and Hattiesburg, Miss., they have plants devoted to the use of pine stumps and parts of pine trees left on our cut over lands after lumbering operations. They gather this material, grind it into splinters, and subject it to a distilling process from which they obtain something of each of the commercial products mentioned. The residue can be used for a pulp which makes a good grade of wrapping paper. These naval stores are further refined to produce certain standards of products for other materials of manufacture which they do not attempt to make.

On July 1 of this year the company acquired a controlling interest in a plant located at Hopewell, Va., devoted to the purification of cotton linters, which is the fuzz left on cotton seed at the gin, and is a by-product of cotton seed oil mills. If the linters were left on the seed when they are crushed to extract the oil, these linters, which comprise about one-tenth of the weight of the cotton seed, would absorb a lot of the oil. It is accordingly removed by the oil mills and sold as linters. The cellulose factory secures these linters and subject them to a process of purification. By another process the linters are bleached white as snow and dried. The purified linters form the raw material for the manufacture of "nitro cotton," an article of commerce which the Hercules company makes at another plant. It is used in the manufacture of high grade lacquers for automobiles; also in the manufacture of artificial silk and celluloid.

These things do not just happen—they are the result of hard study, exhaustive and often expensive experiments, and are only instances of the new things developed at the Hercules experiment station.

"PAN-AM" COMES SOUTH WITH $100,000,000

Mammoth Oil Concern Makes Entrance to Retail Field, Starting First in Five Southern States. Hundreds of Bulk Stations Erected Almost over-night.

"Those who would serve a great and growing community must work and build before demand instead of waiting for it," said F. H. Wickett, chairman of the Board of the Pan American Petroleum Corporation, in describing the rapid fire construction and record-beaking expansion of the largest business venture that ever originated south of the Mason-Dixon line.

In the offices of this newcomer in our great southern industries, Mr. Wickett told the full thrilling story of what every newspaper in the south has been watching for several months.

Romance, speed and sentiment, as well as hard work and matter-of-fact business, have played a part in this biggest development of its kind in the history of the South, according to Mr. Wickett, who has spent 27 years in close observation of the progress and promise of the southern states.

He has spent a considerable part of his life in Shreveport, La., and feels that Louisiana is his home in spite of the fact that business interests have taken him to different parts of the country.

But Mr. Wickett believes that his opportunity to appraise the future of the south has been due in great measure to the knowledge so gained of all parts of the country and the accurate comparison which monthly visits to the south for four or five years have enabled him to make.

The marked progress made in the building of roads—the great benefits that are sure to accrue from diversified crops, and the splendid enterprise shown by southerners in seeing their opportunities and grasping them had convinced him of the need for a superior service in supplying the south with fuel and lubricant for her countless motor cars.

A year or two ago he made an extended trip through the southern states accompanied by Robert G. Stewart, President of the Pan American Petroleum corporation. At the conclusion of this trip both Mr. Stewart and Mr. Wicke't were tremendously impressed with the opportunity the south afforded for the expansion of the distribution of Pan-Am gasoline and motor oils, and it was shortly after this trip that definite plans were made for giving the motorists of the south a service which would surpass in completeness the service rendered by any gasoline and motor oil distributors in any part of the country.

A little later there arrived in New Orleans the vanguard of leaders who were to set an organized army of 4,000 men in motion.

Five months have passed since then and today this section of the south has a motor fuel service it never knew before; made possible by the following factors:

One hundred millions of dollars in capital.

The largest fleet of oil tankers in the world.

A great refinery at Destrehan valued at $10,000,000.

Four hundred and fifty bulk oil stations in five states for re-distributing automotive fuel and lubricating oils to retail points.

Four thousand pump stations conveniently located for motorists and other consumers of fuel oils and lubricants.

A sales organization of more than 4,000 enthusiasts who think nothing of working 18 hours a day, and who are so proud of their great team they will talk your arm off right up to your shoulder once you mention the subject to them.

A solid guarantee of gasoline, crude oil and lubricant supply for the five states of Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida for more years than any reader of this article will live—a supply, by the way, from three great fields controlled by the organization and financed by an aggregate capital of about $380,000,000.

This organization, born and developed in world record time in the south out of a justifiable belief that the south is the bonanza land of tre era, is the Pan American Petroleum Corporation, with headquarters in New Orleans, branches in every city, town, village and hamlet of the five states, and tentacles reaching out in a manner that suggests a coverage of America in the near future

This territory will be served with "Pan-Am" products by John T. Ellis, who has under construction two filling stations in Clanton.

Keep in Trim!

Good Elimination Is Essential to Good Health.

THE kidneys are the blood filters. If they fail to function properly there is apt to be a retention of toxic poisons in the blood. A dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches, headaches, and dizziness are symptoms of this condition. Further evidence of improper kidney function is often found in burning or scanty passage of secretions. Each year more and more people are learning the value of Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, in this condition. Scarcely a nook or hamlet anywhere but has many enthusiastic users. Ask your neighbor!

The Bill of Complaint of the State of Alabama, on the relation of G. C. Walker, as Deputy Solicitor of Chilton County, Alabama, against one Chysler automobile, being exhibited to me, and it appearing therefrom that on the 8th day of August, 1926, one Roy B. Montgomery did transport in one Chysler automobile, Motor No. 53996, certain prohibited liquors or beverages, from one point in the State of Alabama to another, and that said automobile was on said day seized by the Deputy Sheriff of said County and said Bill of Complaint praying that said automobile be decleared forfeited to the State of Alabama, and for an order of condemnation and sale thereof.

It is, therefore, ordered and decreed that notice of the filing of said Bill of Complaint be given for three successive weeks in The Union-Banner, a newspaper published in the Town of Clanton, Chilton County, Alabama, and that all persons claiming or asserting any right, title or interest in said automobile be required to appear and assert such claim by the 2nd day of October, 1926, and that failing to do so, the said right, title or interest will be forever barred.

Given under my hand this, the 16th day of August, 1926.

IMPERIAL WIZARD SOUNDS BATTLE CRY TO KLAN

Immediate Offensive to be Launched Against "Romanism," Says Chief Of Hooded Organization.

Washington, Sept. 14.—An immediate offensive against "Romanism, alienism, bolshevism, and anti-Americanism of all kinds," was the battle cry sounded here today to the Ku Klux Klan by its emperor and imperial wizard, Dr. Hiram W. Evans.

There was an instant and vociferous response from the hundreds of delegates attending the third biennial klonvocation of the organization. Time and time again as the imperial wizard mapped out the klan program for the ensuing years, the Washington auditorium rang with the cheers of the knights.

After the imperial wizard had concluded his carefully prepared address, he announced that he had delayed acceptance of his re-election by the grand dragons for four years because he wanted the assurance of a united klan behind him in the program he had determined upon.

Immediately a cyclops from Alabama moved the endorsement of his re-election and his platform and administration, and a klansman from Texas seconded that motion. The response was a rush of delegates for the stage with a klansman from South Carolina, bearing the state banner, leading the procession.

Within a few minutes the imperial wizard was the center of a milling mass of shouting delegates and he finally was borne from the stage on the shoulders of four men, and carried around the immense hall while the delegates stood and cheered.

With the restoration of order the motion was carried by a rising vote and Dr. Evans accepted the endorsement with the promise to fight for klan principles to the end of his time.

While Dr. Evans was cheered again and again during his address, the greatest outbreak came when he urged klansmen to use every effort to "take the United States out of the world court." He was declaring for adherence to the principles of the founding fathers against entangling alliances.

STATE FAIR WILL BE ALABAMA'S MILLION DOLLAR SHOW IN BIRMINGHAM OCTOBER 4 WITH THOUSAND AND ONE BIG FEATURES

The Alabama State Fair—Alabama's Million Dollar Show—with all its wealth of novelty, pleasure, exhibits, prizes and a thousand and one other features, will throw open its gates to the people of the State, farmer and townsman, from October 4 to 9, in Birmingham.

The show, the like of which, it is said, Alabama has never seen before, will be held in a vast arena newly renovated, which boasts of a gigantic grandstand that seats eleven thousand people, new exhibit halls, cattle barns and stables.

These improvements have been made by the fair managers at an outlay of thousands of dollars in an effort to give the people of the State the finest show they have ever had.

Six thousand five hundred dollars in cash prizes for farm product exhibits will be given away during the five days the Fair runs, with the county exhibits receiving from $50 to $500, according to classifications and a $100 bonus in addition. The individual prizes will range from $50 to $250, while community exhibits will be awarded from $100 to $200 prizes.

In addition the management is offering $50 for the best display of cotton and another $50 for the best display of corn. Manager Dent states that further awards will be offered for everything grown in the garden and city folk as well as country dwellers, are invited to enter exhibits.

A new feature of the big show will be the horse show, which will be staged on the opening day of the fair, with prizes offered for the various classes that will enter.

Other than the exhibits which will be offered, a splendid cross-section view of the progress that is being made in Alabama in agriculture, education, industry, cattle and stock raising and conservation will be offered.

But while many are busy seeing the exhibits there will be thousands of other people who will want to see the horse races, a fine program of which is being arranged, watch the great gathering of Hippodrome acts in front of the grandstand or see the wonders and fun offered in the "Valley of laughs."

A special feature of the great array of Hippodrome numbers will be the fire works display, which will offer the dramatic incidents of the year 1776. This wonderful pyrotechnic pageant is said to be one of the most stupendous things that will ever show in Alabama.

America's great struggle for independence in that most famous of years will be shown in fire with hundreds of people taking parts in the stupendous scenes that follow. The glorious incidents, dear to the memory of every American, will live again, it is claimed.

Seven other marvelous numbers will be included in the Hippodrome program with the foremost clowns, acrobats, animal acts and circus features in the world have places in the presentation.

The Rubin and Cherry Shows will bring two train loads of features to the "Valley of Mystery and Laughter," while a final climatic thrill producer is to be offered in the automobile races with the greatest drivers in America taking part.

Officers of the State Fair are R. A. Brown, president; Sol Caheen, vice president; J. H. Loveman, second vice president; J. L. Dent, secretary and E. J. Adams, treasurer.

Special rates will be offered from scores of Alabama towns to Birmingham for this stupendous event—The Alabama State Fair in Birmingham.

PACIFIC STAR TO SHOW REAL SPEED

Dawson Will Pilot Marmon Special at State Fair

Perpetuating one of the greatest racing names of America, Jack Dawson, diminutive racing star who hails from the Pacific Coast and is piling up a formidable string of wins in middle-west starts this year, is heading for the south and will start in the auto races which climax the Alabama State Fair in Birmingham, Saturday, October 9.

On the coast, Dawson is known as one of the most daring of the scores of youthful drivers developed in the last few years and his many wins stamp him a winner on the dirt courses. As Ascot, the Los Angeles speedway; Spokane and Vancouver, at the Seattle road race course and in many other coast speed centers his name is a favorite with the fans who have made racing one of the greatest of sports.

In spite of his youth, Dawson is a star at long distance runs, and probably for that reason is a feature starter in road races. On the Seattle course and in the Phenix desert-runs he has written his name larger than any other youthful driver and is still forging ahead.

Dawson will start a Marmon Special in the Fair events, the same speed creation he wheeled in other middle-west starts. It was with this machine that he started in the last Pike's Peak hill climb, and was hitting along in second place until his machine broke an axle and slid into a bad gulley.

Regardless of his former starts, Dawson will face one of the toughest fields in his career in the Fair meet, for some of the world's best are in the lineup, including Ray Clay, the veteran who will start his powerful Premier; Clyde Kelly, Kansas City racing king and inventor of many auto devices; George Lyons, leader in Chicago track battles; and many others.

Education Stressed In Fair Program

The Alabama State Fair in Birmingham, October 4-9, will be above all an educational fair, according to a statement issued by the officers of the Fair.

To that end the entire mezzanine floor of the grand stand has been set aside for educational exhibits, not only of the Birmingham and Jefferson County schools, but more particularly also of Auburn and other State and especially vocational institutions.

This educational department will be under direction of H. B. Graves, who, for many years was connected with Birmingham's city schools and is familiar with all of their activities.

In order to leave the entire mezzanine floor for the educational department the management of the Fair found it necessary to move the exhibits of the Woman's Department under the Grand Stand, and this will occupy the entire northern compartment.

The Woman's Department as well as the Floral Department, will be in charge of Mrs. Gordon Patrick, who has been connected with the Alabama State Fair for several years. Mrs. Patrick is also well known as a composer of patriotic songs, including "Birmingham, My Home in Alabam".

Leona Harvester To Trot In Fair Races

Races will be a feature of the Alabama State Fair in Birmingham October 4 to 9.

The fastest pacers, trotters, and proud bloods of the racing world will match their speed against each other for handsome prizes.

Leona Harvester, the fast trotter owned by Bill Levy of Birmingham that won honors in the Grand Circuit races during the past season, will be among the blooded horses that will match their strength and skill on the half-mile oval.

Ralph Fies of Birmingham, will be in charge of the track and the races.

The speed event will be part of the program every afternoon.

sident's Message to the District Chairmen.

ır Co-Workers:

'his is the time of year when we in touch with our committees and that the membership chairman of h local P. T. A. is enrolling mems for the coming year. Some pay ir dues in advance, so they are dy to start right into the new r's work.

et us pay more attention to the ising conditions of our teachers ; year. I am sure they can do betwork if home surroundings and t rooms are comfortable and they assured that the P. T. A. of their ool is a true friend. We should allow other states to take our best chers. We need them, and still we not expect them to stay unless y are properly appreciated.

We are looking forward to our te Convention, which meets this ır in Ensley, Ala., November 3-5. are asking you, as district chairn, to let us know what you would e on your program. Judge Kelley Memphis, Tenn., is one of our outnding speakers. She was at the tional Convention in Atlanta.

We are asking each district chairn to have a typewritten report of work of her district, to be pubed in our next year book. You procure much information for this ort by writing or consulting the nty superintendents and supervis in your district.

We are working in harmony with public school and health forces of r state, and, together, we should accomplish much good for each community.

At our state convention we should like a display of school work from each district—a few health posters, or safety posters. A small space will be assigned to each of the 16 districts. The district chairman will be assisted by the committee she appoints to take charge of the exhibit. Please have a copy of each county newspaper with P. T. A. publicity. They are glad to furnish their subscribers with P. T. A. news.

We were much pleased at our national convention with the state songs and stunts that were put on at the luncheons and banquets. Shall we do the same at our convention? Each district is asked to do something clever and entertaining. About 4 minutes will be assigned to each district for this. Get together in time so that you will be proud of your district. "A little fun now and then is relished by the best of men."

Are you working to attain the "Standard of Excellence?" Miss Belser, of the State Department of Education, is sending to each president a copy of our state By-Laws, which has in it "Duties of District Chairman" and "Standards of Excellence." I am sure that each P. T. A. wants to be A-1.

It is very gratifying to see how the districts are working for our prizes. The Birmingham News will give $50 for the best essay on "What the P. T. A. Means to My School," written by a child in school. First prize is $25, second prize $15, third prize $10, the money to go to the P. T. A. of the school competing.

A banner will go to the district having the largest per cent increase in membership. Miss Danylu Belser is our state chairman on membership, address, Department of Education, State Capitol, Montgomery. A loving cup goes to the largest paid in membership of a P. T. A., judged by the state treasurer's books. Mrs. T. J. Skinner, Bessemer, Ala., is treasurer.

The loving cup won by the five associations last year will be competed for again this year. The third time an association wins it, it belongs to it. Are you 100% in membership? Your entire community is eligible to membership if they are interested in the children and would like to help the P. T. A. We should like for each district to send its district chairman to our state convention with expenses paid, and each association to send its president and principal of the school.

We hope each year to have a better convention than the one previous. We had 94% increase in membership the past year, and state-wide interest is assured us. Will you help us to make this convention what you would like for it to be? Yours in the work.—Josie Elliott, Mrs. W. J. Elliott, State President.

ICE CREAM SUPPER

There will be an ice cream supper at the home of H. L. Ratliff, near Sardis church, Saturday night. Everybody invited.

CARD OF THANKS

Editor Union-Banner:

With tender love and deep appreciation we offer our thanks to our relatives and friends who so faithfully stood by us during the death of our loved one, Berna Headley. We especially thank Dr. Gragg, Dr. Marcus, and the nurses at the hospital for their kindness and good attention. We also thank Mr. J. Mell Martin for his kindness. The beautiful flowers brought by many of our friends were appreciated beyond the power of words to express.

We feel that everything was done that was possible to save the life of our loved one but to no avail. Therefore we bow in humble submission to the will of God who called him home. —His wife, Rosie Headley, and his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Headley.

CARD OF THANKS

Our daughter, Miss Hayes, who has been in the Central Alabama Hospital for six weeks with typhoid fever, returned home September 12, and is improving nicely. We wish to thank Dr. Gragg, the nurses, and our friends in Clanton for their kindness and sympathy shown us during her sickness. May God's richest blessings rest upon each and every one who lent a helping hand, is our prayer.—Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hayes.

A child should have at least one large and choice picture of his own to hang in his room.

If wars could be conducted on the "pay as you enter" plan maybe there wouldn't be so many of them.

THOUSANDS WILL BE SPENT FOR CLOWNS AND COMEDY ACTS

Hippodrome Numbers For State Fair October 4-9 Brings Stars To Birmingham

Thousands of dollars will be spent by the Alabama State Fair, which opens its gates in Birmingham from October 4 to 9 to the farmers and townsmen of the State, in bringing great Hippidrome attractions to the South.

Possibly the greatest array of talent that Alabama has ever seen on stage or in sawdust ring will compose these eight big acts.

The act of dare-devils, Frank Silvas, who offers a number called the "Circle of Death" and who is said to be the nerviest son of Sunny Italy, will be one of the big features of this display of talent, skill, daring and comedy.

Another refreshingly new number will be the Six Sarattos, who are said to have a picturesque and intricate, original and unique ensemble of gymnastic novelties.

The Curtis Animal Circus is promised as a real "hodge-podge" of fun and skill, while the race track frolics are said to be one of the wildest riots of fun that pleasure-seekers have witnessed in the past 20 years.

The Lomas Troupe, the great European combination of pantomime novelty performers who are said to have an act they are bringing to Birmingham from the music halls of London, where it has been wildly acclaimed, are another of the big number in this unusual offering.

The Six Hassans are a marvelous combination of gymnasts, pyramid builders and high-powered tumblers who have a cyclone of fun that Alabama is going to have an opportunity of seeing at the State Fair in Birmingham.

The cream of knockabout gymnastic clowns are the Bimbos, who are featured performers in this stupendous hippodrome bill that offers the Joe Fanton Company as its outstanding thriller. Fanton's genius in conceiving and executing new hair-raisers is known the world over.

FAMOUS BAND WILL BE DIRECTED BY THAVIU, MASTER OF MELODIES

A. F. Thaviu, leader of the 40-pie band and grand opera company th will be one of the outstanding f tures of the Alabama State Fair Birmingham October 4 to 9, is one the greatest band leaders in Amer He is not only a distinguished sician but a wonderful leader. music will be worth going mil hear.

Fair Offers Parking Place For Autoists

Automobolists who come in their cars to the Alabama State Fair in Birmingham, October 4-9, will find the grounds and everything ready for them.

The fair management announces that free parking space has been provided right on the grounds for not less than 10,000 automobiles and special arrangements have also been made with the General Oil Company to have experienced men on the grounds to render any aid to motorists, especially women and children, and gasoline will also be available for the accomodation of automobilists.

All of the space between the offices and the Grand Stand will be converted into places of rest and comfort, where visitors may sit on benches and bring their lunch with them and feel that they are welcome and guests of the fair management.

Mrs. Curry invites inspection of Franchon Frocks. For superior making, for artistic designing, for superior quality, and for genuine values, these garments are not to be excelled. Also, see Mrs. Curry for Noe-Equl hosiery, and dainty knit underwear.

MULBERRY - ISABELLA

The high school boys have organized an athletic association, and will be ready to play basket ball as soon as the season opens.

The teachers have been at work selecting books for the library that will bring the library up to the standard for an accredited high school. Every effort is being made for this school to reach out for the best that is required of accredited high schools. The teachers are having the cooperation of the parents, and we hope this will be our best school year.

Another teacher, Miss Bentley from Birmingham, has been secured to help in the high school department.

Mr. Devaughn and his quartet came to Mulberry Sunday afternoon and did some good singing. Everybody enjoyed their singing and hope they will visit us again.

Mrs. S. J. Williams had as her guests last week her mother, Mrs. Ben Davenport, her aunt, Mrs. Ludie Lenoir of Clanton, and her grand-mother, Mrs. Malone, from Selma.

Mr. Jimmie LeCroy, who has been in Clanton for the past two or three years, left Sunday to take up a position in Georgia.

Messrs. Thomas and Clarence LeCroy left last Monday for Auburn. Clarence will be a "rat" this year.

WHAT SHALL OUR ANSWERS BE?

Once upon a time there was a great man by the name of Joshua, known to all Bible students as one of the leaders of God's people. Joshua was one of the 12 men sent as spies into that land said to be flowing with milk and honey, and was one of the two who came back and said "We can take it." He was a man of God, and was ready to fight for the right. After Moses' death Joshua took command and the people to victory. But there were times when the people wanted to turn aside from serving the Lord, and did turn at times, always to their regret. On one occasion when the people were out of harmony with God, he (Joshua) came forth with the facts and figures and proclaimed with a loud voice, that all could hear and understand, saying, "Choose ye this day whom you will serve."

The time will soon come when the people of Shelby County must make a selection of men to serve the county during the next four years. The Republican party served the people of Shelby County for a period of 30 years, and then, just like the people of Israel, they wanted to try something else, and did, but to their regret. Four years under a Democratic administration should satisfy any thinking man or woman in Shelby County or any other county. It needs neither criticism nor praise—the people know what it is. The Democrats themselves must admit that, politically speaking, the Republican party has made this great country of ours what it is today. The Republican party has always been the laboring man's friend, protecting him in every way possible; giving him work with good wages or salaries. No doubt it was during a Republican administration when you bought your home, paid your old debts, bought your new car, and did a dozen other things that you do not have the money to do with under a Democratic administration. The Democrats would tear down and destroy tariff, placing many competitive articles on the free list from foreign countries, which would mean nothing more or less than 4 or 5-cent cotton again for our farmers, and the miners' and other laboring men's wages would be cut in proportion. Then, O why should I delay, why should you delay in making your selection? What will our answer be? In the language of Joshua, "Choose ye this day (November 2) whom you will serve."

DIVIDING THE SPOILS.—Two boys went walnut hunting, and after having filled their sack, they returned by a road that ran by a graveyard. One boy suggested to the other to go over inside and count and divide their walnuts. In getting over the fence they dropped two on the outside. They found a good place and began dividing their walnuts, saying, "You take this one, and I'll take that one."

A negro was passing along the road and stooped to listen. In a few minutes he reached for his hat and broke into a run down the road. A white man was standing on the side of the road and saw the negro coming and decided he had got scared at something up at the graveyard, so he grabbed the negro by the collar and asked him what the matter was.

"Don't stop me," said the negro. "I heard something back dar at dat graveyard. De Lord and debil are dividin' up de folks. I heard 'um."

The white man replied, "Now, you know you never heard anything of the kind, and just to prove to you that you didn't, you are going back up there with me and see about it."

The negro protested, but the white man carried him on. When they had reached the graveyard they stopped and listened. The boys were still counting. "You take this one, and I'll take that one."

About this time they finished, and one boy said to the other, "Now we'll get the two on the outside."

Dust began rising down the road. The white man was far ahead of the negro.—Sovereign Visitor.

Who Was Swedenborg?

Emanuel Swedenborg, the son of a bishop, was the great Swedish scientist, philosopher and theologian, whose vast range caused Emerson to term him the mastodon of scholars. Dr. Parkes Cadman recently named him the Universal Genius.

Officially connected, by appointment of the King, with the great mining industry of Sweden, he mastered all the sciences of his time, and wrote the most useful books on metallurgy, minerals, geology, astronomy, and the human brain.

His life search was for the human soul. How his spiritual senses were opened, after he was 50 years of age, that he might reveal the human soul, the life after death, and the Bible itself, may be read in the above named, uplifting, useful books.

REPUBLICANS PICK NEW CANDIDATES

Bingham, of Talladega, to Make Race for Governor; E. H. Dryer, of Birmingham, for Senate.

Judge E. H. Dryer, of Birmingham, referee in bankruptcy for the last several years, will make the race for the United States Senate on the Republican ticket, and J. A. Bingham, of Talladega, will head the state ticket as candidate for Governor.

These two nominations were made Saturday to fill vacancies on the Republican state ticket caused by the refusal of Erskine Ramsay, of Birmingham, and Col. Dallas Smith, of Opelika, to accept the nomination for Senator and Governor, respectively. Mr. Ramsay and Mr. Smith were nominated at the state convention held in Birmingham August 18.

The nomination of Judge Dryer for Senator created a vacancy in the list of nominees for associate justice of the Supreme Court, and J. Theodore Johnson, of Oneonta, was placed on the ticket to fill the vacancy, while W. A. Brown, of Edwardsville, was nominated for associate member of the Public Service Commission in place of Oscar Drake, of Haleyville, who declined the nomination.

Chairman J. M. Adkins of the Republican State Executive Committee, has received a letter from Erskine Ramsay in which he states his reason for declining the nomination for United States Senator.

"Ties of business which started when I came to Alabama at the beginning of my 15 years connection with the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, and later with other concerns, have gradually and constantly multiplied. In all these interests I was closely associated with Mr. G. B. McCormack, whose death has naturally, for the time being, somewhat increased my duties.

"As a corollary to my business interests, I have been happy to include in a way that of the betterment of scholastic advantages to our boys and girls, which, while the duties incident are very pleasant ones, nevertheless demand a surprising amount of time. The same may be said of local school interests, and my duties as President of the Birmingham School Board.

"Summed up, the cold hard ties of business bind me as closely to Alabama and Birmingham as do the warm personal friendship made through business, social, school and college contacts. My work so completely takes up my time that not sufficient is left, even if I had the inclination, to enter politics."

The Republicans will give the Democrats opposition for every state office to be filled at the November election, for United States Senator, representatives in Congress in 5 of the 10 districts, and for local offices in many of the counties. Chairman O. D. Street, of the Republican State Campaign Committee, stated Saturday that it was his intention to perfect his organization as quickly as possible and to prosecute a vigorous campaign from now until the election in November. Headquarters have already been opened on the 10th floor of the Age-Herald Building, and a corps of stenographers and clerks will be at work there in a few days getting out literature and looking after other details of the campaign.

REV. BUFORD LAWRENCE HAD BUSY DAY LAST SUNDAY

Rev. Buford Lawrence, County Superintendent of Education, had a very busy day last Sunday, which we think will possibly set a high record for a preacher in one day. Here is the outline of his performances:

It was his regular preaching day at Collins Chapel, morning and night. As he went to the Chapel Sunday morning he was stopped at New Salem to do some baptizing, which he performed in a short time. From there he proceeded to the Chapel, conducting his regular morning worship. After church he drove to Jemison and took dinner with his mother.

After dinner, as he sat on the porch taking a rest, he happened to think of his cow at home in the stall without food or drink all day. He hopped in his car at once and came home to see after the cow.

Just as he drove into the yard at home another car came in behind him. In it were Mr. Clarey Burnett and Mrs. Pearl Bynum, who expressed a desire for the preacher to marry them. This ceremony was performed in due order.

When the marriage had been disposed of and the happy couple had gone on their way rejoicing, the cow was fed and watered. By this time it was necessary for the preacher to start back to Collins Chapel for his evening service. He went by way of Thorsby, and thereby hangs another important part of this tale of his day's work.

Waiting for him at Thorsby were Mr. Varnie Wyatt and Miss Dalene Burnett, seeking the blessings of a minister as they were about to embark upon the voyage of wedded happiness. This ceremony was performed, and the preacher went on to the Chapel.

Summing the whole day up, we find that the preacher performed two baptizings, two weddings, and preached two sermons at his regular appointment at the Chapel.

Last but not least, Mr. Lawrence broke out bright and early Monday morning with a case of the shingles. He says he doesn't know if any of his activities of Sunday contributed to his physical discomforts of this week or not. But he is still a busy man at this writing.

VARNIE WYATT AND MISS DALENE BURNETT

A wedding of unusual interest was that of Mr. Varnie Wyatt and Miss Dalene Burnett, which took place last Sunday. Both these young people are well and favorably known in Clanton, and their many friends are extending congratulations and best wishes.

Mrs. Wyatt is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Green Burnett of Collins Chapel. For several years she has held the very responsible position of Chief Clerk in the office of the Probate Judge of Chilton County. In this position she made the acquaintance of a great number of people.

Mr. Wyatt is one of Clanton's rising young business men. For many years he has been connected with Johnson Drug Company. Recently he took charge of "Barney's Place," a new business located on Seventh Street. He has made hundreds of friends since beginning his business career here.

WADE ICE PLANT TO INCREASE CAPACITY

Announcement is made by Mr. J. P. Wade this week that the present capacity of the Clanton Ice Company's plant here will be more than doubled in the near future, the order for additional machinery and equipment having been already placed.

The statement of Mr. Wade says: "We wish to announce to our many friends and customers in Clanton and throughout Chilton County that we have placed an order with the Frick Company, of Waynesboro, Pa., for complete ice-making machinery for 20 tons capacity, this additional unit making our daily output over 30 tons. We feel that this modern plant, combined with our other plant operating at present will be sufficient to take care of the ice situation in Clanton for many years."

The Union-Banner wishes to congratulate the management of the Clanton Ice Company for their efforts to keep pace with the progress of Clanton and the demands of the people in the important matter of ice production.

MRS. JOE GORE'S HOME BURNED LAST SATURDAY

The home of Mrs. Joe Gore on the Lock 12 Road near the bridge at the city limits was totally destroyed by fire about 11 o'clock Saturday morning. The loss is estimated at about $2,000. The house was afire all over when it was discovered. A family by the name of Hayes, who lived in the house with Mrs. Gore, lost all their household goods. Nothing was saved. It is said the fire was caused by the explosion of an oil cook stove.

CURING THE GREAT THIRST

In the old days there was a philanthropic Tennessee distiller who believed in spreading sunshine wherever he could. One Christmas he sent a gift of prime whisky to an improvident acquaintance who lived from hand to mouth in a cabin up in the hills.

Along toward the end of January the beneficiary dropped in on him and intimated that if his friend was so inclined he could use a little more liquor.

"Aren't you rather overdoing things, Zach?" inquired the distiller. "If my memory serves me rightly, it has been less than five weeks since I gave you a whole keg."

"Well, colonel," explained the mendicant, "you got to remember that a kag of licker don't last very long in a fambly that can't afford to keep a cow."

STATE FAIR AT MONTGOMERY

The State Fair of Alabama, which opens at Montgomery October 25, to continue for one week, will be the biggest and best fair in the history of the State, says Manager Mort L. Bixler. To begin with, we will have the biggest agricultural and horticultural show in the southeastern states.

The educational features by the different departments of the State of Alabama alone are worth a trip to the fair. There will be 32 county, community, and single farm exhibits representing every section of the state.

In addition to these educational features the entertainment program is one that appeals to every variety of taste. There will be running races in which many of the horses that race in Mobile, New Orleans, and Havana, will be entered. The last two days will be devoted to auto racing.

ATKINSON EXPRESSES THANKS TO VOTERS

Mayor-elect, J. B. Atkinson, in discussing the results of the city election of Monday, issued the following statement:

"I feel very grateful to the citizens of Clanton for the confidence reposed in me, an expression of which is found in the result of the city election of Monday.

"I have been a member of the Town Council for some years, in which capacity I am glad to have had a part in the accomplishment of some things which I believe to be of permanent progress and lasting good to our town. When I assume charge of the duties of Mayor of Clanton, it shall be my purpose to continue the advancement of those things which are possible and within our reach, and which will be a continuation of the progress and development of Clanton. I hope and expect to be able to find some way to put through the proposal for building a new grammar school. I intend to try to find a workable way in which to better equip the water-works system of Clanton. We ought to have better fire protection, and I hope that we may be able to obtain it hastily and without delay. Continued street improvement shall be one of my aims.

"In conclusion, I will say again that I thank the people of Clanton for their confidence. As your Mayor, I shall do everything in my power to render you the kind of service you have a right to expect from the head of your city government."

Rev. Lowery, the postor, will not be present at any of the services Sunday, on account of the fact that he has been called to go to Siluria to preach. But the pastor secured the services of Rev. Foshee, a good old Christian man and a veteran minister of the gospel. It is hoped that a good crowd will be out to hear Bro. Foshee both morning and evening.

MILT TOLBERT SHOWING IN CLANTON THIS WEEK

The famous Milt Tolbert Tent Theatre, whose headquarters is at Dothan, Ala., is showing every night in Clanton this week. The show was supposed to open Monday night, but on account of the threatening weather, no show was had until Tuesday night. The large tent was filled to capacity at the opening performance.

A fine program of plays is scheduled for the last half of the week, the main feature play coming off Friday night. The management promises that the show will get better every night. A matinee will be shown Saturday afternoon, and the week's engagement will close Saturday night followed with a Charleston contest—one for the whites and one for the colored, in which local talent will be allowed to compete for the cash prizes offered by the show.

The people of Clanton always welcome Milt Tolbert players, and they are being favored this time with even larger crowds than in their past appearances in our city.

STATE PASSES STORM CRISIS; DAMAGE REPORTED HEAVY

South Alabama has emerged from its worst storm in years with enormous property damage but an astounding small toll of dead and injured. Before reaching Alabama the same storm passed through Florida taking from its southeastern coast a great property and death toll. Reported are 400 dead, 150 missing; 5,000 injured and 50,000 homeless.

The first reports from Mobile were received Tuesday night, stating that the port city had been badly battered but had come through the storm without loss of life.

Railroad service has been considerably hampered in the southern part of the state, and telephone and telegraph lines have been put almost out of commission completely. The radio was the only means of communication that was left in many sections to tell of the rushing winds and gales that tore up buildings and considerably damaged the crops.

Jackson, Ala., where seven lives were reported lost, remained isolated from the rest of the state Tuesday night

Telephone and telegraph workmen, as well as railroad wrecking crews, are working day and night, rebuilding their lines which were damaged by the storm.

Reports say that in Florida, where the damage was so heavy, work of rebuilding is already well under way.

FLYNN LEWIS DROWNED IN COOSA RIVER SUNDAY

Flynn Lewis, age about 25 years, was drowned in the Coosa River last Sunday a while before noon, at the Bud Bates place near the old Higgins upper ferry.

Lewis and his wife, with a man named Holcombe and a Miss Carmichael, all of Montgomery, were navigating the pond with a motor boat. The wind was blowing almost a gale, and the waves got so rough that they headed for the Chilton shore. Before they got to the bank the boat partly filled with water, capsized. Mr. Holcombe rescued the two ladies, and Lewis was drowned.

Reports say that the drowning happened about 10 oclock Sunday a.m. The two ladies waited for Mr. Holcombe to go for help. Some hours later a Mr. Fletcher from up the pond came by and the ladies waived him down. He stopped and found the trouble, carrying the message on down to Mitchell Dam. Mr. Benziger and Mr. Hollis, it is said, went up the river and got the two ladies about 5:30 o'clock, Mr. Hollis staying and wading in search of the man until Mr. Benziger returned with more help about 8:30. All efforts failed that night.

The same crew from the Power Company, together with Mr. Deramus and Mr. Gibson of Verbena, resumed the search Monday morning. Mr. Hollis and Mr. Benziger stayed under the water four or five hours in search of the body, but of no avail

At the time we went to press Wednesday no news had been received of the recovery of the body of the drowned man.

IN MEMORY

Mr. Holloway Varden died on September 6, 1926. He had been sick for several months, but bore his suffering without complaint. He knew that death was near, but said that he had nothing to fear. He was always fair to his fellow-man, as God would have us be. He had a father, mother, and several brothers and sisters to welcome him when he stepped inside the pearly gate. He was laid to rest at Liberty, Dr. Ezell conducting the funeral ceremony, and sweeter words were never spoken than those he spoke to the bereaved ones, of the life he had lived. The beautiful floral offerings spoke volumes of the respect which he held among his friends and neighbors.—A Friend.

REFUGE

The singing society met at this place last Sunday afternoon. Our singing in August was postponed, and it seemed that everybody came last Sunday with a spirit to sing. The most interesting part came when we began to use the young folks who attended the singing school. The parents enjoyed that part especially, although all the singing was enjoyed. We like to see young folks taking interest in things of this kind, because they are our hope in the near future, and the hope of the whole land and country. May we turn our attention to the young people more in the future than we have in the past. And, to the young people—come back to Refuge; you have a hearty welcome at any and all times. It will beat motoring up and down the roads to swimming pools and other places we shouldn't go. When God said "Remember the Sabbath day," He didn't mean forget it.

Directors for the afternoon were as follows, singing from one to three songs each: J. W. Clackler, Frank Clackler, Miss Clara Mae Mims, Miss Lela Mims, S. V. Miller, R. E. Powell, Jodie Connell, J. E. Miner. Pianists were Mrs. Lillian Alford, and Misses Rubie Johnson and Lillabelle Golden.

Rev. G. B. Golden gave some good advce on cooperation. Benediction by Rev. Golden.—M. Lockhart, Chm.

L. B. POUNDS HERE

Hon. L. B. Pounds was on the streets of Clanton Monday greeting his many friends. It was his first visit here in a long time. Mr. Pounds has been visting at the home of his son-in-law near Clanton for a week, but has not been in town much. He found the folks busy at work picking cotton when he got there, and he, of course, pitched right in to helping them. Mr. Pounds looks well, and shows little change in his physical features, being apparently well and hearty, and growing—young—gracefully. Some years ago this man was a prominent figure in public life of Chilton County, being representative in the legislature, and later Tax Assessor.

The administration has reduced the public debt many hundreds of million dollars in the past few years and now some folks want it to wipe out the European debt too. Some folks are never satisfied.

AN ESSAY ON FROGS

The Chicagn Board of Education has caused a classic essay to be immortalized in type. It's about frogs, and was written by a young Norwegian. The essay follows:

"What a wonderful bird the frog are! When he stand he sit, almost. When he hop he fly, almost. He ain't got no sense, hardly. He ain't got no tail, hardly, either. When he sit, he sit on what he ain't got, almost."—Southern Poultry Journal.

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E. NORTON, Manager).

(Mrs. H. M. Gerald, Special Cor.)

The Ladies Guild will meet this afternoon with Mrs. C. M. Williams.

Miss Margaret Butler of Birmingham spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Butler of Thorsby.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Thompson of Birmingham are spending a week at their home in Thorsby, and enjoying a vacation.

Thorsby Institute opened for its 21st year last Wednesday, September 15, with an enrollment of 74. The girls' boarding department is full at present, and there is great need of another building for girl students. A gift of $100 has been made as a nest egg toward the building, and contributions would be gladly received toward it. The school starts out with prospects of a good year; a splendid, cooperative faculty, a fine student body, and a strong music department.

Mesdames Carl Tomsen, Martha Grothy, C. H. Howard and H. M. Gerald were visitors in Jemison Saturday.

Mr. Nels Nelson left last Monday to take up his studies at Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Horn made a business trip to Montgomery last week.

The Ladies Guild will give a reception Friday evening, September 24, in the auditorium of the school building, Helen Jenkins Hall. This reception is in honor of the teachers and students. To it are invited the teachers, students, and their parents, the trustees and their wives, the Ladies Guild and their husbands, and all patrons and contributors of the school.

There will be English servicies next Sunday morning in the Lutheran church at 10:45.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Smith of Birmingham spent last week, their honeymoon, in Thorsby, occuping the home of Mr. H. V. Thompson on Wisconsin Avenue.

Mr. J. H. Goddard is quite sick at present.

Miss Genie Collins was a week end visitor at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Harrison Collins.

Miss Delene Burnett, who has been working for Judge Reynolds for several years, was married to Mr. Varnie Wyatt at her home in Thorsby Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt will make their home in Thorsby in their new home on Michigan Avenue. Only a few close relatives witnessed the wedding.

There will be preaching services in the Baptist church next Sunday night at 7:30. Rev. Roberts of Verbena will preach.

Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Sarber of Elmore motored to Thorsby Sunday and attended church and took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Horn.

Mr. David Paxson and wife enjoyed a visit last week from Mrs. E. M. Hall their daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Shimmel, and Paxson Hall, grandchildren, and Clem, Esther, and Billy Shimmel, great-grand-children, all of Birmingham. Paxson Hall has completed a 4-year service in the Navy, with an honorable discharge.

Thorsby Fruit and Truck Growers Association are planning to grow potatoes for car lot shipments. The stockholders feel that they can handle farm products to good advantage in car lots, where express shipments would not be profitable. Mr. Smith, the manager, says we can obtain good results for anything grown on the farm in car lots, except cabbage and cucumbers. They are planning to grow sweet potatoes and properly cure them for the northern markets during the early spring months when the best prices are obtainable.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl R. Peterson of Fairfield spent Saturday with Mrs. James Bosworth. On Sunday, they, Mrs. Bosworth, and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Reagan had dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Foss.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Villadsen of Talladega spent the week end with Mrs. Villadsen's mother, Mrs. T. W. Robinson.

Mrs. Alice Farman of Arlington, Texas, sister of Mrs. J. H. Goddard, and her nephew, Mr. Smackhammer, of Lawton, Okla., are visiting at the home of the Goddards.

Mrs. Anna Villadsen left last week for several weeks visit in Birmingham.

Mr. A. K. Horn has rented the north side of the Foshee store and installed a Crispette machine there, and will pop the corn and make Crispettes and he hopes to work up a thriving business at home and abroad.

Mr. A. Burson and daughter, Mrs. J. R. Reinhardt, and husband and baby arrived Tuesday morning from Philadelphia. Mrs. Burson and daughter, Wilma, used to live in Thorsby. They are motoring from Philadelphia to Los Angeles, Calif., and expect to make their home in that state. Mrs. Burson expects to live in Los Angeles with a son, Teddy Burson.

Mrs. Ella Green of Birmingham is spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Thompson.

The hen party given by the P. T. A. last Friday afternoon was quite a success, netting a nice little sum, to be used on payment of piano they are to buy for the public school.

No more unsightly Pimples!

S.S.S. gives you a clear skin

WHAT a delightful sensation to look in your mirror and find your face free from pimples, blackheads, blotches and other skin blemishes. Isn't it wonderful to see your face radiant with red blooded health!

Pure, red blood is what it takes to have a lovely skin. Facial blemishes can't be covered up successfully. Nor will anything else drive away these unsightly pimples and such, but the cleansing of the blood and the adding of rich, red blood.

And that's what S. S. S. does. All those objectionable blemishes will vanish and your skin will become soft and clear. S. S. S. has been such an aid for generations.

Everybody is attracted to the girl with a rosy, healthy coloring—the girl with the soft, velvet like skin—a skin so lovely that it tells of boundless health and vitality. There is no excuse for disgusting eruptions on the skin. We know they can be driven away quickly with a powerful blood alterative such as S. S. S. has proven to be for 100 years. Start taking S. S. S. today. And get the larger size bottle. It's more economical.

AN ACT OF CHRISTIAN COMITY

Editor Union-Banner:

Last week I learned of an act of Christian comity that is so unusual that I think it ought to be "put in the paper." And since your Thorsby correspondent is a member of the society that did the act, I am pretty sure she will not furnish you the item.

At the Thorsby Lutheran Ladies Aid Society last Thursday, report was made of two cases of need—two families had been very unfortunate—into one death had come, and into the other very serious illness. Neither of these families had ever been connected with the Lutheran church or society; one of them was a Baptist family, the other Congregational. The Lutheran Ladies Aid unhesitatingly and unanimously voted to take $20 from their treasury and send $10 to each of these unfortunate families. "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love, one to another." X

PROSPERITY AS AN ISSUE

There will be all sorts of issues in the coming campaign, but after all the result of the election will probably hinge upon one thing more than any other this fall, and that is the economic condition of the country. Just at present the situation is generally good and there are indications that things are going to be better.

The crops, altho not of the bumper variety, are pretty generally fair, and there are indications that the prices are going to be higher this fall. Already we hear some rumors to the effect that world production of food stuffs this year will be below normal. This can only mean that prices are to be higher in the United States and that the farmers will benefit therefrom.

Altho we hear a great deal from various sources about the plight of the farmer, his condition generally is not at all unsatisfactory. In a few of the states which depend chiefly on the sale of corn in the market there is some of what the politicians call agricultural "unrest," but this is not the prevailing condition in the entire farming section of the country by any means.

It is rather significant that we are not hearing so much from so-called farm leaders to the effect that the farmers want free trade. The farmer realizes as well as anyone that his welfare depends on a prosperous country and he is not going to rock the boat so far as the tariff is concerned.

Just at present all signs point to a continuance of the satisfactory condition of "business as usual," with a steady increase in prosperity which will bring the farmer into his own along with those who live in the industrial centers.

Bustin' Through !

MINISTERS OF THE GOSPEL POOREST PAID WORKERS

One way to increase interest in the churches and to cause a general revival in things religious would be to increase the pay of our clergymen, according to the National Republic, which asserts editorially that the ministers of the gospel are the poorest paid class of citizens in America. The editorial says, in part:

"Recently there was held in Chicago a conference of clergymen for the consideration of economic questions. There was the usual talk about conducting industry for service rather than for profit, and a larger share of the rewards of production for the toiler. A Pittsburg minister interrupted the flow of thought on this topic by reminding those present that the average compensation of a clergyman is about half that of a plasterer, bricklayer, or linotype operator, and that it compares unfavorably with the wages of an unskilled workman in the steel industry, which was recently made the subjeit of an economic report by the Federation of Churches."

SINGING AT TEMPLE

The singing at the Temple Sunday afternoon was well attended and a good program was enjoyed. There were several vistors present from other communities, and we were glad to have them and welcome them back again. Among them was Mr. L. B. Pounds, former Tax Assessor of Chilton County. He made an interesting talk, mostly to the young men, regarding their opportunites and privileges. The following diriectors directed 2 songs each: J. A. W. Mims, Dovard Cleckler, Dalton Bice, Clyde Mims, Wiillie Mims, Jack Mims, Lester Mims, E. V. Mims, Melvin Mims, Jesse Baker, Marion Thompson.

Also, several quartets were rendered, which were thoroughly enjoyed. We welcome all back again on the second Sunday in October.—Jesse Baker, Sec'y.

Something Like a Wampus, Probably

They were holding an examination of aspirants for the position of principal of a colored grade school in Louisville. One of the most promising candidates for the vacancy was a small yellow man, who wore shiny, gold-rimmed spectacles, and bore himself with that air of assurance which learning sometimes imparts.

The superintendent of the public school system of the city was sounding the qualifications of this person. The subject was syntax. The inquisitor would choose a word at random from the lexicon and the applicant would give his conception of its proper definition.

Out of a clear sky, so to speak, the superintendent sped this one:

"Jeopardy."

The candidate froze stiff. His eyes rolled in his head as he recoiled from the shock.

"Which?" he inquired softly.

"Jeopardy."

"I believe you said 'jeopardy,' didn't you, suh?" said the little yellow man, still sparring for time.

"Certainly, 'jeopardy.' You know the word, don't you?"

"Oh, yas, suh, fluently."

"Well, then, since you are familiar with it, what is your understanding of its meaning?"

Like a man preparing to dive from a great height into vasty depths the candidate took a deep breath. Then gallantly he leaped headlong:

"Well, suh," he stated, "in reply to the question just propounded I should say that 'jeopardy' would properly refer to any act committed by a jeopard."

He got the job on the spot.

NOTES OF TRAVEL

(By S. E. NORTON)

There are many advantages incident to being in or near New York City, which is nearer to us, at Kenvil, than Birmingham or Montgomery is to Thorsby, because, for instance, it has manifold interests and activities to draw to it so many people one is not apt to hear about in other places, which, in connection with the most powerful radio broadcasting stations in the country, gives a personal contact with people of national or world-wide prominence.

During the past week we have distinctly heard addresses by Vice-President Dawes, Lady Astor, McMillan, the Arctic explorer, and one of Cooks Tours men, giving a vivid description of people and scenes in the island of Ceylon, a British possessioin near the southern point of India.

Mr. Dawes is still embracing good opportunities to hold up to public attention the ridiculous "rules" of the United States Senate, of which he is the presiding officer, or as he facetiously puts it, "the audience." On this occasion, speaking to an audience of the many thousand who were "listening in" on receiving sets tuned to one of the 30 broadcasting stations scattered all over the country, said to be the greatest "hook-up" in radio history, said, in effect:

"The greatest evil of these rules is not that one man may talk interminably, taking so much time that a bill may be defeated for want of opportunity to discuss it, but that one man voting "No," may defeat a motion to suspend the rules and do business, or he may by threat of filibuster, when important bills are under consideration, force the passage, to pacify him, of some bill of merely local or sectional importance, or even worse, one in which he is personally interested."

Can anyone imagine a more comprehensive way "how not to do it" than this so-called "Senatorial courtesy?" And since the United States Senate can make its own rules of government, there is no power outside the Senate itself that can change them. Men who glaringly violate ordinary parliamentary rules are no credit to the party with which they are affiliated, and should be made a target for the scorn of aroused public opinion. This is what Mr. Dawes is trying to do. Mr. Dawes' address was given at a dinner of the Radio Broadcasters Association at the Astoria Hotel in New York.

The next speaker was McMillan, who had just arrived in New York on his return from an Arctic expedition. McMillan told in a 5-minute talk what radio had done for him and his company of 35 men who left New York last June on an expedition to the Arctic regions. He mentioned the hardships and perils of such adventures in the past; how for years there was nothing heard from them, and only by sending another expedition to hunt for them, and sometimes still another to hunt the hunters, with chances that most of them would be dead. McMillan had his vessel equipped with up-to-date broadcasting and receiving instruments tuned to one in New York, both using the more powerful "short wave" system, during all the time when absent, and even when 9,000 miles away, there was not a day when they were not in direct communication with their home port.

The occasion when Lady Astor made the only public speech during the recent visit of this noted American woman, member of the English Parliament, was an address at the annual meeting of the League of Women Voters, held in the great ball room of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York, to an audience of more than 1,500 people in the room, and unknown thousands within the sound of her voice by radio. Lady Astor has a strong and well modulated voice, with a peculiar catch, almost a stammer at times. She is an accomplished public speaker with a keen sense of humor, and ability to talk in the vernacular of the street to catch the crowd. She said:

"America is the only country in the world where reporters meet one at the pier and want to know—What do you think of America? What do you think of Prohibition? What do you think of Flappers? These are only a few of their most personal questions. The only way to deal with them is to either refuse to talk or answer them spang! I would not be able to say what I think of America until I had traveled from Maine to California and from Canada to Mexico. About prohibition—I do not know exactly what you mean. If you mean what I think about drink, I will say it is the greatest curse ever inflicted on humanity. No good thing comes to anybody from it! If by flappers, you mean the modern girl, I admire her. She is an expression of the freedom that has recently come to womankind since the great war, when women demonstrated their equality with men. I never had the courage to have my hair bobbed, but I respect those who do." She attributed Europe's League of Nations to the influence and votes of women, and gloried in the fact that within eight years after the close of the greatest war the world has ever seen, their arch enemy has been admitted as a member. She lauded the activities of American women in politics, and urged them to "press forward with all their might in every good purpose, regardless of party affiliations." The applause was frequent and vigorous.

Chilton County High School Department

Class Elections.

Class elections have been held in the Senior and Junior classes. Much excitement accompanied the casting of ballots.

The Junior Class Officers are: President, Buster Alvin Foshee; Vice-President, Mary Lee Pyron; Secretary, Delene Williams; Treasurer, Willie Knox; Goat, William Simpson.

High School Societies.

Chilton County High School, after a few years negligence, is attempting to organize literary societies. Need for these is being realized more and more as the school is growing. Plans are being made to develop them along the lines of regular clubs, with mock initiations and supervised "ratting." Mr. Ellis feels that if the desired interest is shown by the students, the literary societies can play a big part in school activities.

The Music Department.

It doesn't hurt to build air castles—and that's just what Chilton County High School is doing. The students are now planning to organize a band, an orchestra, and a quartet. Miss Donnelly, head of the department of music, is very enthusiastic about these plans, and has already begun work on the quartet. She has promised a second "Alabama's Million-Dollar Band" if the students will cooperate with her. Besides these plans, she is organizing a girls quartet. Try-outs are being held daily, and soon regular practices will be held. We feel sure that the Glee Club will do credit to the high school.

The Library.

Often you've heard the cry "Old Shoes" — "Old Furniture," etc.—now it's "Old Books"—but please don't treat us as you did the other cryers. We need books and must have them. The high school is not able to purchase the vast number of books that an A-1 library calls for. So we are asking you to give as many as you can. We must have books. Go through your shelves and have a large number ready when the committee comes to your house—or call us, and we'll come over at once.

Athletics—and Finances.

We can't finance a football team with an old debt hanging over, and we can't have a good football team without money. The students have realized this, and have accepted a plan offered by the Alabama Power Company, whereby they can swell funds of the athletic department. If a student comes to your house to explain the proposition, please give it careful consideration. It will help you and help us. You need what he will offer. And we need the money!

IMPROVEMENTS MADE BY HUDSON-ESSEX COMPANY

A new carburetor and manifold, which result in better gasoline mileage, announced by the Hudson Motor Car Company in its latest super-six series, is meeting with wide public interest, according to H. M. Bates, Hudson-Essex dealer here.

This improvement is of particular interest, said Mr. Bates, because all the familiar power and smoothness of the super-six motor is retained; in fact, certain phases of performance are actually bettered. A considerable number of tests have been made with the new cars, it is said, all with the result that added reason has been found for enthusiasm among Hudson Super-Six fans. Still further tests are being made, results of which will be made public.

Together with the new bodies in attractive colors, the Hudson motor improvement is attracting a record-breaking number of buyers. Every indication is present, it is said, that the present autumn season will be the most active that Hudson has ever known in this vicinity.

"Now that all announcements of new models are out," said Mr. Bates, "an outstanding fact is the number of so-called 'new' things which have been regular Hudson Super-Six features for many years. I suppose the most important step forward this year has been a widespread attempt to gain greater motor smoothness. Yet Hudson has used a patented and exclusive design of crankshaft for 11 years which is inherently balanced in itself, and which also cares for the other forces in a motor which otherwise would set up vibration.

"In other words, the Hudson design prevents vibration before it is ever set up. There is a vast difference between that and 'dampening' vibration once it is under way. Hudson owners have enjoyed this smoothness for years. Each season has seen this effect improved with better manufacturing methods in the industry. Our new cars are no exception to this general law of progress.

"Hudson results are obtained by, and founded by, and founded on simplicity. A gasoline strainer is built in; air is warmed and cleaned before it ever reaches the carburetor; the desgn of the oiling system keeps down oil-dilution. These effects are all obtained as a matter of course without the use of added accessories. They always have been fundamental features of Hudson Super-Six design."

The Bill of Complaint of the State of Alabama, on the relation of G. C. Walker, as Deputy Solicitor of Chilton County, Alabama, against One Ford Truck, being exhibited to me, and it appearing therefrom that on the 1st day of September, 1926, One George Doss did transport in one Ford Truck, 1924 model, certain prohibited liquors and beverages, from one point in the State of Alabama to another, and that said Ford Truck was on said day seized by the Sheriff of said County and said Bill of Complaint praying that said truck be declared forfeited to the State of Alabama, and for an order of condemnation and sale thereof.

ALL DAY SINGING

There will be an all day singing at Enon church, 4 miles south of Montevallo on next Sunday, September 26, in the new books. All lovers of music are cordially invited to come and be with us and sing praises to God.—D. J. Carden.

WHICH WILL IT BE?

As the time draws near we hope the people are asking themselves the question, "Which will it be?" The time is close at hand when the the people of Shelby County must make a selection of men to serve the County the next four years. The Republican party made this great country of ours just what it is today, and is the laboring man's friend, protecting him in every way, while the Democrats tear down instead of rebuild.

In 1893, with a Democratic president, a severe panic fell upon the country. Business had been prosperous, but there arose in the commercial centers a doubt concerning the value of the money in use. All banks failed and factories closed. Much suffering ensued among the thousands thrown out of employment.

In 1896 the Democrats advocated the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ration of 16 to 1; the Republicans opposed, unless the other great nations would agree to coin silver at the same ratio.

There were no Postal Savings banks until the administration of Taft. In 1910, he, with a Republican congress, established the Postal Savings bank system. This law enables the people to deposit their savings with the United States government for safe keeping. In every state of the Union there are now post offices designated by the government to receive deposits on which interest is paid.

Since Mr. Taft's administration we can send by mail at very cheap rates. Through the post office the merchant sends goods to a customer in another town. The famer sends his produce to market and people in general enjoy a convenient and cheap method of sending and receiving merchandise.

Now, friends, with the good the Republican party has done for us in the past, it will be easy for us to decide "Which will it be?" on November 2. —T. R. Vick, Beat 8.

WHY VOTE?

There are many people who feel rather indifferent when it comes to voting. They generally say, "Well, it don't make much difference whether I vote or not; you know just one vote don't amount to much." My friends, we have a sacred and golden privilege in voting. In this free country of ours, where the individual forms the very base of our government, it is not only highly necessary—it is your duty to vote. I am sure we feel that in exercising this great gift, the power to vote, that we ought to better ourselves and our community; that is exactly what God and man requires of us. Now, how can we do this? There is but one safe way for us to do this, my friends, and this is to get the facts of the situation and cast our vote accordingly.

We thank God that it is no longer possible for the "street orator" to sway the rural vote. We are all well informed, and able to cast an intelligent vote. Now, let's do it!

When we vote in November, I am confident that we will vote for a party which has always and is now showing us the hidden paths to success. And, furthermore, that we are going to support a party, during the administration of which the wheels of American industry sing the song of prosperity. And, again, I know that we are going to support an administration which stands by the laboring man and gives him an honest wage. If we do these things, the Republican party of Shelby County has no reason to worry—victory is ours in November!—W. R. Riley.

FORESTERS DO REAL WORK

The Alabama State Commission of Forestry has just completed the compilation of the service records for the State Forest Rangers for the first half of the calendar year 1926. The rangers are held to a strict accountability for the proper use of official time and their work is by no means the romantic light outdoor employment that so many conceive it to be. Those who imagine that a forest ranger is something of a blend of Robin Hood and Daniel Boone would be due for a rude awakening on undertaking to perform his duties.

The ranger is the point of contact between the State's forestry policy, the local public, and the forest itself. This triple responsibility requires special adaptability, initiative, and energetic performance of duty. Since forestry in many sections of the state is a new phase of industry, the ranger in most circumstances upon appointment is faced with the necessity of learning a new business.

CHEVROLET CARS MUST STAND RIGID TEST

Climbing a hill 1,000 miles long is one of the tests which General Motors engineers believe no car can withstand unless it has rugged strength and stamina built into it to meet such a continuous strain.

In effect, this is the test which the Chevrolet car is meeting at the General Motors Corporation's extensive testing grounds, 1,146 acres in area, located in the rolling country 40 miles west of Detroit.

A "towing dynamometer" is the machine used to duplicate the terrific drag encountered by an automobile motor in ascending steep hills. It is said to reproduce almost exactly the stress of an up-hill climb.

The dynamometer is mounted on a chassis to be towed behind the Chevrolet car undergoing a test. Weights on a scale beam control two huge brake drums on the chassis through a hydraulic valve exerting pressure on the drums through a set of gears. The scale can be set to reproduce a grade of almost any degree through pressure on the drums.

Today the prospective car owner does not have to play the role of an experimenter in trying out products of General Motors. Experienced engineers on the proving grounds have every modern facility at their disposal to test all devices or methods suggested for the improvement of Chevrolet cars. Other American and foreign cars are also "put through the grind" there. Any changes contemplated for the Chevrolet are tested for months or years before final adoption.

Our singing society met as usual Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. We had a large number of directors for the afternoon. They were as follows: Messrs. L. T. Grant, S. M. Yates, I. D. Huett, W. F. You are always welcome. Pianists were Misses Claudie Hughes, Bertie and Beatrice Grant, and Mr. Ralph Grant.

Although our house was not full of listeners, we feel that those present were delightfully entertained by the large class of singers.

We were glad to have so many directors out, and urge your presence, both singers, and all those who love music.

Our society was dismissed with a prayer by Mr. D. S. Robinson, to meet again the first Sunday afternoon at 1:30.—Mrs. Mollie Minor, Sec'y.

SINGING SOCIETY ORGANIZED AT LOMAX

The singers of Lomax and surrounding country met at Jackson's Chapel last Sunday, September 19, and organized a singing society. The house was called to order by E. C. Traywick. After singing two songs, prayer was offered by Mr. Newt Miner, after which Mr. J. A. Jackson was elected chairman for the afternoon. The chairman elected E. C. Traywick, Ellie Shirley, and W. L. Sanders for the arranging committee. The chairman sang three songs while the committee arranged for the directors, after which two songs were rendered by each of the following directors: Flora Shirley, T. J. Little, W. L. Jackson, Jasper Oaks, Hugh Sorrell, Miss Lillie Mae Weldon, and Miss Alta Mae Shirley. Recess for 10 minutes. The house was called to order by A. A. Jackson. After singing one song, the house entered a business session. Officers elected are as follows: A. A. Jackson, chairman; Jasper Oaks, vice-chairman; W. L. Sanders, secretary; Newt Miner, chaplain. After the officers were elected, the house made a move that the chairman appoint a committee to write the Constitution and By-Laws of this society. The chairman appointed a committee of 5 for the purpose, and these articles will be adopted at the next meeting. Directors for the last lessons, 2 songs each, were Willie Clackler, Ellie Shirley, E. C. Traywick, Andrew Sorrell, Viluna Shirley, and W. L. Sanders. Oragnists were Miss Lillie Mae Weldon and Mr. Hugh Sorrell. The closing song was rendered by the vice-chairman, and we were dismissed by the chaplain.

We invite all singers and lovers of music to come and be with us. We will meet the third Sunday afternoon in October. Everybody welcome.—Secretary.

EAST VIEW

Our Sunday school and preaching were fine last Sunday.

Our singing society met Sunday afternoon with a large attendance. Directors were Messrs. Huff and Marshall Burkhalter, Malburn and Edward Taylor, Misses Lela Taylor, Essie and Elizabeth Griffin, Mary Courtney. Organists were Misses Lela Taylor, Susie Griffin, Mrs. Bell Nelson, and Richard McKinney. Some splendid quartets were rendered by Messrs. Richard McKinney, Marshall and Huff Burkhalter, Malburn and Edward Taylor and daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Driver and Mr. Andrew Kicker from Montgomery, spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Griffin.

Miss Susie Griffin returned Wednesday from a visit to relatives and friends in Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Martin visited Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Martin Sunday.

MISS ELMA KICKER

Early last Thursday morning the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Kicker and took from them their beloved daughter, Elma.

She had been ill for several months, and for several days, her wearied spirit hung on the brink of death's turbid stream and fought the grim reaper with utmost effort. But an all-wise Providence knew best, and her spirit took its flight to that eternal city where all sorrows and heartaches are forgotten.

Although she was only a bud in God's garden, it can be truly said of her that the world has been made brighter by her having lived in it. So has passed from death unto life, a noble Christian girl, the masterpiece of God's handiwork.—Mt. Creek Senior B. Y. P. U.

FROM A. A. JACKSON

We learn that the post office at Lomax is to be reestablished, which is a step toward progress.

The writer had the pleasure of attending the singing at Jackson's Chapel last Sunday afternoon. The singing and attendance was good.

We notice the Shelby County Section of The Union-Banner is on the advance, and says "the Republican party has made this great country of ours what it is today." To this, every true Republican will say, Amen! No wonder the poor, the wounded, and the oppressed from every land turn their eyes, their hearts and their steps toward this country. It is because all the echoes of Heaven and earth have told them that the United States republic is the land of equality and liberty. To continue such conditions is to be a thoroughbred Republican. Cast your ballot for the nominee of the Republican ticket from the greatest to the smallest officer. We should cast our ballot for principal and not for man. What has been the status of the Democratic party for the past 65 years? Hasn't it been domineered by people who are enemies of American institutions, liberty, and freedom of speech? Why not be a thoroughbred Republican and a 100% American and take the whole ticket from county to nation, and elect the ticket of the Republican party, and continue the prosperity and freedom of the greatest and most blessed of modern nations of this world?—A. A. Jackson.

Look these items over carefully, and remember that these figures are typical of those of all other great trunk lines. Remember also that the wage earner, in one out of every fifteen American families, is employed by the railroads; that American steam transportation lines pay more than $1,000,000 a day in taxes; and, above all else, remember that you are enjoying at low cost the greatest transportation advantages afforded any country in the world.

Celebrate Birthday

A pretty affair of the past week was on Thursday afternoon, when Mrs. J. Watts Moore entertained at her home on Fifth Street, celebrating the 10th birthday anniversary of her son and daughter, Joe and Helen. The home was profusely decorated with garden flowers. Punch was served on the porch. The dining table was centered with a silver basket of zenias. At either end of the table was a birthday cake, holding 10 lighted candles, and surrounded with varicolored zenias. Ribbons extended from the cake, and upon drawing, it was found that some held a candy kiss, while others had tied to them the usual birthday symbols. Hilda Hart drew the ring, Nell Ross Mullins the thimble, Hal Broadhead the button. Favors with ribbons tied to them were placed in boxes, and when each guest selected a ribbon, the covers were removed and the gifts drawn. The box for the boys contained harps, balloons, and whistles, and the girls' pencil boxes, handkerchiefs, and sewing boxes. Mrs. Moore was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Frank Callen and Mrs. Renfro Mullins.

A delicious ice course was served to the following: Lawrence Gerald, Jr., Celia Gerald, Hal Broadhead, Dan Smith, Billie Callen, Sara Beth Mullins, John Thomas Marler, Callen Alred, Mary Courtney Jones, Dixie Johnson, Elizabeth Eubanks, Hilda Hart, Eloise Rasberry, Nell Ross Mullins, Grady and Morgan Reynolds, Carl Jones, Herbert and Nell Neighbors, Mary Frances Rasberry, Elizabeth McSwain, Pauline and Grace Plyler, John Ezell, Earl Gray, and others.

Pink and white ribbons were festooned from the lights to the columns. White baskets filled with pink and white roses were placed about the room. The lights were covered and shed a soft glow that made a pretty background for this happy group. Various games and contests were features of the evening's entertainment. Prizes were awarded to Messrs. Philip Foshee and Arthur Littlejohn. A tempting ice course was served.

Those enjoying this affair were: Misses Jewel and Pearl Miner, Lorene Murphy, Pauline Pyron, Annie Bell White, Florence Grier, Erin Danforth, Maude Alexander, Bernice Broadhead, Dalene Williams, Lula Mae and Lena Mims, Mrs. Latham Ellis; Messrs. Colson-Parrish Wedding.

Of cordial interest to a wide circle of friends was the marriage of Miss Sallie Parrish and Mr. Edwin Earle Colson. The wedding was solemnized on Tuesday evening, September 14th, at the West End Baptist Church, with Dr. Warren M. Seay performing the ceremony. The altar was a mass of palms and fern, forming a background of green for the tall, graceful baskets of white astors and dahlias. At each end of the altar majestic candelabra held white lighted tapers. Preceding the ceremony Mrs. H. L. Harper, soloist, and Mrs. H. Thompson Jones, organist, rendered a program of soft, nuptial music. Immediately before the bridal party entered, Mrs. Harper sang "At Dawning," and "All For You." The wedding party entered to strains from Lohengrin's Wedding March, while Mendhelsonn's was used as a recessional. First came the ushers, Mr. Evans Parrish and Mr. Lewie Hawkins, from opposite aisles. Entering next from the aisle on the left was the matron of honor, Mrs. Clifton Wood, while a groomsman, Mr. W. P. Sandidge, entered from the right. Mrs. Wood wore a model of green georgette, and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses tied with green tulle. Next, entering from the right, was the bridesmaid, Miss Ruth Maddox, wearing a gown of yellow taffeta, and carrying an arm bouquet of pink roses tied with yellow tulle. Mr. F. C. Newcomer, another grommsman, entered the opposite aisle. Proceeding down the center aisle came the Maid of Honor, Miss Mary Shropshire. Her gown was of pink taffeta and her flowers were an arm bouquet of pink roses showered with tiny pink roses and lilies of the valley. They, too, were tied with tulle to match her dress. Following Miss Shropshire were the little flower girls, Misses Mary Arnold and Mary Morris, strewing rose petals in the pathway of the bride. Little Miss Arnold wore a dainty frock of pink Frech voile, and little Miss Morris' was of green. The bride entered on the arm of her uncle, Mr. E. H. Parrish, who gave her in marriage. Her exquisite brunette loveliness was enhanced by the soft white bridal attire. The dress was of white crepe back satin fashioned tight bodice and full skirt effect. The skirt was scalloped around the bottom with real point lace inserted between each scallop. The veil, held by a wreath of orange blossoms, and caught at the sides with cascades of orange blossoms and real lace, flowed gracefully to the floor. The bride's only ornament was a string of pearls, the gift of the groom. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Mr. D. Jones.

Miss Parrish is the lovely niece of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Parrish, and thru her charming personality and gracious manner has won a host of friends. Mr. Colson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Colson, of Atlanta. Mr. Colson is a young business man, and holds a responsible positioin in the Atlanta office of the Marine Underwriters, of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Colson left during the evening for Savannah, where they will take the boat for New York. They will return by rail, stopping at Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington, and other points of interest, returning to Atlanta about October 1. —Contributed.

Wyatt-Burnett.

A marriage of interest to their many friends was that of Miss Delene Burnett and Mr. Varnie Wyatt, which took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Burnett, in Thorsby, Sunday evening at 7:00 o'clock. The ceremony was witnessed by members of the families and intimate friends. An improvised altar of ferns was formed in the door-way between the living and dining rooms. Preceding and during the ceremony a program of nuptial music was rendered. The bride and groom entered together and were met by the officiating minister, Rev. B. Lawrence. The ring ceremony was used. The bride was attired in brown satin with accessories to match. Miss Burnett has been employed for a number of years in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, and has won many friends. Mr. Wyatt is a prosperous business man of Clanton, until recently employed by Johnson Drug Co.

FOOTBALL! CHILTON HIGH TO PLAY CLOVERDALE HIGH

Chilton County High School will prize off the lid of the 1926 football season here next Friday (tomorrow) October 1, when they take on Cloverdale High of Montgomery, in what promises to be a thriller.

As to Cloverdale—they held Sidney Lanier to a 6-6 tie after Lanier had trounced Lee County High 35 to 0. That will give you an idea of just what the Chilton lads and the house of Bruner is up against. Cloverdale has a fast, efficent, well-coached team and their forward passing game is said to be among the best seen so far in high school circles. They are a snappy crew, capable of giving any high school eleven considerable trouble.

Chilton—Coach Bruner has a bunch of eager lads, quick and heady, and above all, willing to work, and clear grit through and through. Tiger supporters are very enthusiastic over the prospects, and see in this fast working crew a duplicate of that great Tiger eleven of 1924, which included Jack Hayes, Howard Thompson, Crit Jones, and others whose names are written far up on Chilton's ladder of fame.

Coach Bruner said: "The high school and the team want the public to know that the game will be played in strict accordance with State Association rules. We had rather lose the game than to win it and have it said afterward that we won unfairly."

Luther Culpepper will do most of the punting, and the little fellow is getting them off for from 50 to 60 yards. Gore will run the team from his quarter-back position, and from the way he has been driving in practice games, and the pep he puts into his men, Chilton should put up some fight next Friday. Game will be called at 3 o'clock sharp. Be there!

HOSPITAL IS DOING GOOD BUSINESS NOW

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of Central Alabama Hospital last Friday, a financial report showed the business of the hospital for the past two and a half months to be very satisfactory.

During the period from July 1st to September 14th the hospital took in $700 more than the expenses incurred for operating the place during that time.

Under the management of Miss Grace Robinson, superintendent, with the constant co-operation of Dr. V. J. Gragg is president, everything is moving along nicely. The patients express themselves as being well cared for. Charley Cleckler, when asked how he was faring at the hospital, said: "It has been mighty fine since I have been here, but oh what I had to go through with to get here."

The directors present at the meeting went over the entire bulding and expressed satisfaction at the appearance and condition of things.

GETTING READY TO OPEN NEW STORE IN CLANTON

Mr. W. T. Baker is in Clanton, and is personally looking after arrangements for the preparation of the building which is to be occupied right away by his new dry goods store. The location is the Johnson building formerly occupied by Retherford Furniture Company on Sixth Street.

The name of the new place will be the W. T. Baker Dry Goods Company. Mr. Baker, the proprietor, is a merchant of long experience. He is originally from north Alabama, having been in business in Marion County. For the past two years he has been in business in south Texas. He sold out his business there this summer and headed back to Alabama. We are glad to note that he chose Clanton for a location after looking over many of the other towns in this state.

Further announcement of the opening day for this new store will be made next week. People who trade in Clanton are going to find Mr. Baker to be a live wire, and it will doubtless pay you to wotch his offerings from time to time.

BOY DEAD OF INJURIES

Grady, the fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Tam Miller of Clanton, died at the home about 4 o'clock Monday morning, September 27th. Death was the result of internal injuries of the abdomen sustained when the boy, riding a bicycle, ran into the sharp corner of a truck parked near the sheriff's house in Clanton last Saturday night about 7 o'clock. Another boy, the young son of Dr. Hayes, ran into the curbing at the same time. He was only slightly injured. It is said that they were meeting an automobile and the light from the approaching car blinded them so that they could not see ahead of them.

Funeral services for the dead child were held at Walnut Creek Monday afternoon at 5:00 o'clock, Rev. G. B. Golden preachinig the funeral. The body was in charge of Martin, undertaker. A large crowd of sorrowing friends were present to pay their last respects to the earthly remains and to share with the parents and relatives the profound sorrow into which they were so suddenly thrown.

AVIATOR DESCRIBES STORM AT PENSACOLA

The following letter has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Peterson of Thorsby from their son, Walter, at the United States Naval Air Station, in Pensacola. He describes the recent storm as follows:

"At 3:30 a. m., Monday morning we were all awakened by the bugler and chased out of the barracks. The wind was about 80 miles an hour and the rain was terrible. I took a blanket with me and also put on a woolen undershirt, because I thought maybe all our clothes would be lost. I went to the Marine barracks, as it was made of brick. When I got there I was soaked from my head down, so I curled up in my blanket and went to sleep on the floor. By this time the storm had increased to about 90 miles an hour. When I woke up the storm had increased to about 120 or 130 miles an hour. At this time it was at its worst. I was afraid to go to sleep then, and I noticed that everybody else was worried. This was about 6 a. m., and the water in the bay was so high that it was booding the station. Some of the fellows went to the mess hall, while buildings, trees, towers, etc., were falling all around them. When I noticed the water rising I left the Marine barracks and started for the office of Squadron 3, where I had a lot of things I wanted to save if possible. The wind blew so hard that it carried me right with it. When I arrived at the office the sea was breaking around the door. I went inside and put all my personal property up high and covered it with canvas. Some of this was destroyed later on. I saved my drawing outfit, which was worth about $100 to me. I locked the door again and between waves started back. I went to the mess hall this time and got a little to eat. I stayed there until the water got so high that we had to put the chairs on top of the tables, and then I went back to the Marine barracks. It was now 11 a. m. The wind was still about 110 miles an hour, and the station was a terrible wreck. Nearly all the hangars were blown open and the planes were broken to pieces by the big waves and the wind. (When I was at the office I put on a leather vest). When I left the mess hall the water was up to my waist, and when I arrived back at the Marine barracks I was soaked to the skin, leather vest, woolen shirt, blanket and all. I lay down on the floor and went to sleep, and later on they brought us some half raw meat and a little bread. We ate that and then went to sleep again. Later on we were all chased out into the storm to close a door at Squadron 6, that had blown open. That took us an hour, and when it was over I went to the hospital, which was a mile away. I had to walk through the storm to get there, and when I arrived I found the place was full. I was wet, of course, and they had no empty beds. I was hungry, but there was nothing to eat. I had to sleep on the floor all night in my wet clothes with only a blanket around me—no mattress. Next morning I got a cup of coffee for breakfast and then decided I would be as well off at the barracks, and I walked back. The storm had quited some time during the night, but it was still raining. After getting back I managed to get a bite to eat, and then I started on my 16-mile walk to send a telegram. The water had gone down, but the wreckage was so thick that it took me from 9 a. m., (22nd) until 10 p. m., to get the message off and get back home. My feet were as raw and bloody as a beefsteak. I slept in my own bed that night and I sure slept sound.

"When the sun came up next morning (23rd) it was a changed world. The planes were broken and scattered all over the station. We lost at least 100 of all different types. About $3,000,000 damage to planes alone. Our wooden barracks were not damaged a bit from the high wind, but the rain blew in and ran in, wetting a lot of clothes.

"There are all kinds of ships on the sand. Some are out of the water and some are in 1 or 2 feet of water. They are a total loss so far as getting them back in the water is concerned. The Pensacola water-front is ruined, but otherwise the city is not damaged much. We suffered the most damage.

"There has been a number of planes here taking pictures of the place, and yesterday as I was returning from supper I heard one coming and looked up just in time to see the plane hit the radio tower and break off the right wing. The plane fell in the Captain's yard and exploded, and burned up in a few minutes. I ran to the plane, but I was too late to get either of the men out; I had to stand there and watch them burn up. It was an Army plane from Montgomery, Lieut. Johnson was the pilot, and the other man was a civilian from Pensacola. That was terrible. Well, I am feeling fine, and I have to work all day tomorrow (Sunday, 26th). I am sending you the first paper that was printed here after the storm. You see, we were shut off from all communication for 3 days. The station will be so that we can live all right in a few days. Lovingly, —Walter."

CHURCH OF CHRIST

The Church of Christ at Clanton has recently employed the services of Rece H. Rogers of Birmingham, Ala., to preach at Clanton each Sunday.

The church at Clanton is now five years old. We have prospered during that time, and we now have a zealous band of worshipers who meet regularly for worship. Each Sunday at 10 o'clock we meet for Bible study; and there is preaching each Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Other than our usual Sunday services we have a class in Bible that meets at the church each Saturday evening at 7:30 for an hour's study of the Bible. This is a non-sectarian study of the plain facts of the Bible. Our first lesson for Saturday evening, Oct. 2nd is a study of the First Corinthian letter.

We insist that you visit our services and Bible study before you pass judgment. Remember, you have a cordial invitation each Sunday to our services and our Bible study each Saturday evening.—THE ELDERS.

CHILTON GIRL RECEIVES SPECIAL MENTION IN ADVERTISER

In last Sunday's issue of the Montgomery Advertiser appeared the large photograph of Miss Fannie Jo Scott of Verbena, together with a very high compliment paid her for having graduated with highest honors at Montevallo in 1926, which means that Miss Scott received an average of 90 and above during the four years at Alabama College. This is a rare and enviaible record, and we feel proud that Chilton County can claim as our home product one who has attained this high position among her fellow students.

Miss Scott is the daughter of Mr. Sam'l Scott, Clanton's photographer, whose home is in Verbena. She is now teaching mathematics in the Butler County High School at Greenville, Ala.

WHAT CAN THE FARMER DO TO BE SAVED?

Much talk is being engaged in now about the bad condition of our farmers since the pr ce of cotton has hit the bottom. What can the farmers do to be saved? seems to be the question of the hour.

One man suggested to The Union-Banner that we write an editorial and tell the people how to save themselves from economic disaster. How glad we should be if we held the key to the situation. If we knew what plan would be practical and safe to bring back the good feelings of the farmers and fill their pockets with money, we would have issued an extra already to tell them about it.

Then again, we would hesitate to tell it if we had an idea or a plan, because the farmers would be loathe to accept it. They have had so many plans sprung upon them only to prove failures, that they would be skeptcal at another at this time. And who could blame them?

So far as the present low price of cotton, it is no surprise to people who have kept a close watch upon the cotton situation. We predicted early this year that if another big crop was produced the price could not and would not be high. That it a very reasonable deduction.

What can the farmer do to be saved? Our answer would be: Put more business into his farming. Diversify his crops. Grow less cotton, and for that which is grown, use an organized, systematized and business method of marketing, for instance, that which the Farm Bureau has been trying to inaugurate in recent years.

Most of all, the farmers of Chilton county need a farm demonstration agent to help them work our their farm problems. We need more business in our farming all over the South.

Doubtless, many farmers in Chilton county who now have a surplus of cheap cotton would be glad if they had only half their cotton and the other half in corn, peas, hogs, cattle or anything that would be good forthe family or feed for the stock. 'Well, why didn't they think of that last spring? It would have saved some fertilizer money perhaps.

You would say those other things would not be salable if we had them. Well, maybe not; but they would be eatable, and that it more than you can say for cotton.

And how about strawberries? Plenty of men around here made much more money from an acre of berries last sping than they will make from a twenty-bale cotton crop.

What can the farmer do to be saved? Why, goodness knows, there are just lots of ways he can do if he will only do them.

But why get alarmed? Folks around Clanton are not in such a bad fix after all. This cheap cotton is going hard with a few of our most careless and less thrifty people. But the most of them will get by. And as the years pass along, more and more of them will abandon their folly and adopt a plan that it more certain of something to eat and some money to spend. Every year finds more and more farmers using a business system and getting away from the cotton idea. Just keep a stiff upper lip. Use your brains more and give your muscles a little rest.

DUNCAN ADVISES POOLING COTTON

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 29.—Prof. L. N. Duncan, Director, Extension Service, Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, believes that cotton growers in Alabama, and in the South, should establish a new high record in pooling cotton for cooperative marketing this year. He says that while every year is a good year for pooling cotton, present indications are that this season is better than the average.

"It is a matter of record," said Prof. Duncan, "that while the present crop is smaller than that of last year, the price is much lower. This reduction in price appears to be due, first, to the cotton carried over from the 1925 crop; and, second, to the usual dumping spree. Reports show that farmers, not only in Alabama, but in other states, are selling a lot of their cotton as fast as they gin it, and the price is not likely to recover as long as farmers are putting cotton on the market three or four times as fast as the market is consuming it."

Continuing, Prof. Duncan said:

"There are two very important facts which we should consider when we are thinking about marketing cotton. The first is that cotton growers as a whole are in a poor economic status. This is especially true of the cotton growers of the southeastern states.

"In the second place, cooperative marketing has proven itself to be the best known way for farmers to sell their cotton. This is true of every year, although some years are better than others. I wish that we might forget cooperative marketing and think beyond it of farmers taking charge of their business in selling, and also buying. This is the biggest need of agriculture.

"I certainly hope that Alabama cotton growers will establish a new high record in marketing cotton cooperatively through the Farm Bureau Cotton Association this year. I am certain that it is to their advantage to do so."

OLD TIME FIDDLERS CONTEST IS TO BE STAGED BY RADIO

An old time fiddlers contest for the championship of the Southeastern Exposition, Atlanta, October 2-9, will be staged by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation and broadcast by Atlanta Journal Station WSB, Thursday, October 7, at 8 p. m., direct from the fair grounds. This will be the first time that an old time fiddlers contest has been broadcast in the southeast. Each of the contestants will play two numbers and radio listeners will be requested to act as judges of the competition, their post card and letter votes deciding the champion and other prize winners.

"Radio has revived an interest in old itme dance music the country over," said George C. Biggar, secretary of the foundation at Atlanta in announcing the contest. "There is always lots of argument as to the merits of the many old time fiddlers in the southeast and this radio contest, with the vote of radio fans to decide, should settle for 1926 the king of old fiddlers. To receive the coveted first award in this contest will be no small honor."

Four prizes totaling $100 will be offered the winners. First prize is $50; second, $25; third, $15; and fourth, $10. Fiddlers must reside in the states of North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, or Tennessee, to be eligible. Entries must all be in the hands of the foundation October 2. Complete rules of the contest may be secured from the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation, Atlanta, Ga.

GLASS - WALDROP WEDDING

A marriage of much interest to their many friends was that of Mr. Vollie Glass and Miss Essie Waldrop, last Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Rev. R. M. Honeycutt, at Jemison. The ceremony was witnessed by a few friends and relatives. The bride was attired in blue crepe with accessories to match. Soon after the ceremony, they left for Ensley where they will make their home, where Mr. Glass has been an employee of T. C. I. for five years. He is the son of Mr. W. A. Glass of Oak Grove community, and has many friends there. The bride is the daughter of Squire Waldrop of Pleasant Grove. Their many friends and relatives wish them much happiness.

WEST CHILTON

Everybody picking cotton.

Cotton fields look brown and sear since the cotton worms have stripped the foliage—looks like old times.

Mr. Jackson's letter in the last Banner was good.

That letter from Thorsby last week regarding the contribution by the Lutheran people of Thorsby had the right ring. Portraying love for humanity regardless of creed. Such a spirit will ultimately prevail. Then we will look back and see what fools we mortals were. A spirit of co-operation, good will and helpfulness to each other would solve many of our difficulties.

The Banner's letters, "Notes of Travel," make fine reading. Thanks to the correspondent.

Mr. T. J. Hubbard was visiting in Jemison last week.

A petition has been circulated to make the Randolph and Jemison road 25 feet wide; a move in the right direction.

We noticed in a Montgomery paper a clipping relative to Mr. Noah B. Coker, one of Randolph's old citizens. He is now 91 years old, hale and hearty, and was well known to Chilton people in the long ago. He was once sheriff of Bibb County.

John W. Mahan of Birmingham, owner of the Mahan farm in Beat 2, proposes to place 100 milk cows on the farm and establsh a dary near the Southern Railroad.

We note the Jemison - Mars Hill road is in good condition, thanks to the authorities. Down in Beat 14 some improvements would be welcome. How nice new sign boards would look where crossings occur. We feel sure the Honorable Commissioners Court will not forget us.

Farm demonstration work in the past is producing results now. We believe food crops are about sufficient and yet some food products are short. We see high priced fertilizer giving results, still we believe a few high priced hogs would have been a more profitable investment.

We hope the people will keep our county in the channel of retrenchment, economy, and freedom from debt.

PINEDALE

Our Sunday school is fine, but there is room for improvement. Last Sunday we elected officers and teachers as follows: Joe Thompson, Superintendent; Sam Connell, Secretary; Teachers—Class No. 1, Hence Thompson; No. 2, Mrs. Annie Belle Moatts; No. 3, Mrs. Benie Minor; and for the Card Class, Mrs. Cora Headley.

Rev. Dan DuBose filled his regular appointment here Saturday night and Sunday, and Sunday night. Good crowds were in attendance at all the services. Several visitors from other communities were present. We are always glad to have visitors.

Mrs. Verlie Mims visited Mrs. Hence Thompson Saturday night.

We have Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock; prayer meeting every Sunday night. Everybody come.—A Reader.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends and relatives for the kindnesses shown us during the death of our infant son. Also for the beautiful floral offerings. May God's richest blessings be bestowed upon each and everyone of them.—Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Martin.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks and appreciation to those who contributed in any way to our relief, by money, clothing, and other things, in our time of trouble and need, caused by having everything destroyed by fire. We especially want to thank the people of Clanton, Mulberry and Samaria communities for their liberality. Your kindness will ever be remembered by us. May the Lord bless and reward each of you.—Mrs. Julia Hayes and Children.

NEW CEDRON

Sunday was our regular preaching day, and we enjoyed a fine sermon.

Sunday afternoon was our singing afternoon, also. A good crowd was present, who enjoyed some good singing. Directors were Clarence Billingsley, Ocie Williams, Horace Ozella Brown, Vester Bice, Herbert Traywick, Porter Williams, Morris Keen, Mary Ethel Brown. Organists were Miss Susie Huett, Clarence Billingsley, Minnie Bice, and Elmae Williams. —Lucile Motes.

TURPENTINING TIMBER IS A BAD PRACTICE

Turpentined timber sustained by far the greater part of the forest losses caused by the recent hurricane that crossed south Alabama, according to investigations made by the State Commission of Forestry. Round timber, as the trees that have not been chipped for turpentine are called, suffered comparatively little injury. The reason for this lay in the fact that the unchipped tree stems were much stronger than those that had been worked for naval stores.

In the case of a very large tree chipping extending from one-half inch to one inch in depth does not remove a very large proportion of the cross section of the trunk. However, the same depth of facing on small trees takes out a relatively large proportion of the wood with a corresponding increase in liability to breakage. In fact, the practice of turpentining small trees in general usually results in a very heavy loss to the timber owner from this cause alone, even from winds of usual velocity. Hurricane winds, of course, increase the damage still more.

It would be difficult to estimate the number of millions of dollars that timberland owners have lost through allowing the turpentining of small trees. The impression is often gained that turpentining does not injure the growth, and many a landowner has allowed operators to work small trees only to find later that the stand suffered an almost entire loss of the trees chipped. Since young pines make the most rapid growth between approximately four inches and twelve inches in diameter, it is exceedingly good business to refrain from turpentining the trees until they have reached the latter size.

ALL DAY SINGING

I wish to say to the public that there will be an all day singing at Providence church, Beat 13, October 17, the third Sunday. All singers and lovers of music are invited. We hope to have a great day.—E. H. Foshee.

The farmer who has a good radio receiving set in his home is better prepared to enjoy the fall and winter evenings at home.

NURSE SAVES TWO FROM OPERATION

"I had two patients that the doctor seemed unable to reach with their medicines and in both cases advised the knife. A friend who had tried MAYR'S for stomach trouble proposed that I try it on my patients, which I did. Both are now entirely well. I am very glad that I am able to recommend it." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract, and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded at Alred Drug Co., and druggists everywhere.

(S. E. NORTON, Manager).

(Mrs. H. M. Gerald, Special Cor.)

The P. T. A. will hold its social and business meeting Thursday of this week at the home of Mrs. A. Danielson. A full attendance is desired.

Mrs. T. W. Robinson will leave for Pensacola, Fla., Thursday to be with Mr. Robinson for an indefinite time.

Several new students have entered Thorsby Institute the past week.

The Ladies Guild gave their annual reception last Friday night in the auditorium of Helen Jenkins Hall. This reception is a welcome to the teachers and students and many friends of the school. An address of welcome was given by Mrs. Charles Howard, President of the Guild. This being the 21st year of the school, Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald gave a history of the school followed by a talk by Miss Jenkins, its principal, showing her appreciation of the many nice and wonderful gifts of friends of the school through the 20 years of its existence. An amusing and unique part of the program was the appearance of Mr. E. W. Butler with his treasurer's book, worrying over where many needs were coming from, and his falling asleep while spirits pass by him depositing many things that the school needs as a result of their late fire. Several musical numbers were beautifully rendered by Miss Guila Williams, head of the music department, Mrs. C. R. Foss, and Kathryn Foss. As a result of the meeting, a Clanton friend is to give a gold piece gift to each student who is neither absent nor tardy during the whole year. Refreshments were served to about 100 or more guests.

Mr. A. K. Horn has now opened up his place of business and is making some delicious Crispettes. They are fresh and fine. Mr. Horn treated each one who attended the reception given by the Ladies Guild to a sample of this pop-corn confectionery.

Miss Isabel Gilbert of Miami, Fla., who is attending Thorsby Institute, received word the other day that her father's home was demolished by the terrible storm that city lately suffered. While no one in her family were killed, some were injured.

Mrs. A. K. Horn will have charge of the sales room of the Ladies Guild hereafter. This room is in the basement of the teachers' cottage.

Miss Olive Pearson, young people's worker, who has headquarters in Washington, D. C., was in Thorsby from Sunday to Monday night. She gave an interesting talk Sunday evening in Christian Endeavor, and also spoke and sang in Chapel at Thorsby Institute Monday morning. While here, arragements were made for a Young People's Life Conference, to be held probably some time in March.

Mr. Carl Langville, wife and daughter, Muriel, and Mr. and Mrs. Aton Dennis of Ensley were all visitors at the home of Mrs. Martha Grothy last Sunday.

A rally day service was held Sunday morning at the Congregational church and a new class for intermediate boys was organized.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Prim of Siluria spent the week end with Mr. Prim's sister, Mrs. W. H. Raybon.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Copeland of Birmingham were in Thorsby Sunday.

Mrs. S. E. Malone of Selma, mother of Mrs. Ben Davenport, and Mrs. Davenport's sister, Mrs. Ludie Lenoir, of Clanton, are visiting at the Davenport home this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Webb Parrish spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Browder of Clanton.

J. L. Brown and little daughter, and Mr. Brown's mother of Birmingham spent Sunday with Mrs. J. C. Prim and W. H. Raybon.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Reagan spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Carl R. Peterson of Fairfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Howard, with Lucile, Loyd, and Ella Howard, motored to Calcis Sunday. They took lunch and enjoyed a picnic by the way side. They visited Mr. and Mrs. Turner, who have a small green house and a great love for flowers. Mr. Turner is a cabinet maker, but he has flowers as a side recreation. His place is literally packed with all kinds of plants.

Mr. George Jasperson of Birmingham was a visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry V. Thompson last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Thompson are returning to Thorsby to live. Mr. Thompson is located with Relius Franklin in the Franklin Garage.

Mrs. A. Burson and daughter's family, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Reinhardt and baby, after visiting old friends in Thorsby for a week, continued on their journey by auto to Los Angeles last Monday.

Mr. and Mr.. Lawrence Lefstead, baby, and Mr. Palmer Lefstead, all of Birmingham, were visitors Sunday at the home of their mother, Mrs. Johanna Lefstead.

Mrs. Chas. Howard received a letter from her sister, Mrs. Aichard Helton, fomerly Miss Clara Husby. Mrs. Helton tells of the havoc wrought at her home, Grand Bay, 26 miles from Mobile. All the pecans were blown from the trees, pine trees were blown down and part of their house was unroofed and much damage done their belongings by rain. She reports, however, that the satsuma crop was not badly injured, and would be pretty good.

There will be services in the Lutheran church next Sunday morning, in the Scandinavian language, and in English in the evening.

There will be stereoptican views given next Sunday evening in the Congregational church on work in the mission fields.

The Ladies Aid of the Congregational church will hold a thank offering service at the church on Thursday afternoon, October 7. The program will include a play, "The Secret of Happiness," given by some of the young ladies. Everyone iis cordially invited.

The Y. W. A. met at the home of Mrs. Leonard Lowery Tuesday afternoon. An interesting program was rendered, after which refreshments were served.

Miss Giula Williams has announced that there will be a gold medal given at the end of this year to the pupil of hers who makes the greatest progress in music, and shows the greatest musicianship.

THE UNITY-CHILTON SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION MEETS

The annual Sunday School convention of the Unity-Chilton County Baptist Associations which met with the Poplar Springs church, Sunday, September the 26th was called to order at 10 o'clock by the president, H. A. Harris.

The program was then taken up in its regular order and the various subjects very ably discussed, Rev. W. A. Goss speaking to the subject, "The problems of my Sunday school," Bro. T. L. Patrick, to whom the subject was assigned, being absent.

At 11:10 o'clock Rev. M. J. Parrish began and delivered an excellent sermon on Missions, after which the convention adjourned until 1:30 o'clock p. m.

During the noon hour a bounteous table was spread beneath the towering oaks. This table was a credit to Poplar Springs church and Community, and would have been to any church and community.

The afternoon program was disposed of in order with able discussions, Prof. A. E. Davis speaking to the subject "The church without a Sunday School," instead of Rev. B. Lawrence who was unable to attend the convention on the account of other church duties.

Rev. W. R. Seymour, the manager of the Selma Baptist Hospital, incidently dropped in in the afternoon and gave us some inspiring words from the hospital.

At 3 o'clock the convention went in a business session, at which time the role was called and the following schools answered: Indian Grave, Billingsley, White Pond, Maplesville, Stanton, Mulberry, Sardis, Verbena, Mt. Creek, Chestnut Creek, Bethsalem, Corinth, Samaria, Poplar Springs Providence (Beat 16), Refuge, Concord, Thorsby, New Salem and Pleasant Valley. Among other matters attended to was the designation of Bethsalem church as the meeting place for the convention next year.

Upon recommendation of the nominating committee, which was composed of W. J. Billingsley, H. J. Taylor and Prof. A. E. Davis, Prof. H. A. Harris was re-elected president of the Sunday School association as formed. J. Z. Mims was elected vice-president and G. F. Harris, secretary-treasurer.

The convention was a grand success in every respect, although there were several schools absent which we hope will begin even now to look forward to the next annual convention and be represented. With the adoption of the following resolution, the convention was closed with prayer to meet with the Bethsalem Baptist church next year:

"Be it resolved that the Unity-Chilton Sunday School Association extend its thanks and good wishes to the people of Poplar Springs church and communty for their hospitable reception and entertainment on Sunday, September 26th. We beseech the Lord's richest blessings upon them."—J. Z. MIMS, Secretary.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Curlee and son Billy, of Birmingham, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Curlee.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES AT THE COURT HOUSE

Large crowds have attended the evangelistic services being held at the court house since Wednesday night of last week. The Presbyterian church is congratulating itself on having secured a man like "Dad" Sargent to hold these services. "Dad" is bringing red-hot gospel messages right from the Old Book every night. Everyone who has heard him remarks that he preaches the plain gospel.

The services for the rest of the week and Sunday are as follows: Thursday night, Church night, a large attendance is expected from each church in Clanton; the message will be "Findng Your Place." Friday night will be Sunday School and young people's night; three young ladies are engaged in a contest for attendance of the young people. Dad has promised something sweet to the winner. The message will be suitable for young and old, "The Supreme Privilege" being the topic. Saturday night the evangelist and singer are going to attend the recital at the Methodist church.

Sunday at 11 o'clock, "The Joy of True Worship;" 3 p.m., mass meeting for young and old. At 6:30, young people's rally in Baptist church. The closing service at 7:30 in the court house.

Too Much "Acid?"

Excess Uric Acid Gives Rise to Many Unpleasant Troubles.

AUTHORITIES agree that an excess of uric acid is primarily due to faulty kidney action. Retention of this toxic material often makes its presence felt by sore, painful joints, a tired, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backache and headache. That the kidneys are not functioning right is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. Thousands assist their kidneys at such times by the use of Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Doan's are recommended by many local people. Ask your neighbor!

TALLADEGA CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

Talladega has a full-fledged candidate for governor, the Hon. John A. Bingham having been nominated by the Republicans for that high and exalted position.

Mr. Bingham is a native of Talladega and of course his fellow citizens feel a pride in his selection to make the race for his party in the November election. He is one of the county's largest land owners and planters, beside being interested in a number of business and commercial interests of Talladega. No man takes a greater interest and pride in the success of his home institutions than Mr. Bingham.

Regardless of party lines he has always been for Talladega and its interests. He is a gentleman of splendid executive ability, easy manner, pleasant of address, entertaining in conversation, and an all 'round, cultured, upright gentleman.

Of course, he will not be elected, but this fact does not discount his ability and qualifications to fill the office honorably and creditably.—Talladega Daily Home.

THE REASON WHY CLANTON FOLKS ARE GOOD FOLKS

A friend out in the country the other day said to the editor: "The folks in Clanton ought to be mighty good folks."

"Quite so," was our reply. "The folks in Clanton are good folks. Why do you say they ought to be good?"

"Well," he said, "you have so much doings of one kind and another by the churches, and so much preaching down there that it looks like you couldn't help but have the best folks in the world."

Continuing, he said: "Just a short while back the Baptists had Brother Jerome Williams down there for a big meeting. It was fine. I went to it several times, and the church was so crowded that I could hardly get a seat in shooting distance of the preacher. Before the Baptist meeting was over the Christian church had one started. By the time that one was over the Methodists began a week of 'auspicing' the Milt Tolbert Tent Show. Then before the show was through 'Dad' Sargent began a protracted meeting for the Presbyterians at the county court house. With all that doings by the churches, it certainly looks to me like the Clanton folks have a right to be good."

It is said that rubber from the guayule shrub, found growing wild in the rocky hills of northern Mexico and southern Texas, and in cultivation in California, promises to meet the world rubber demands. Speaking of Carrier Pigeons

Speaking of carrier pigeons—although no one has done so lately—reminds me of a yarn that may or may not be true—it sounds almost too good to be true—that was related at the front in 1918. The version most frequently told had it that a half company of a regiment in the Rainbow division, on going forward early one morning in a heavy fog for a raid across No Man's land, carried along with the rest of the customary equipment a homing pigeon. The pigeon in its wicker cage swung on the arm of a private, who likewise was burdened with his rifle, his extra rounds of ammunition, his trenching tool, his pair of wire cutters, his steel helmet, his gas mask, his emergency ration and quite a number of other more or less cumbersome items.

It was to be a surprise attack behind a cloak of the fog, so there was no artillery preparation beforehand, nor barrage fire as the squads climbed over the top and advanced into the mist-hidden beyond. Behind, in the post of observation and in the post of command—"P. O." and "P. C.," those were called in the algebraic terminology of the war—the colonel and his aides and his intelligence officers waited for the sound of firing. When after some minutes the distant rattle of the rifle fire came to their ears they began calculating how long reasonably it might be before word reached them by one or another medium of communication touching on the results of the foray. But the ground telephone remained mute, and no runner returned through the fog with tidings. The suspense increased as time passed.

Suddenly a pigeon sped into view, flying close to the earth. With eager eyes following it in its course the winged messenger circled until it located its portable cote just behind the colonel's position and fluttering down it entered its familiar shelter.

An athletic member of the staff hustled up the ladder. In half a minute he was tumbling down again, clutching in one hand the little scroll of paper that he had found fastened about the pigeon's leg. With fingers that trembled in anxiety the colonel unrolled the paper and read aloud what was written upon it.

What he read, in the hurried chirography of a kid private, was the following succinct statement: "I'm tired of carrying this d—n bird."

You can't repeal the laws of nature but happily you can't pass any more. —Urich (Mo.) Herald.

A machine which converts corn into sugar 95% as sweet as sugar is one of the recent developments announced by the Department of Agriculture. The Department's machine converts the corn into sugar in 10 hours by a new process that manufactures "maltose" sugar. The old process produced corn sugar called "dextrose,' which was only about 50% as sweet as cane sugar.

Each child's room should have at least one good picture which tells a good story.

Farming is the greatest, freest and most satisfying life in the world. Money is not everything.

A poster just published by the Department of Agriculture says that domestic rabbit meat tastes more like chicken than it does like wild rabbit. It adds: "Domestic rabbits are raised in hutches where they have only limited exercise and where they can be fed properly. They are clean in habits and their diet, which consists chiefly of oats, barley, and alfalfa hay, makes sweet and tender meat."

WHY IS IT - -

Many a soft, chicken-hearted
Flapper will turn her eyes
Away in terror if she happens
To see you putting an end to
A June bug or a cockroach—
And go into hysterics if she Sees a mischief-bent pup shaking
Up some alley "Me-ow" a bit—
And tell teamsters what hard-
Boiled, good-for-nothing eggs
They are just because they
Threaten their horses with a
Whip or talk rough to them—
Yes, even when she scratches
Her finger and sees a drop of
Red ink coming to the surface,
She'll turn white and, maybe,
Faint if there are some
Convenient soft cushions 'round
Or a handsome, young
Sheik near to catch her—

AND YET - -

At the football game, she's
The same young damsel sitting
Behind you who encourages her Heroes with fire-siren shrieks of:

"Kill 'em! Kill 'em!
Knock 'em out of the Game! Send 'em to a Hospital!"

And when her heroes comply with
The request and the enemy makes
Its exit from the field in
Horizontal position—one by one
On stretchers—she'll just meekly
Sigh:

"Oh, well - - they had it
Coming. Serves 'em right!
Too bad our boys didn't Hit 'em harder!"

A moment later she'll be powdering
Her nose unconcernedly—and
Then again, when you least expect
It, let out another ear-drum
Breaker—a la:

"Rough 'em up! Kill 'em!
We've got to win this game!
Fight! Rip! Smash! Soak 'em!
Rah for our side!"

Why is it?—we ask you.

TO THE BUSINESS MEN OF SHELBY COUNTY

The Wilsonville Exchange Club wants your support in a movement that they have undertaken to secure cheaper and better ferriage service for the public over the ferries between Shelby and Talladega Counties. As our funds are limited and our members are busy at this season, we are not able to visit you in person to solicit your support. Therefore, we take this means of reachinig you, and trust that each man who reads this will consider the matter as seriously as if we were able to talk to him in person.

Do you know that in Marshall County the ferries are run free to citizens of the county?

Do you know that in Shelby County the ferriage charges of fifty cents a vehicle each way is more than it was twenty years ago—before there was as much traffic as there is today?

Do you know that the law provides that the ferryman should be under two thousand dollar bond to the county board of revenue to indemnify the public against loss or damage, and that there are no records of any such bond on file for any of the ferries of this county?

Do you know that the county commissioners court or the county board of revenue has complete power to control and operate the ferries out of the county road and bridge funds as they are doing in Marshall County? And in case they do not operate the ferries themselves by contract, that they have power, and it is their duty, to set the price that may be charged by ferrymen?

If the county boards of revenue of Shelby and Talladega counties can not operate the ferries between these two counties free of charge to the citizens of these counties, we think they should advertise for and let them to bidders who will operate them for the lowest charges under sufficient bond.

We know good men who will operate these ferries for charges of not more than ten cents a vehicle in day and twenty-fice cents at night.

Members of the commercial bodies addressed, and business men of Shelby County, won't you get together several of your good citizens and communicate with us, that we may co-operate in this movement? Respectfully Yours, — Wilsonville Exchange Club, E. W. Carter, Secretary; W. J. Weldon, President.

THE COOSA RIVER TRANSPORT COMPANY

To the Honorable Board of Revenue of Shelby County, Ala.,

Gentlemen:

As the October term of your court will probably be the time at which you will renew the licenses for the ferries on the Coosa River, we are filing with you our bid to operate the three ferries south of Vincent—the ferry near Childersburg, the ferry near Wilsonville, and the ferry near Fayetteville. We are sending a copy of this letter to our county papers that all persons concerned may know that our bid will be with your body at its next meeting.

We do not think that long time contracts at present are in the public interest, but we make our bid for one year or more at the option of your body.

We are willing to make bond in whatever sum your body may prescribe under the law to operate the ferries safely in interest of the public and to carry out the contract to the full term of years.

We are bidding on all three of the ferries but will accept one or more without the others on the same terms bid for all three, provided you secure better bids for one or two of them.

Our bid is this:

The county furnish the equipment and we will operate the ferries for a charge of ten cents a vehicle in the day time and twenty-fice cents at night. In case the county does not wish to furnish the barges and equipments, we will revise our bid upon notice from your body.

We will accept the contract upon short notice from your body. Respectfully submitted,—Coosa River Transport Company, W. H. Pope, Secretary-Treasurer.

WHAT ABOUT THE PAPER?

Let me insist that all those who attended the committee meeting on September 15 and pledged themselves to support the paper, do so—now! It will be too late after the election. Several have not mailed me their pledges yet, while some have mailed in a list of names that they failed to remit for. I would like for this remittance to be in my hands by October 15. I would like, also, to see The Union-Banner in every home in Shelby County. Suppose we start a paper campaign. Let every man, woman, boy and girl, who reads this send in one or two new subscripers for next week with twenty-five cents to pay for same until after election. What say ye? Alright the campaign is on. Let's Go!

A tempting ice course was served to the following: Misses Willodean Reynolds, Ivilyn Ingram, Bertha Margolis, Elizabeth Duncan, Hazel Kreider, Bertha and Rose Denby of Birmingham, Sarah Slepian of Memphis, Tenn., Mr. and Mrs. Latham Ellis, Messrs. Otto Jones, Frank Mullins, George McCain, Mack Wyatt, Harry Margolis, Temmerson, Leo Alred, Barney Burnett, and the hosts.

"I DO NOT want to be thin! I just want to be my right weight! I want these hollows filled out. I just want enough firm, plump flesh on my bones to fill out my figure."

Of course you do. You want a figure that you can drape your clothes on—not just hang them on! What's the use of having pretty clothes, if they just hang on you?

And what would you say if you were told you could have the figure you want? A graceful, well rounded body—firm, solid flesh—just enough—just your right weight? You'd be mighty happy, wouldn't you?

Well, then, be happy — because you can have it! Put plenty of red cells in your blood and watch your weight go up to where you want it! That's what's the matter with you! Your blood is impoverished. You need more rich, red blood. S. S. S. is the thing to put red blood in your system. S. S. S. helps Nature build red-blood-cells by the millions.

You just try S. S. S. and watch how quickly you begin to fill out your clothes. Notice your skin clear of unsightly blemishes — your appetite increase — strength come to flabby muscles and vim and vigor fill your whole system. It's red blood that does it. And S. S. S. surely helps Nature build that red blood. S. S. S. is sold by all drug stores. The larger bottle is more economical.

NOTES OF TRAVEL

(By S. E. NORTON)

On Tuesday, September 21, the writer received a telegram announcing the death of a Norton, H. M. Norton, whose home was in Brooklyn, a part of Greater New York City. The funeral was to be held at 11 a. m., Thursday, in Brooklyn, about 50 miles from Kenvil. We think it will be interesting to read of the complications of transportation in these large cities.

The first thing of importance to us was how to get there. Sereno G. being away from home, we were as "babes in the woods" regarding going about without a guide. It was arranged that we go to the office of T. A. Norton in New York City, and he or his son would pilot us the rest of the way. To get to his office we had to go to Dover by auto, then a railroad trip of 40 miles, stopping here and there to take on commuters, people who go in and come out daily. As this was an early train there were many of them, and the train was filled before we reached Hoboken, N. J. This city is at the western end of a tunnel that goes under the Hudson River. Leaving our train, we entered the depot and proceeded through long passage ways and down inclines and stairs where we reached gates through which we passed, by placing 6 cents each in a box. We found two "tubes" they call them—one going "up town" and the other "down town." After passing through these gates a train soon pulled alongside, big doors in the middle of the car opening, the floor of the cars being on a level with the platform so that entrance is quick and easy. All in, away we go down hill about half a mile, then begin to go up hill until we have gone completely under the Hudson River and are now in New York City in the portion called "down town." Then we began to climb stairs and inclines to reach the street and the surface of the earth. After walking a few blocks we reached the desired building and tried another mode of transportation, in an elevator, to the 9th floor. We left soon, accompanied by our nephew. We walked about half a block to the wonderful Equitable Life Insurance Building, the largest office building in the world, covering a large space, and 44 stories high. It is said to house a working population of 10,000. After entering this building on the ground floor we went down to the basement and through an arcade to another "tube" under the East River to Brooklyn. Again we climbed to the street, where we took a taxi to our destination.

On our return trip, piloted by two nephews this time, we took an elevated train, which crosses Brooklyn Bridge. This was the first bridge built over the East River, the famous suspension bridge, and was at that time considered a great feat of engineering. At the Manhatten end of the bridge we were landed in front of the old but famous City Hall, where all celebrities to this country are received in the open spaces in front of the Hall. Here we had a wonderful view of the Woolworth Building, as the open spaces and distance from the building gave us a view of it from the ground up to the pinnacle. Here we took a taxi to the Hudson terminal, where we descended to the Hoboken tunnel, thence by train again to Dover, and from Dover to Kenvil by trolley.

Times have so changed, automobiles and busses have so cut trolley riding that the managers of these lines have been compelled to devise means to make the handling of trolley cars, in some places, a one-man job. The back platform is closed by heavy wire mesh and there is only one door open on the side of the front platform. A man operates a lever stopping the car, opens the door at the front step and as the people enter each passenger is given a ticket with figures on it to identify the route. When all at that stop are in, the door is closed and the car started. When passengers wish to go out, they go to the front platform, hand the motorman the ticket and the right amount of fare, the door is opened and they go out. There is a money change arrangement in front of the man, where he makes change when necessary. All out, others are allowed to come in, so that there is no crowding. This sounds as if it must take a long time, but it really is done very quickly and smoothly. We noticed a lot of school children who got on at one corner. They apparently had tickets that had apparently been paid for, which were taken up as they passed out; most of these children were let out right in front of their homes, if they lived on the line street. New Jersey laws are very strict against motor vehicles in passing a trolley car when discharging or receiving passengers. We do not know how many hours a motorman works, but he certainly has to move lively while he is at it.

In looking back over the events of the day, we are convinced that while we do not object to them as experiences and illustrations of the great number of people, wider spaces, pure air, more leisure and less noise suit us better, and are more conducive to real life.

Democratic Nominee for

Tax Collector of Chilton County

In the General Election, November 2, 1926

WILL BE APPRECIATED

(Paid political adv., by J. Renfroe Mullins, Clanton, Ala.)

CHILTON COUNTY TRAINING SCHOOL WILL OPEN TODAY

The Chilton County Training School for colored boys and girls will open today, September 30, with preliminary organization and outlining the work general opening next Monday, October 4th.

The classification of high school students will be done first, followed on Friday by a faculty meeting for organizatioin and outlining the work of teachers. The faculty is composed of new teachers this year, as follows: Lawrence C. Johnson, principal, a graduate of Tuskegee; Dorothy Johnson, Mae B. Rummage, Cornelia Banks, Eliza E. Charles. A home economics teacher and one high school teacher are yet to be selected.

Saturday the students and patrons of the school, together with the teachers, will be engaged in cleaning up the grounds surrounding the school buildings.

Monday the public opening program of the school will be rendered, at which all visitors will be welcome.

The colored people are taking great interest in the school, and are enthusiastic in their use of the institution for giving their boys and girls an education. It is the only school of its kind in the county. Work taught there includes all the primary and high school grades, as well as home economics for the girls; and manual training for the boys.

WHEN TO DIG SWEET POTATOES

With the biggest and best sweet potato crop Alabama has made in several years now in the ground, county agents and horticulturists of the Agricultural College at Auburn are reminding growers to dig their potatoes well in advance of frost in order to keep them better and to have potatoes of better quality.

It is pointed out that cool nights before frost actually appears damage sweet potatoes if they are still in the ground. If they are dug early and properly stored before cool nights begin the maximum number of sweet potatoes should be saved. County agents are giving information about storage. If frost comes before they are dug, sweet potatoes are severely damaged and difficult to keep without heavy losses.

Since the date of maturing varies in different sections of Alabama no one digging can be named. As a general rule north Alabama growers should dig their sweet potatoes not later than the first half of October, and preferably the last half of September, in case they are mature. However, all should be dug several days before frost.

Chilton County High School Department

Chilton High vs. Cloverdale.

Don't miss it!

What? The first football game of the season.

When? Friday, October 2.

Where? At the high school field.

Why? Because we want you and need the support of the town.

This is Chilton's first football game this year — they will play Cloverdale High School, of Montgomery. Cloverdale has one of the best and fastest teams in Alabama; their forward passing system equals that of any high school in the state. Our high school has good prospects and the boys have been faithful in practice. From observation, Coach Bruner can promise a real treat Friday. Come and help us put it over!

Cheer Leaders Chosen.

Cheer leaders were chosen in chapel Monday for the game between Chilton and Cloverdale high schools. It is unique for a member of the faculty to be one, but to prove "variety is the spice of life" Chilton chose Miss Catherine Donnelly, head of the music department, as one of the three. The others are Lorene Murphy and Robert Alred.

Music Department.

Chilton County High School is just beginning to realize what music will mean to the student body. The Girls' Glee Club has been organized, and have sung in chapel. The boys, not to be outdone, are organizing a Glee Club, and the Junior High students are forming a chorus. A Boys' Quartet has been working every day, and they promise to entertain the student body one day soon. Mr. Johnson of Thorsby will have charge of the orchestra, and a large number of students are interested in forming a school band.

The Library.

We have asked for books before, but again we send the plea. We need books and we need them badly. If you haven't looked through your books for those you can send us, do it now! Call the office of the high school and some member of the faculty will come for them. Please cooperate with us.

County Institute.

There will be no classes held in the high school Thursday or Friday because of the meeting of the County Institute on those days.

A gain in volume of business of over 100% was made by 824 farm cooperative associations from 1913 to 1925, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. In 1913 these 824 associations did a total business of $81,647,000, and in 1925 they did a business of $164,284,000.

COTTON REPORT

An aggregate crop of 1,161,000 bales was forecast from the reports on conditions apparent on September 16, according to a statement issued by F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician, cooperating with Alabama Extension Service, and State Department of Agriculture, after confirmation from the Washington office of the crop-reporting service. The condition of the crop on September 16 was found to be 62% of normal, compared with 61% on September 1, 65% on August 16, and with 64% a year ago. The average yield per acre indicated by the present condition is 149 pounds of lint, which compares with 185 pounds finally picked last year, and 154 pounds picked in 1924. The acreage now growing in Alabama is 3,730,000; that picked last year was 3,504,000, and that picked in 1924 was 3,055,000. The condition of the crop, and the prospective yield per acre as indicated above, were reported by the local sources of information, notwithstanding an increase in weevil activity and in the ravages of the leaf worm. The former were reported quite active in the southern portion of the state, and the latter in the northern half. While those insects had damaged the crop to more or less extent, it was quite apparent that reporters found the probable yield of cotton more promising than 2 weeks ago. The weather during the 2 weeks prior to this report was altogether favorable for cotton maturity and picking. It was being picked rapidly, and gins were running night and day over most of the state.

This report does not reflect any damage which may have accrued from the recent storm, which occurred after reports were received from local sources. Any such damage will be eflected in the next report, which will be issued on the 8th of October.

There were ginned in Alabama prior to September 16 this year 225,948 bales, compared with 510,655 last year, and 223,209 in 1924.—F. W. Gist, Agricultural Statistician.

PATROL SQUADRON TO USE CHEVROLET AUTOMOBILES

Smugglers and undesirable immigrants attempting to cross the border between the United States and Mexico will face a still more efficient barrier with announcement that the government has purchased four Chevrolet touring cars for its immigration patrol squadron.

"Modern law evaders use automobiles, and not horses," said D. P. Gay, Jr., border patrol chief, at Brownsville, Texas, where the United States Immigration Service purchased four Chevrolets.

"With smugglers using cars to transport their contraband and aliens endeavoring to speed by our inspectors in fast automobiles, we decided to speed up our own organization with more cars. We must be equally as well mounted as our adversaries."

Illegal entrance to this country has naturally been sought by the smugglers at the most inaccessible points on the border, remote from well-traveled roads at spots where automobiles are subjected to the most severe tests in deep sand and gullies. Government inspectors found their transportation needs demanded a car of rugged construction, free from necessity of frequent repairs, and with ample cooling facilities to withstand the torrid heat.

The Chevrolets were purchased in open competitive bidding. In the official specifications it was detailed, "the cars are for scouting work, will be required to run on an average of from 1,200 to 1,500 miles per month on both smooth and rough as well as rocky roads, and through mud and sand country of mesquite vegetation."

Supervision of the border is exercised from the headquarters of the immigration service at Brownsville for hundreds of miles along the Rio Grande River.

David Vines, formerly of Clanton, now at Dadeville, has sent his subscription to The Union-Banner.

COTTON PRICES GO LOWER ON REPORT

The drop of more than 1 cent a pound in the price of cotton on September 23 when the semi-monthly Government estimate was made, increases the demand for calmness and cooperation among cotton growers, bankers, and merchants in the opinion of the officials of the Extension Service and Agricultural College at Auburn.

While this estimate showed an increase over the last in the prospective production it is pointed out that the drop in price is out of proportion and a further decline is probable unless the crop is marketed orderly, not dumped upon a market which is already overloaded.

Since the Alabama crop is now estimated at 1,161,000 bales, a decline of 1 cent a pound means a loss of $5,805,000 to the cotton growers of Alabama. During the interim between the last two reports the market had declined approximately 2 cents a pound, which means that the Alabama crop lost in two weeks more than $15,000,000 by a declining market.

Although farmers are not being advised to hold cotton they are strongly urged to market it orderly by cooperation. The Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association is prepared to finance every bale produced in the State, so that it can be placed on the market in an orderly way and bring the maximum price under present conditions.

Agricultural leaders at Auburn say that if bankers and merchants force sales in order to collect debts it is certain that a great many farmers will be unable to meet their obligations, which will result in heavy debts hanging over them in the future.

Cotton Has Gone Down And I Am Going Out

To the People of Chilton County:

I want to say a few words to you about my business in Clanton. I realize first that the only thing that the farmers of this county have got to get money out of—cotton—has gone down to a price that is not going to bring you what you ought to have out of it. Therefore you are not able to puy goods at high prices.

In my store I have a great quantity of goods of many kinds, and owing to the condition of things, I am willing to close it out at just what it cost me. I feel that it is not worth while to try to run my business further under such conditions, and I am going to close out my stock and quit.

Anybody can puy my goods at just what they cost. I will not ask a penny profit. Now if you want to buy goods just as cheap as they can be bought anywhere, or cheaper than most places, come to see me. I am not going to give away my goods, and I am not going to sell at a loss. All I want is my money back on them, and when I get that I will ask no more, and will be willing to close up and quit the game.

Come to see me and let me show you my prices. I know that a look will convince you that this is the best opportunity for you to get your money's worth at prices in line with your cheap cotton.

Sincerely,

W. W. FOX

Reynolds Case In Supreme Court

Supreme Court of Alabama Takes Under Advisement Allegation that Chilton Jurist Faked Voting List.

DEFENSE HOLDS REGISTRARS RESPONSIBLE FOR ERRORS

Effort is Unusual Proceeding in the History of High State Tribunal.

The supreme court of Alabama Monday heard arguments and took under advisement the motion of attorneys representing J. L. Johnson and W. T. Hand, seeking an order from the court requiring the attorney general of Alabama to file impeachment proceedings before the court against Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds, Chilton County. Attorneys Horace Wilkinson and T. C. McClellan of Birmingham represented the two Chilton citizens, and Attorney Oliver D. Street represented Judge Reynolds. Three hours was given to argument of attorneys beginning at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Affidavits had previously been submitted charging that the poll lists of Chilton County were improperly kept by Judge Reynolds and that many names appeared on the list which should not have appeared there, and that many names were not on the list which should have been on it.

No charge was made that any persons whose names were illegally on the printed list had ever voted in an election in the county and the attack of the two citizens of Chilton was directed against the poll list as published in a Chiltlon County newspaper and not against the official records in the office of the probate judge.

Proceedings Unique.

It developed during the hearing that the proceedings are unique in the annals of the court, no proceeding like the present one having been before the court in thirty years or more. Under the law, it was pointed out by Attorney Street, representing Judge Reynolds, there are four methods of instituting impeachment proceedings against a probate judge.

First, the governor can instruct the attorney general to do so. Second, five citizens can initiate proceedings through the attorney general; third, the grand jury can demand impeachment proceedings and the fourth method is the one adopted in this case.

It was argued by the defense that neither the governor nor the attorney general had seen fit to institute proceedings, though such requests had been made to them, nor had the grand jury of Chilton County asked for such proceedings.

It developed that there is in the record in the case affidavits showing that the chief examiner of public accounts of Alabama has frequently sent state examiners into Chilton county to investigate the office of Judge Reynolds and that in every instance his books and records were found in good shape.

Will Vote in November.

It also develops that the voters of Chilton County will go to the polls in November in the elections where democrats and republicans will strive for office and Judge Reynolds, it is pointed out, is the acknowledged leader of the republican party. The effort to have impeachment proceedings instituted against Judge Reynolds comes, it is pointed out, just before the election.

Attorney Street for Judge Reynolds argued to the court that if there are errors in the published voting list the board of registrars of that county is responsible for it. J. L. Johnson, one of the complainants against Judge Reynolds, it developed, is a member of this board.

Complaints against Judge Reynolds, it developed, filed an affidavit with the court some time ago made by Miss Elenor Robinson, to the effect that she saw Judge Reynolds destroy an absentee ballot in 1922. Affidavits to combat this were presented to the court. K. M. Vinson, who was chief clerk for Judge Reynolds at the time said he was present with Miss Robinson on the day mentioned and nothing of the kind occurred. Sheriff J. L. Gore testified he was in the office at the time and that nohing of he kind occurred. The same sort of statement was made by M. D. Foshee, who was chairman of the requblican committee at that time.

John W. Bateman, solicitor of the district, of which Chilton is a part, made an affidavit that Miss Robinson appeared before the grand jury of Chilton County twice but never said anything about Judge Reynolds having burned a ballot.

The court at the conclusion of the argument retired for consultation and no hint was given Monday as to when a decision will be handed down.

Homecoming Day At Clanton M. E. Church

Methodists Will Have Day of Special Services At New Church Next Sunday.

Rev. C. C. Wilkerson, pastor of Clanton Methodist Church, announces a special program at the church next Sunday in observance of Homecoming Day. For this occasion all the former pastors of the church, together with the presiding elders, and all who have ever been memebrs of the church have been served with a speciol request to come and take part in the worship. A number of people who live elsewhere other than Clanton and are members of the church here have been specially requested to return for the day. The new church building recently completed will be in full array for the auspicious occasion. The new pipe organ will furnish the music along with a specially selected choir of splendid singers.

Dr. R. R. Ellison, presiding elder of the Montgomery District, will preach at 11 a. m. At noon lunch will be served in the basement to the guests and all out of town visitors.

Dr. R. J. Mills, pastor of the Perry Street Methodist Church, in Montgomery, will preach at 3 p. m. The night service at 7:30 will be featured by an address from Dr. I. W. Chalker, of Andalusia.

Dr. Ellison, Dr. Mills, and Dr. Chalker are former pastors of the Clanton Methodist Church. Their return here for next Sunday will be greeted with much pleasure by the members of the church as well as the great number of friends of all the denominations who knew and honored these pastors very highly during their periods of service in Clanton.

A special occasion of the Sunday School hour in the morning will be an address by Col. Bibb Graves to the men's Bible class. The mens classes of all the churches of Clanton have been especially invited to attend this meeting at 9:45. It is hoped also that all the men of the town, whether members of any particular class or not, will be present to hear Col. Graves. Dr. Wilkinson has set the minimum for attendance at this meeting at 150 men. He has hopes that the figure will greatly exceed that number.

There will be no preaching at the Baptist Church next Sunday, according to advice from the pastor, Dr. S. J. Ezell. Both the morning and evening services will be given away so that the Baptist people may have an opportunity to visit and worship with the Methodists in their great Homecoming program. Sunday School will be held at the Baptist church Sunday morning at the usual hour.

DR. GRAGG CELEBRATED BIRTHDAY MONDAY NIGHT

Dr. V. J. Gragg had a birthday party at his home in Clanton Monday night which was very joyously participated in by a large circle of his friends. To say that it was a most enjoyable affair is putting it mildly. Dr. Gragg was in the best of spirits, and his good wife, assisted by Mrs. Clifford Mullins, daughter of Dr. Gragg, and some other good ladies, all combined their efforts toward making everybody have a good time. The writer, as a member of the party, feels perfectly safe in saying for everyone present that the hosts succeeded admirably in their efforts to disseminate pleasure among the attendants.

A most sumptuous dinner was served which added much to the enjoyment of the occasion.

On behalf of the group of friends assembled, Dr. C. C. Wilkerson presented to Dr. Gragg a beautful traveling bag, the gift of the guests at the party. The gift was acknowledged by the host in a very touching manner.

After dinner when the smokes had been passed around and everybody had told his best funny story, the group retired to the front porch. The affair was then turned into a combined birthday party, council meeting, and commercial club session. There were present the members of the retiring town council as well as the incoming ones and the new mayor. Some expressions were had from Dr. Gragg and the retiring members of the council concerning the work of the post few years. Mr. Atkinson and members of the new council made short talks about their hopes and plans for the future of Clanton

Several talks were made by different ones concerning the future development and improvement of Clanton in a commercial, educational, and moral way.

At a late hour the party adjourned with unanimous expressions of joy, and the hope thot Dr. Gragg may have many happy returns of the day.

Mr. Broadus Connatser of the University of Alabama was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Fox the past week end.

Chilton Democrats Are Mad With Governor

Declaring that the governor's promise is a scrap of paper and that Chilton County has been forced to retain "an obnoxious official" against the protest of the County Democratic Executive Committee, S. M. Adams, Chairman of the Chilton committee, has addressed a scathing leltter to Governor W. W. Brandon regarding political appointments in Chilton County.

Mr. Adams charged that Governor Brandon, before the election, made the promise that appointments in Chilton, which is strongly Republilcan, must receive the approval of the county executive committee, but that the governor now refuses to make an appointment recommended by the committee.

Governor Brandon, according to information received Saturday, held a conference with a large delegation of Democrats of Chilton County several months ago, and in that conference stated that he would make no appointments in that County which did not meet the approval of the Democratic committee.

The committee endorsed the application of H. B. Roper for the position as local agent of the state tax commission in lieu of H. M. Simpson, who has held the position in the past. The charge was made that Simpson was not a good Democrat.

Governor Brondon took no action regarding the matter during the campaign, but on September 24, he wrote a letter to Chairman Adams in which he said that Roper did not endorse his administration and that he intended to put in the position a person who was friendly to the Brandon administration. He said only three months remains of his term and that the new administration, "for whom Chilton voted," can make the appointments.

In his letter to Chairman Adams Governor Brandon said:

"I am in receipt of your letter with reference to the matter of appointment of Mr. Roper. I am informed that Mr. Roper is not a strong Democrat, that Mr. Roper did not endorse this administration. The tax commission will investigate the matter further.

"I am desirous of appointing a Democrat, but he must be one who is friendly to the administration. The tax board tells me that Mr. Simpson is a Democrat and that his work in Chilton County is the best in years. There is only three months of my term left when the new administration, for whom Chilton voted, will have an opportunity to make the appointments and surely those who are in sympathy with this administration should get the benefit of these few remaining days. You can take the matter up with the state tax commission."—Montgomery Journal.

Dr. J. P. Crumpton and Mr. Briggs Crumpton were visitors to Birmingham Monday evening.

WRECK ON HIGHWAY SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Last Sunday evening about dark, an automobile struck the buggy in which were riding Mr. Monroe Nelson, his wife and baby, as they were driving up the highway near Strasburg. The automobile was also headed north. It is said that another car was coming south meeting the buggy and the other car. The driver of the north bound car said that the lights from the other car blinded him so that he could not see the buggy.

The buggy was almost completely demolished. Nelson was rather seriously hurt. The other two occupants of the buggy were not hurt, and the automobile was not injured either.

NO PREACHING AT BAPTIST CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY

Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Clanton Baptist Church, has requested us to announce that there will be no preaching service at the Baptist Church next Sunday. REPUBLICANS PLAN DRIVING CAMPAIGN

Fight Will Be Corried Into Every County In Alabama Before Election In November.

The Republican party in Alabama is planning to make an active campaign, reaching every county in the state between now and the election in November, according to Oliver D. Street, chairman of the Republican State Campaign Committee.

Speaking campaigns will be waged in more than 15 counties where the greatest Republican strength is located and a campaign of education will be waged in all other counties where the Republicans realize they have no chance of victory. Chief among the local issues to be stressed by these speakers will be the record of the State Highway Department and and the alleged excessive price of school text books. The Republican viewpoint on all national issues will also be brought to the attention of the voters of the state by speakers and through literature.

The money to meet the expenses of the Republican campaign in this state will be raised among Alabama Republicans exclusively, according to Mr. Street, not one cent being received from the Republican National Committee, he asserted. Office holders will not be assessed, he declared, although most of them will contribute.

Among the counties where the Republicans intend to make a speaking campaign and where they claim a chance to make a substantial showing if not to win a victory, are Shelby, Chilton, Winston, Clay, Coosa, Randolph, Cleburne, Cullman, Cherokee, Etowah, DeKalb, Marshall, Blount, Walker, Fayette, Franklin, and Geneva. In discussing the chances of Republican victory in these counties, Mr. Street admitted that one of the purposes of the campaign in some of these counties was to get out a full Republican vote.

In addition to Chairman Street, some of the Republican leaders who will take the stump are Judge L. H. Reynolds, of Clanton; C. B. Kennamer, United States district attorney, of Guntersville; C. J. Robinson, assistant United States attorney, of Asheville; Thos. J. Stevens, of Gadsden; J. O. Middleton, of Clanton; Judge A. P. Longshore, of Columbiana; and Dr. J. E. Hurst, of Etowah County.

"One third of the voters of Alabama are Republicans but many of them do not vote the Republican ticket in the general elections because they have participated in the Democratic primaries and feel under obligations to support the nominees they helped to make," declared Chairman Street. "The greatest hindrance to the Repubican party in this state is the fact that the Republicans in most of the counties feel that they have no cance to win in the general elections and therefore they go into the Democratic primaries so they will have a hand in the selection of the local and county as well as state officials. I think the real strength of the Republican party was shown in 1920 when Judge Reynolds in his race for the United States Senate received about 79,000 votes, against something more than 151,000 for his Democratic opponent.

"While we had hoped that Erskine

A Mr. Kiser of Florence, Ala., was severely burned over his entire right side Tuesday evening about 7 o'clock at Smith & Lowe's store, just south of Clanton.

Mr. and Mrs. Kiser had stopped for gasoline at the gas pump there. Mr. Kiser screwed off the cap of the tank on the back end of his Dodge sedan. CHILTON HIGH LOSES TO CLOVERDALE 21-0

The Chilton Tigers lost their first football game of this season here last Friday afternoon, 21 to 0, to Cloverdale High School, one of the best high school teams in Alabama. Coach Bruner was forced to build a team this year from new material almost entirely, and this green squad held up exceptionally well before their experienced foe, who are playing their second year together, having the same team that they had last year. A year's experience gives a team a great advantage over one the majority of the members of which have never played in a game, and none of whom ever played together before.

It was a nip and tuck affair during the first quarter, with Chilton threatening twice in this quarter. Cloverdale soon found that they must be on their toes all the time or be beaten. They couldn't let up for a minute, and took no chances with substitutes. Cloverdale has a good team, and the experience began to tell in the second quarter, the crimsons scoring one touchdown in each of the last three quarters.

Chilton's line was the only place through which Cloverdale could gain, and not over 8 yards did Cloverdale gain in any one play. Outweighed, on an average, from end to end, the Chilton line fought and held exceptionally well. The ends, protected by L. Sanford and Bruner, allowed but very little gain, and Cloverdale's highly touted passing game was a complete flop. Cloverdale took to the air eight times, only to have three of her passes knocked down, and five intercepted. On one occasion O. Sanford intercepted a Cloverdale pass and ran for 30 yards to Cloverdale's 20-yard line, but couldn't put the oval over the goal line. Nivens showed that he can be depended on to tear up a line, and Culpepper's toe work was nicely done. He got one punt away for 55 yards, another for 50 and one for 40. Gore was by far the outstanding Chilton warrior. He knows how to run the team, and is death on passes. He intercepted four of Cloverdale's passes and knocked down another. While Gore was out of the game for a few minutes, O. (Pete) Sanford showed that he is good at the barker post too. Gore is a fighter to the last minute, and will give somebody trouble when he tries for a place on Alabama's 1928 eleven. He finishes at Chilton this year, will be a "rat" at Alabama next year, and then—the fun will start for him.

Summing up in a few words—Coach Bruner has a squad of eager, quick, gritty, but inexperienced lads. This stumbling block should be removed in a few days, and then we look for an efficient football machine at Chilton High.

Coach Bruner is putting the team through stiff practice this week, preparing for the clash with Bibb County High next Friday at Centreville.

Chilton's "cheer squad," led by Miss Donnelly, Samuel Martin and Miss Lorene ("Pat") Murphy served out pep in great gobs to the "men on the field" during the fray Friday.

FORESTRY COMMISSION EXPLAINS ITS OBJECTS

The Alabama Commission of Forestry has recently published a bookjects of forestry. Beginning with a let outlining the fundamental obbrief sketch of the development of industry in general pursuant to the basic needs of mankind, the publication traces the origin and growth of the forest industries culminating in modern methods of timber production.

Like other important industries timber production carries with it a large number of incidental benefits, both to the forest owner and to the general public. In fact, forestry is unique in the number and variety of contributions it makes to the general welfare. Oftentimes, however, these collateral benefits are mistaken for the fundamental objects, and it seems desirable, therefore, to outline briefly the basic purpose of forestry. This the booklet does in a concise manner.

While the publication is not exactly in the nature of light reading, it is written in readable terms and will prove of interest to those who desire a bird's eye view of the nature and scope of forestry and the status of this essential industry in the economic structure of the commonwealth. Copies of the booklet may be obtained by addressing the State Forester, at Montgomery, Ala.

MONTEVALLO CAMPAIGN IS ON

Montevallo, Ala., Oct. 2.—A campaign for the collection of pledges to the Montevallo Equipment Fund is now on—October 1 to 10. The college authorities are anticipating splendid returns from the campaign.

All those who have not received notices will receive them within a day or two. Prompt remittances will be deeply appreciated by Alabama College, according to Mr. E. H. Wills, Treasurer of the Montevallo Equipment Fund. He states that more than $50,000 are now over due. A pledge in arrears means a promise unfulfilled. Everyone doing his or her bit will clear off the pledges for Chilton County. Let every citizen of the county who made a pledge to the state college for women redeem it before October 10 and swell the contribution to this fund until the notes made by the college may be met. An announcement will be made October 12—Founder's Day—of the success of the campaign.

Chilton County High School Department

A Defeated Victor.

"There's victory in defeat"—this adage was true Friday, when Chilton County High School was defeated by the strong Cloverdale High eleven of Montgomery. If one can take a loss with the same smile with which he acknowledges praise for his prowess in victory, he is the victor, although the defeated. Chilton took her defeat as good-naturedly as she would have rejoiced in victory. But just watch—"We'll get 'em next time!"

Howard, Loyd and Ella, and Mrs. Fred Howard motored to Prattville Sunday to visit a brother florist, Mr. Duke, who makes a specialty of raising japonicas, a species of Japanese pllants. This plant stays green the year round, and blossoms in the winter. Ex-Judge Thomas resides at Prattville and owns hundreds of acres of land that remains in its wild state, where the hunters are not allowed to kill a squirrel. He also has a herd of young deer that he keeps fenced in. Prattville has the largest gin manufacturing plant in the world; they send men to Egypt and all cotton growing countries to install gins.

Miss Fairbank, who acted as librarian of the Institute during the vacation, gives the following report of the circulation of books during the summe : Total circulation, June 4 to September 3, 504; average for each week, a little less than 19; total number of borrowers, 88. Some of the borrowers came six or seven miles. This is a very good showing for the size of the community, the population of Thorsby being scarcely 500. It shows that a high school library will be used outside of term time if the people of the neighborhaad have access to it.

Mr. and Mrs. Bentley have come to live in Thorsby, at least for the school year. They are located in the little cottage across the street from C. C. Peterson. Mr. Bentley has entered the Institute as a pupil.

IT IS TIME WE SHOULD GIVE SOME THOUGHT TO POLITICS

It is only a scant four weeks now until the general election when the people of Chilton County will choose their officials for the next four years. The political pot has been unusually quiet here since the primary election in August, very little political discussions having been made. As the time grows short we would urge the voter to think carefully over the situation and be prepared to vote in a manner that will best take care of the interests and business of our county.

The Democratic and Republican parties each have candidates nominated for all offices. These men will seek the votes of the people upon their qualifications as individuals and upon the principles and records of their political parties.

Taking the whole situation into light and studying it carefully we would say that we can see no reason why the Republican ticket should not be elected in Chilton County. In past years the Republicans have had charge of the official business of our county. We believe they have made a record that entitles the party to the endorsement of the voters again. Our nominees are good men, and the great underlying principles of the Republican party stand out to-day as much or more than ever before as the one political party that is safest and best for our country.

The Democratic candidates are appealing to the Republicans to vote for them on personal grounds and lay aside their party loyalty for this time. To do such a thing would prove a grave error on the part of Republicans. When a Republican votes for a Democrat on personal grounds he is not merely voting for a particular friend or good fellow who happens to be a Democrat. He is also voting for the Democratic party which will control his friend when he gets in office, if he gets in. A Democrat, for campaign purposes, can appeal to Republicans for votes on personal grounds, but if he gets in office he can not conduct his political affairs along personal lines. One of the outstanding evils of the Democratic party in the South, and particularly in Alabama, is the fact that it is constituted as to take away from individual Democrats the privileges they might wish to exercise in conducting their official business to the personal liking of the citizenship of a county.

The Democratic party will see that its public officials measure the toll to their constituents according to the Democratic party standards of political conduct, which is known to be a program that always leaves Republicans out in the cold. If you don't believe it works this way just ask some Chilton County Republicans who voted for some Democratic county officials back about the year 1910.

The people of Chilton County certainly ought to know what it means to have a county dominated by the Democratic party. What is there to be seen in the Democratic party of Alabama that makes it desirable to bring our county under its control? We can not imagine anything more ridden with strife and discord and more hopeless as a government agency than the present Democratic party in Alabama. Hark back a few days to the great melee preceding the recent Democratic primary in Alabama and you can see what is the internal condition of the party that seeks to gain control of our county through the personality of local men who are the Democratic nominees.

If you take the word of the Democrats of Alabama, you will certainly reach the conclusion that it would be almost impossible for anybody to make a greater and more collossal mess out of a state government than the Democrats have done. Then do you want to see our county placed under the political dictation of a party that has brought our state government to the dust of shame and ridicule? That is the question for Republicans of Chilton County to bear in mind. If you vote for Democrats to fill our county offices, you vote for the party that has made this miserable mess of our state government; and that party will have full charge of our county government if its candidates here are elected by the people.

We submit that the Republican administration of Chilton County's business affairs has been sound and such as is worthy of the endorsement of our people again. In our honest opinion it would be very unwise to think of swapping off the Republican party for a party like the Democratic party has proven to be in Alabama.

This question is up to the people, and it will have to be decided by you on November 2. We urge you to study the matter very carefully. The government of your county is your business. The officers of the county are your officers. You shall choose those whom you believe to be the best for your interests and the interests of your county.

LITTLE PEN-O-GRAMS

OUT ON THE RURAL ROUTES

Postmaster General New paid a very pretty compliment recently to the rural letters carriers phen he addressed the convention of the National Letter Carriers' Association.

"The rural free delivery postal service," he said, "is one of the indispensable features of American social and economic life.

"We all know, of course, of late years the radio has grown as a link between farm and city, but radio goes one way mostly, and the letter carrier still takes the farmers' message to his friends and the outside world.

"Then again, radio fails to bring that warm, personal touch that the rural carrier conveys. Most of these men are an accomodating and kindly lot, and are couriers for local news along their routes. In the little world of rural folk, the carrier is the cord of common knowledge. Day after day, in all sorts of weather, he plays a vital part in rural community life.

SOME THOUGHTS ON THE ADVANTAGES OF READING

At this time the faculty of the Chilton County High School is putting forth an effort to bring the school library up to a standard in keeping with the needs of the school. People are being asked to give good books to the library, and a campaign of education upon the advantages and profias of reading is being conducted.

We have gathered some thoughts on reading which we publish herewith in the hope that they may be stimulating to our readers and prove helpful to the efforts for a library at our high school.

One great educational authority has said: "One who learns to use his books in early life grows up with an increasing power for effective usefulness. Wear threadbare clothes and patched shoes if necessary, but do not pinch or economize on books. If you can not give your children an academic education, you can place within their reach a few good books which will lift them above their surroundings into respectability and honor."

It takes resolution and determination to set aside things pleasant and agreeable today for the things that will prove best for us in the end. This is very true of our reading. School students should be taught to devote their spare moments in reading good books rather than waste all their time in pursuit of the empty pleasures of which the world is so full. Herein lies the great value of a good library at our schools, for how can our children read unless we provide for them something to read?

The Union-Banner hopes that the people of Clanton will give the high school the hep which it deserves in its efforts to establish a suitable library.

Thomas Jefferson Dorminey, the sage of Stumps Hills, was shedding the light of his presence on the streets of Clanton Monday. He was here to attend the meeting of Commissioners Court. Mr. Dorminey will be greatly missed here when his regular visits shall cease next January.

Crown Ethyl Gasoline Is Here

It Knocks Out That "Knock"

You'll prove it the instant you fill your tank with Crown Ethyl Gasoline and step on the accelerator. No "knocking" in pick-up or when you take the steepest hill on high. Instead—new life to a sluggish motor. More power and sweeter running. Less gear-shifting. And complete elimination of the harmful effects of carbon!

Only 3c a Gallon More

Crown Ethyl Gasoline not only stops "knocking"; it turns the carbon that forms with every mile—heretofore the cause of "knocking" and power loss—into an agency of service. In fact, Crown Ethyl works best in a car full of carbon. These are facts—not claims. Crown Ethyl Gasoline was developed in the great Research Laboratories of General Motors. Used by the U. S. Navy for aircraft. Used by the winners of the Indianapolis racing classic for the last four years.

Crown Ethyl Gasoline has no substitute. No other premium fuel is comparable. Yet it costs only 3 cents a gallon more—and think what you save in carbon removal alone!

Standard Oil Company

Incorporated in Kentucky

NOTICE: Dilution of Crown Ethyl Gasoline with other fuels decreases its effectiveness. To secure best results have your automobile tank as near empty as possible before filling the first time with Crown Ethyl Gasoline, then use Crown Ethyl Gasoline exclusively. Remember that no motor fuel will "grind valves." While Crown Ethyl Gasoline makes carbon an agency of service, you must keep your valves in good condition.

V. LOWERY ACCEPTS FRIENDSHIP PASTORATE

tev. W. P. Lowery has accepted pastorate of the Friendship Bap- church for the coming year, he ing made the announcement the t of this week.

tev. Lowery was unanimously re- ted to the pastorate of the church w weeks ago. Rev. Lowery serv- as pastor of this church the past r, and he was also pastor there for some two or three years only a few years ago. The people of Frendship are mighty well pleased with Bro. Lowery, and they feel fortunate in being able to retain his services as pastor of the church.

Friendship church has put on new life since the building was rebuilt after being blown in the storm last June. The Sunday school is going fine. The attendance is better than heretofore, and the interest seems to be better and more general among the people of the community than ever before.

Rev. J. Starling Hand preached a fine sermon here last Sunday night to an attentive audience.

TWO MEN ARRESTED BY CITY OFFICERS SUNDAY

Two men from Birmingham came to Clanton last Sunday to have a big time, and they had it. It was such a big time that when they wound it up they were behind the bars in '86 with Uncle Jim Curlee holding the keys.

The visitors were S. E. Boyd and J. H. Sanders. They appeared to be rather intoxicated, and were driving a big new Buick around the streets of Clanton, and were otherwise loud and boisterous, with a mixture of profanity here and there.

Policeman Curlee, assisted by Rev. W. S. Cox, took charge of the men and their car and landed them in jail. The men have succeeded in getting out by the payment of a total fine of $116 for the two. Their car is still in possession of the city. When the officers arrested them they had about a pint of whiskey in the car.

During 1926 Alabama farmers had 141,000 acres in oats, 600,00 in hay, 3,000,000 in corn, and 4,000,000 in cotton.

Major Lamar Jeffers was a visitor here Tuesday.

LETTER TO REVENUE BOARD ABOUT FERRIES OPERATION

"Mr. J. F. McGraw, President Shelby County Board of Revenue:

We have read and carefully considered your letter of September 22 to Mr. W. H. Pope in which you say 'The Board of Revenue has very carefully considered the proposition in regard to the change in method of operating ferries in this county,' and say there will be a change in this body's personnel very soon, and the present members do not think it advisable to assume this responsibility."

Until we are otherwise informed we must presume that your letter expresses the opinion and will of all members of the Board. If so, we wish to ask a few questions for information.

First—What change in personnel of the voting members of the Board of Revenue shall we expect? As the two members whose term expires have been nominated to succeed themselves we do not see that there will be any change in the personnel of the voting members. Unless your body and the two members referred to contemplate their defeat in the November election, there should be no change in the voting members of the Board.

We think it fair to presume that all members of the Board of Revenue, after several years of public service have become accustomed to looking at these matters in interest of the general public. With this presumption in favor of your body, we want to ask—Wherein can the interest of the public be better taken care of by new members in February than by old and experienced members in October? Is there anything that new members at later date can do better for the public interest than in this matter than can be done now by your body as it is constituted? In case there should be a tie vote, is there any reason why it could not be untied as wisely and as safely for the public interest by the incumbent president now as by his successor four months later? In thinking over this matter we wish you to consider the fact that at no cost to the County your body can save the traveling public two thousand dollars a month that your delay is costing them in ferriage service.

May we ask further—Did not the circuit solicitor at the request of your body look up the law and report to you that you have the authority and that it is your official duty to control and operate the ferries in interest of the public? More than that—Is not your body the duly constituted authority to which we can go in interest of the public for redress in these matters? When your body fails us our only recourse is to the conscience and judgment of the general public, and you are forcing us to go there. You say "The members do not think it advisable to assume this responsibility." We ask—Did not they assume this responsibility when they accepted the office? The law is in the Code and very plain. Surely the present members are aware of the fact that in other counties the Boards of Revenue are doing this identical thing and many of them running ferries without charges to residents of their counties. We have cited your body previously to Marshall and Etowah Counties, and now wish to refer you to news item of last Sunday that Commissioners Court of Pickens County made the ferry free across the Tombigbee River.

We are not asking that ferries be run free to public at county expense. We merely ask that ferries be run by best and cheapest bidders so that interest of the public may be protected. And your body has refused to accept a proposition that would save the public eighty cents of the present ferriage dollar.

You will remember that we brought this matter before your body in June and that it has twice been postponed before now. If you are putting it off for change in personnel of the Board, what assurance have you that there will be any change? If there should be a change in membership of your body, by what virtue does this glaring need of public redress become a duty of the new Board more than it now is of your body?

As your body has the authority and as it is their duty under the law to take care of the public interest with ferries as with roads and bridges so as to give the best service possible for the least cost to the public, and as your body has heretofore not attended to these matters, we wish to say that we do not think that four years neglect of duty in this respect justifies five months more delay and that with no assurance that the matter will then be attended to. During this delay, the public is paying two thousand dollars too much for ferriage services.

Respectfully submitted,
WILSONVILLE EXCHANGE CLUB.

NOTES OF TRAVEL

(By S. E. NORTON)

A few days ago it was our privilege to pay another visit to the New Jersey State Fish Hatchery at Hacketts-town. Having previously arranged that somebody would be there to give us information regarding the processes of artificial fish culture we are now prepared to give readers of The Union-Banner a more intelligent description of this interesting industry than we could do after our first visit.

The very name of the institution implies that fish are hatched; when hatching is mentioned one naturally thinks of eggs; thats right—fish are hatched from fish eggs. These eggs are produced by the female of the species; they have no shells, but are geletinous globules of a light color, varying in size according to species from a small pin head to a pea, and usually discharged from the fish enmeshed in a web-like substance that spreads out in the water. In this stage they are fertilized by the male as he swims back and forth over the mass. Their fecundity is enormous, the eggs of a single fish in one season number from 1,000 to 100,000 according to age and species of the fish.

Were it not for the fact that both the eggs and the young fish become prey of fish and water fowls for food, the waters of the world in time would become overstocked with them. Added to the causes of destruction is the sporting instinct and greed of man. For many years, until recently, men could fish when and where they pleased, but now most of the states have a closed season during spawning time and also a fine for keeping fish caught that are less than a specified length. Many of the streams in New England once famous for the fishing they afforded have been made uninhabitable for fish by using them as sewers to carry off the refuse and poison acids from mills and factories along their banks.

The eggs used in this hatchery are chiefly produced by their own fish; further supplies come from commercial hatcheries in California, Pennsylvania, and Massachusetts, suitable for hatching. The principal species of fish grown at this hatchery are brook, brown and rainbow trout, to stock New Jersey streams, and yellow perch, blue gill sunfish, small and large mouth bass, for the lakes.

All the species of trout are hatched here in the same manner, in 1-story buildings, where there is not much light. Long wooden trough about 18 inches square, with open tops are provided; each trough is set slightly inclined from end to end and at the lower end has a gate covered with a fine wire mesh. The though is kept nearly full of clear running water; shallow metal trays, having oblong wire mesh bottom are set end to end on ledges inside the trough just low enough to immerse the trays about two inches in the running water. The eggs, about a quart to each tray, are then put in and covered with burlap, to exclude light but give air. There they lie for five or six weeks, and when the fish begin to hatch they drop through the mesh bottom into the water, underneath where they are held in the trough by the mesh gate at the end. The fish, according to species, are for one-half to one inch long; all are able to swim at once, but they need no food for six weeks, and then they are fed lightly beef liver ground fine. The spawn (young fish) are then let into the second trough, and so on, until they are big enough to be let out into one of the ponds outside the building. This is the process followed with one batch of eggs and the product from them. However there are many such lines of troughs operating at the same time. As soon as the eggs in the first trough of each line are hatched, the water is stopped, the trough emptied and cleaned, then filled with water and a new batch of eggs. This process continues during the hatching season which lasts about four months, beginning with November, made possible by the wide area of sources of supply of eggs in their season from other localities than this hatchery.

The ponds mentioned above are practically trougs of a larger size made of concrete, their size varying according to the size of the fish they are intended to barbor. All of them are supplied with running water, pure and clear. These ponds cover an area of 13 acres, and are all used to herd the output of the artificial hatchery. There are 110 acres altogether in use for the hatchery purposes, and more will be added soon.

Hatching of yellow perch is an entirely different proposition, even more artificial than trout hatching in the method employed. Something more than 800 six-quart glass jars are arranged in rows on shelves and called batteries. The top of each jar has an inlet tube and an outlet tube; the inlet discharges the water in the bottom of the jar.

About a quart of perch eggs is placed on each jar and water kept constantly flowing through the mass. When hatching begins the spawn are carried out with the flow through the outlelt tube and drop into a lalrge tank. They are so small that the wire mesh gate at the tank outlelt must be exceedingly fine to prevent escape of the fish. At this stage they very much resemble "wigglelrs" found in standing water, which produce mosquitoes. Their treatment after hatching is very much the same as that of the trout. They are kept in ponds according to age or size. It is a well known fact that fish are cannibals, the bigger eat the smaller, hence those desired for stocking waters of the State must be protected from larger fish until they are sufficiently grown to take care of themselves. Whtn big enough to catch their own food, myriads of water bugs, called Daphne, are produced from pilelsl of hore manure thrown in shallow water, which serve as breeding places. These are the bugs one sees darting about on the surface of quiet pools in lakes and streams. For food of larger fish, shiners, gold fish, and other species that never grow lalrge enough or for other reasons are not desirable for table use, are grown.

At four years of age, brook trout attain a length of about 12 inches; brown trout, 16 to 20 inches; and rainbow trout, 20 to 24 inches. At this age they become mature and many of them are kept especially for "breeders." It is a very interesting experience to stand on the edge of these ponds and watch these beautiful fish as they cavort in the water.

Of perch, the annual output of this plant is about 80,000,000, and of the other varieties, about as many more. The sunfish and bass are not hatched in houses, but are grown naturally in small lakes on the plant. The fish are not sold but at proper times and seasons they are taken by motor truck carrying large tanks filled with the fish, which are liberated in streams or lakes all over the State, thus keeping them stocked with the most desirable food fish.

A license fee of $1.65 must be paid by any citizen to catch them. For people from outside the State the fee is much larger.

SHADY GROVE POUNDS THEIR PASTOR

Last Sunday was a good day at Shady Grove. A large crowd gathered for Sunday school and preaching. I noticed as the people came in they stacked packages in the altar. I did not understand the meaning of this until after the service, when Bro. Arcue Baker announced: "We are giving our pastor a free will offering." The offering which the packages contained were: Meat, sugar, canned fruits of all kinds, preserves, jellies, Irish potatoes, soap, washing powder, salt, soda matches, pears, candy, cake, and a beautiful tie.

After the congregation was dismissed, I began loading my car. I loaded until I could hardly find space for more and returned home in the afternoon feeling fine. As I drove up to the dining room my wife asked "What does this mean?" I told her I wanted to unload my car.

We are indeed grateful for these good friends who remembered us in such a nice way. May God bless each of the givers.—G. B. Golden.

ROBERTSDALE — BALDWIN CO.

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to tell our friends in dear old Chilton about the storm that swept this County. It lasted Sunday night and most all day Monday. No one was hurt, but much damage was done to crops and buildings. Many homes were unroofed, barns blown down, windmills torn to pieces, trees uprooted, and stock killed.

About 12:30 Monday morning Mr. Dave Killingsworth was awakened by some of his neighbors telling him to come with them to a storm pit. He told them he was sleepy and did not want to go, but they insisted and he went. He said he didn't sleep any, and didn't say whether he prayed or not.

By 3 p. m., everybody was out to see what damage had been done. Old Uncle Jim DuBose was found hovered up in one corner of his porch, still praying. He was wet and cold, and had been there all night and all day. He said about 12 o'clock he was like the Dear Savior as He hung on the cross—prayed God to let the storm pass if possible, and dear reader, it was passing—at the rate of about 107 miles per hour. He surely meant for it to slow down.

Well, after all, it was a day spent in prayer. If everyone in Baldwin County would live as they did on September 20, 1926, we would have a fine place to live in.—J. W. Lowery.

CLECKLER-BLACKMON

Miss Vera Cleckler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Cleckler, was married Sunday, September 26, to Mr. Tosh Blackmon, both of whom live on Clanton Route No. 4. The event created much interest because of the popularity of the young couple in and around Thorsby. The bride's costume was of light blue crepe-de-chine, with a sash of white satin ribbon tied at the side, with hat to match. The Cleckler home was decorated with pot flowers and ferns to receive the bride and groom after they were married at the home of Rev. Ellison. Misses Anna Blackmon, Lavelle Turner, and Era Cleckler of Clanton Route 4, and Mr. Archie Cleckler of Birmingham accompanied them. W. R. K. STANFORD TELLS HOW THE FARMER CAN BE SAVED

Editor Union-Banner:

I have just read the article in The Union-Banner, "What Can The Farmer Do To Be Saved?" These three words will cover all—education, organization, and co-operation.

The quickest way would be for the cotton growers to get togethtr at once in the next 30 days, and sign a binding agreement, under oath, to cut the acreage down to one-half for 1927, and two-thirds in 1928. If they would do this it would send this 1926 crop up to 20 cents in 30 days.

Ask the Governor of each cotton growing state to issue a proclamation to the farmers and ask them to meet at their court house October 23 or 30, to sign up. Yours for co-operation,—W. R. K. Stanford.

CARE IN HARVESTING COTTON IS URGED

South Alabama farmers, who have already lost millions from the tropical storm of September 20, are in danger of further heavy losses unless proper care is taken in gathering the remainder of the crop, according to a very emphatic statement issued by the state commissioner of agriculture and industries, James M. Moore, last Tuesday.

Mr. Moore further declared that unless every precaution was taken, to care for the remainder of the ungathered crop, many a farmer's wife and children would feel the pinch of distress caused by any error in handling cotton. In his warning, he said:

"Cotton is very low, also seed, and seems to be going lower. Great care must be exercised in gathering the ragged remnants, because any good cotton remaining will be damaged further and cause loss.

"Damage to the crop from now on will be of two kinds—damage to seed through sprouting, and damage to lint through staining or deteriorating.

"Sprouted seed are rotten and are worthless for feed, commercial fertilizers, oil, or any purpose except applying to the soil. Sprouting destroys the oil, the decay destroys the use for fertilizer, and feeding is out of the question. A great loss always comes from sprouted seed.

"Cotton should not be gathered or ginned when wet, because gin cut lint always sells at a loss and the seed will heat and spoil.

"Stained, water soaked, sprouted cotton which has been beaten out, should be picked separately, ginned separately, baled separately, and the seed kept by itself. This is necessary so that the seed may be dried for home use, if desired, and the lint receve its proper grade.

"If stained cotton is mixed with unstained cotton, the price is based on the damaged part and the farmers lose.

"If sprouted and unsprouted seed are mixed, the price is made on the basis of the lower grade, or the seed that are sprouted. The farmer loses on his good seed."

I want to tell my friends that I am now with Briggs Crumpton at Chilton Motor Co. Come to see me when you need any work done on your car.—Fred Calloway.

The Unuttered Wish

A North Carolina mountain woman fell ill, and for the first time in his life her husband had to work. It devolved upon him to nurse the invalid, look after a large family of tow-headed children, milk the cow, feed the pig, cook the meals and tend a straggly acre of corn.

After ten days of these frightful labors he staggered down to the general store at the forks of the road and fell at the doorway in an exhausted heap.

The storekeeper came out and said: "Hello, Anse, how's yore wife?"

"She ain't no better," moaned the husband. "I paid out a whole four bits fer a bottle of bitters for her, but it seems like hit don't do her no good I'm plumb wore out!"

He paused a moment and sighed deeply.

"Some times," he said, "I git to wishin' the old woman would git well—or somethin'!"

Record Crossing Made With Ford

Baker Crosses Continent In Ford Car In Fastest Time

Slashing a generous slice off three coveted transcontinental motor records in one sweeping drive, "Cannon Ball" Baker, of Indianapolis, arrived in Los Angeles, Calif., driving his own privately-owned Ford roadster, sealed in high gear, just five days, two hours, 13 minutes after leaving New York City. He was officially timed at start and finish by Western Union officials. This cuts 11 days, 5¾ hours off the old high gear transcontinental record, which had been made by a six-cylinder car selling for three times as much as the Ford. It is also two days, 13¾ hours faster than the fastest time ever made before by any kind of car with one man driving the entire distance from coast to coast without relay of drivers. The previous one man speed record over this course had been made by Baker in 1920, in a $2,000 car, and had never been equalled until he made this flight at the wheel of a lowly flivver.

Baker's new record with the Ford is also 16 hours faster than the best time ever made across the continent on a motorcycle. In other words, this was the fastest trip from ocean to ocean that has ever been made by any sort of a road vehicle, with one man doing all the driving without relief.

The car used was a standard type of Ford roadster that was not equipped with overhead valves nor special cams nor counterbalanced crankshaft. It was Baker's seventy-fourth motor trip across the American continent.

How to stop BOILS!

There's only one way to stop boils. Stop the cause of boils! That's common sense—isn't it? All right. Boils thrive because the blood gets so weak in healthy, red cells that it can't throw off the impurities that get into the body. There's not enough rich, red blood to purify the system.

Now—S. S. S. builds back the blood to fighting strength. S. S. S. builds red-blood-cells — builds them by the millions! Boils dry up!

S. S. S. is the thing. Impurities that cause boils and other skin eruptions can't stand up against the rich, healthy, red blood that S. S. S. builds. That's all there is to it.

Stop boils with S. S. S. It's the way. Get it at any druggist. The larger bottle is more economical.

Gives Advice to Expectant Mothers

"I ADVISE all expectant mothers to use Mother's Friend," writes Mrs. Wesley Miller, Hudson, Mich. "I have had nine children. With my first three I suffered for 24 hours. Beginning with the fourth I used Mother's Friend and was sick only 15 minutes. Since then I have had five and was only sick about 10 minutes with each."

Mother's Friend is the formula of an eminent physician and has been a positive blessing to thousands of expectant mothers for over three generations. Used daily, externally, it soothes the nerves and muscles as month follows month. Finally it makes childbirth a joy!

The mothers who praise Mother's Friend the most are those who did not use it with their first baby but through its use with the second, were able to realize its almost unbelievable results.

Mother! Insist on Mother's Friend—the same as used by our mothers and grandmothers—don't wait—start using tonight—and meanwhile write Bradfield Regulator Co., Dept. 34, Atlanta, Ga., for free valuable booklet "Motherhood and the Coming Baby" (sent in plain envelope). It tells how Mother's Friend can help you during expectancy and at childbirth. This booklet also tells you many other things you want to know. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all druggists—everywhere.

REPUBLICANS PLAN DRIVING CAMPAIGN

Ramsay would accept the nomination this year for the United States Senate and that Col. Dallas B. Smith would be able to make the race for governor, we are proud of our candidates for the highest offices. With Judge E. H. Dryer, of Birmingham, for the senate; J. A. Bingham, of Talladega, for governor; and Sumter Cogswell, of Pell City, for lieutenant governor, we have men well qualified for the offices they seek."

Birmingham, Ala., Sept 27, 1926.

Dear Sir:

No State campaign can be a success unless the local organizations and leaders make a fight in their respective counties. The work they can do can not be done by anyone else.

A State Campaign Committee, without large funds and an army of speakers, (neither of which we have), can do little more than plan, counsel, advise, and direct. It must depend at last on efficient local help.

Whether you have a county ticket or not, will not you and your county organization go to work to get out every Republican vote? A vote for our State ticket in a hopelessly Democratic county counts as much as a vote in a Republican county. There ore thousands of Republican voters in Democratic counties who do not vote because they feel that it is useless. It is not useless, but is very helpful. It swells the total for the entire State and thus encourages Republicans everywhere.

Get your leaders and your County Committee together at least once between now and the election and go to work in the best way local conditions require to get out every vote.

Yours very truly,
OLIVER D. STREET,
Chairman Campaign Committee.

A Word With the Old Folks

Elderly People Are Learning Importance of Good Elimination.

IN the later years of life there is apt to be a slowing up of the bodily functions. Good elimination, however, is just as essential to the old as to the young. Many old folks have learned the value of Doan's Pills when a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys is required. Scanty or burning passages of kidney secretions are often signs of improper kidney function. In most every community are scores of users and endorsers who acclaim the merit of Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

"15 Eggs to the Dozen!"

That's the way one man who feeds his hens Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash expresses his increased production. "I gather 15 eggs for every dozen that I got before I used Ful-O-Pep," he says.

You can increase the number of eggs you are getting every day, too. Right now is the time to do it—extra eggs mean real extra cash profit at this time of year.

This is the famous feed that contains Cod Liver Meal to make the other ingredients give additional value. Every mouthful gives the hens all feed—no waste—and young and old layers keep right on producing. Eggs are larger, better-flavored, and uniform in size with strong shells. And next Spring you'll have wonderful hatching eggs.

Radcliffe Chautauqua Here October 20-21-22

From the Radcliffe Chautauqua headquarters in Washington, D. C., comes word that the 1926 Chautauqua programs are the best that have been organized in the history of the bureau. Special care has been exercised in the selection of the entertainment companies and the speakers, and the line-up of talent for our circuit is a very attractive one.

None but experienced performers are allowed to appear on Radcliffe programs, and the staff of lecturers comprise some of the most eloquent men engaged in this kind of work. Each year a correlated series of discussions is given, in addition to the entertainment numbers, and by the use of such a plan, certain definite purposes can be accomplished. The topics are selected in Washington only after the most careful consideration, and the entire series is recommended to each man, woman and child in our community as being worth far more than the small cost.

The following entertainment organizations and speakers have been assigned to our circuit:

First day—The Alexander Novelty Four; Dr. W. T. S. Culp, lecturer.

Second day—The Slout-Kempton Players; Dr. Robert M. Sand, lecturer.

Third day—The Plumstead-Lucas Entertainers; Dr. Albert Marion Hyde, lecturer.

Topics to be discussed by this group are as follows:

First Afternoon — "Untilled Corners."

First Night—"The Thinker."

Second Afternoon—"Prodigal America."

Second Night—"The Craftsman."

Third Afternoon—"The Fireside."

Third Night—"The Dreamer."

The price of this excellent program is within the reach of every one. The adult season tickets are only $2.00 each, and the Junior season tickets are but $1.00 each. Divide these figures by twelve, and you will see that the cost of each event is but a few cents. Don't miss a single bit of this splendid program, and be on hand early to help the Committee make the whole affair the most successful and enjoyable community event of the year.

Season tickets will be sold to all school teachers and school students for $1.00. It doesn't matter what school in the county you attend.

MR. AND MRS. BIBB GRAVES VISITORS HERE SUNDAY

Col. Bibb Graves, Democratic nominee for Governor of Alabama, and his charming wife, were visitors to Clanton last Sunday. The occasion which brought these distinguished visitors to our city was the homecoming day at Clanton Methodist Church. Col. Graves spoke to the Men's Bible Class Sunday morning. Further significance is seen in their visit by the fact that they have some very warm personal friends here.

Ready to serve you—with only the latest and best Victor and Columbia Records. Hear them played any time. Jesse French & Sons, at "Barney's" on the Birmingham highway.

JESSE FRENCH & SONS IN CLANTON AGAIN

We learn through Mr. G. W. Moore, the well known representative of Jesse French & Sons Piano Co., of Montgomery, that he has arranged to occupy a space in the new store building on the highway, with "Barney's" soda stand. The demand for Jesse French products in the section around Clanton has been so great that it is but natural for this well established music house to have a display of fine pianos, player-pianos, genuine Victrolas and new Columbia phonographs here. We are pleased to welcome this move on the part of the Jesse French & Sons Co., and to know that Mr. Moore, who managed the business located in the Exchange Hotel building opposite the local post office last year, will again serve the local trade. Mr. Moore states he will have a fine stock and large supply of the very latest and best Victor and Columbia phonograph records. Also, that many pleasant surprises await local music lovers when they call on him. We understand this opening will take place about the 15th, or Friday of this week. Mr. Moore stated that he especially was anxious for all former customers and friends to visit them, as well as the public at large. For general information, Mr. Moore desires the public to know that the Jesse French & Sons Piano Company have no connection whatever with any other music dealer locally, and their product is sold only by them direct to the customers around Clanton by himself and direct from the Montgomery store. It is interesting to know that Mr. Jesse French, Sr., who is still active at the factory in Newcastle, Ind., recently celebrated his 83rd birthday, and the 51st anniversary of his piano business.

GOOD BUSINESS DONE ON OPENING DAY

Mr. W. T. Baker of the W. T. Baker Dry Goods Co., just opening a nice new store in Clanton, says his business on the opening day last Saturday was even better than he expected.

Visitors to the new store pronounced it one of the neatest and best arranged places in Clanton. A fine line of merchandise is being displayed in the most tasteful manner.

Mr. Baker impresses us as a live wire, and one who knows the store business. We predict that his success here will be certain.

MR. G. E. SUMMERS DEAD

We are sorry to hear of the death of Mr. G. E. Summers of Jemison. For months he had been suffering with high blood pressure, but many people thought he was improving.

Mr. Summers was a man who held the esteem and confidence of all who knew him. He served the town of Jemison as Mayor until recently when he declined the place longer, on account of bad health. He was a steward in the Methodist church, and a Mason. The latter order buried him at Isabella Wednesday afternoon with Masonic honors.

We extend to the family our heartfelt sympathy. "By their fruits ye shall know them." Your loss is Heaven's gain.

Often a little shrubbery and some flower seeds make a homely place into a home-like place—and there's a big difference.

Former Jemison Girl Commits Suicide

Said to have Killed Herself Because Her Family Objected to Marriage.

Funeral services for Susie Larene, 16-year-old Birmingham girl who shot herself to death at noon Friday, were held in Jemison Saturday afternoon, where the body was sent Saturday by Ridout.

While her sister, Mrs. Margaret Robinson, and her sweetheart, Joseph Garcia, waited for her in the hall of her home, 1118 19th Street, South, Miss Larene, saying she was going for her hat, went to her sister's room, secured a pistol, and locking herself in the bathroom, shot herself through the heart.

Garcia battered down the door of the room to find his fiancee lying in a widening pool of her own blood. He seized the gun, and had it not been for the sister of the dead girl, would have turned the pistol on himself.

According to Miss Larene's sister, Garcia and Susie were to have been married this week, but a letter received Thursday from the girl's mother, objected to the marriage on the grounds of her youth.

Her mother's objection disappointed Miss Larene greatly when she first heard it, but she seemed to become reconciled. The fact that she knew her mother had objected to her marriage is regarded by relatives as the motive for the suicide.

Garcia, who lived in the same house was badly broken up by the shock, and Friday afternoon was unable to talk about the tragedy. Garcia is a Catholic.

She is survived by her sister, Mrs. Robinson; one brothed, Nelson Larene; two sisters, Flora and Ruby; and her mother, Mrs. Mary Larene, of Jemison.

Miss Larene was cashier in Patterson's cigar store at Second Avenue and 20th Street.

Coroner J. D. Russum held his inquest Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Latham have returned from Florida and are now living at the M. D. Foshee place on Eighth Street and Fifth Avenue.

You are welcome—lovers of good music are invited to see and hear our instruments on local display in the building with "Barney's on the Birmingham highway. Jesse French & Sons Piano Co.

NOW DRIVE THE CAR!

Only those who have driven a Dodge Brothers Special Sedan—or any Dodge Brothers car BUILT RECENTLY—can fully appreciate all that Dodge Brothers have accomplished during the past few months.

So swiftly has improvement followed improvement, that today the car, to all intents and purposes, is a different and incomparably finer vehicle.

The announcement of smart new body lines and attractive color combinations first attracted general favor. But since then, improvements even more fundamental have been accomplished mechanically.

Drive the car NOW! Observe its impressive new silence, smoothness and elasticity of performance, and you will then begin to realize just how vital and varied these and other later improvements actually are.

AUBURN RADIO STATION NOW OPERATING DAILY

Auburn, Ala., Oct. 13.—By enlarging its service and thereby adding other features to its daily broadcasting, Radio Station WAPI, at Auburn, is broadcasting programs of interest to all the people of Alabama. Although the station is operated by the agricultural extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, its programs are not confined to agriculture and home economics, but includes music, athletics, general lectures, and other subjects, making them of as much interest to people in the towns as to people on the farm.

Beginning early in October, Station WAPI is now broadcasting two programs daily six days each week. The first program each day starts at 12:30 p. m., and continues about 30 minutes and the second starts at 8 p. m., and continues for an hour or more. No Sunday program has been arranged although Sunday programs are being considered by the management.

A regular feature of each noon and night program is that of broadcasting weather forecasts and cotton market reports. The weather forecasts are received from the Government weather station at Montgomery, and the cotton market comes from the Opelika cotton exchange. The weather forecast will be broadcast thruout the season, while the cotton markets will probably be discontinued during the period when there is little interest in cotton prices. Music is a regular feature of each program. Both vocal and instrumental music is included.

Until recently Station WAPI operated on a wavelength of 248 meters, but a new wavelength of 461 meters is now being used. Numerous reports indicate that reception is excellent. While broadcasting a world series game, long distance telephone calls and telegrams came at the rate of more than one every two minutes, and each call and telegram represented from one family to 800 people.

Lamar Jeffers Is Visitor.

Lamar Jeffers, Representative at Washington of this Congressional District, was a visitor Tuesday morning during Chapel. Mr. Jeffers gave an interesting and helpful speech to the student body, taking as his subject, "Our Government." He outlined the work of the members of Congress, and impressed upon his audience the necessity of careful voting when sending men to represent them. Mr. Jeffers is a forceful speaker, and his talk was interesting as well as beneficial.

The Library Drive.

The library drive is still on. We want to raise library facilities to Southern Association standards before we quit. New books are continually coming in now, and are being catalogued and placed on the shelves as rapidly as possible. Students appreciate the effort being made to supply the library with new and up-to-date material. They are making good use of the books. Last week end, over 100 volumes were drawn for reading; not less than 75 volumes were in use each night last week. The library will have 20 to 30 well-selected magazines.

New Maps.

The school now has $100 worth of new maps. This meets the State Accreditment Standards, but we lack about $125 worth to meet Southern Association Standards.

Music.

Music work is progressing nicely. Glee Cubs and Quartets are practicing. Our "Million Dollar Band" is beginning to take form, and we hope the boys will put this over.

BETHSALEM

Our singing society met last Sunday and did some good singing, altho we had to use new books. We hope to be able to do better by next month. Several visitors were present, and we thank them very much for their presence and help. Directors were Clem Billingsley, J. M Taylor, Edward Taylor, Huff Burkhalter, R. M. Brigance, Horace Williams, Clarence Billingsley, Elizabeth Griffin, Lela Taylor; organists were Misses Susie Huett, Lela Taylor, and R. M. Brigance.

Visitors, don't forget to come to Bethsalem every Second Sunday afternoon—you are always welcome.—Secretary.

SOCIETY

Mrs. Grady Broadhead, Editor.

Thompson-White.

A pretty nuptial event of Saturday was that of Miss Evelyn Claudia White to Jasper Fritz Thompson of Atlanta, which was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude B. White, in Norwood. The ring ceremony was performed by Rev. W. E. Morris at 3 o'clock in the afternoon before an altar of palms and Southern smilax interspersed with white tapers burning in candelabra. Miss Marjorie Scruggs gave a program of nuptial music. Miss Kathryn White served as her sister's maid of honor. She wore a frock of pastel green chiffon satin with trimmings of maline and rhinestones and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. Little Frances Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Taylor, in a frock of pastel green georgette over pink carried the ring in the heart of a pink rose. The bride entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage. She wore a wedding dress of tan satin crepe with touches of gold and accessories to match and carried an arm bouquet of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Dr. Joe Bell.

A reception followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson left for Atlanta, Ga., where they will make their home. The bride is a popular member of the college set. She attended Loulie Compton Seminary and Woman's College in Montgomery, and Hollins College in Virginia. Mr. Thompson is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Thompson of Birmingham. He is an alumnus of Auburn, and a member of the Phi Delta Kappa and Spades honor fraternity.—The Birmingham News.

The bride is a former resident of Clanton and has many friends here, having visited in the home of her uncle, Mr. M. L. White, and Mrs. White, often, since going to Birmingham to reside.

Study Club Luncheon.

A social event of the past week was on Friday, when the members of the Study Club enjoyed a luncheon at the home of Mrs. L. F. Gerald. The colors of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, of which the club is a member, were effectively carried out in the decorations of the home. Tall vases and baskets of purple and gold dahlias, gold zenias, golden rod, and purple flowers with bows of purple tulle, were attractively arranged in the rooms. The luncheon tables were centered with bud vases of purple and yellow dahlias. The places of those present were marked with hand-painted place cards. Small gold baskets, tied with purple tulle, filled with mints, carrying out the color scheme, were the favors on this occasion. A delicious 4-course luncheon was served. Mrs. N. S. Johnson was toast mistress. Short talks were made by six former presidents.

Enjoying this affair were Mesdames J. P. Hayes, R. C. McDavid, B. M. Roberts, J. Watts Moore, N. S. Johnson, T. C. McSwain, Norman Roberts, Eric Hart, J. A. Hester, J. W. Hayes, J. P. Wade, John C. Page, John M. Van Derveer, L. C. Ross, Grady Reynolds, J. E. Gowan, P. D. Wilson, Hugh Jones, V. J. Heard, L. F. Gerald, Grady Broadhead; and Miss Kathleen Mullins.

Bentley-Upchurch.

Much interest is centered around the marriage of Miss Mary Upchurch, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Upchurch, and Mr. Walter Louie Bentley, of New York, which will take place this evening at the Baptist church. Rev. O. P. Bentley, of Luverne, father of the groom, will officiate, assisted by Dr. S. J. Ezell. A musical program will be rendered by Mrs. W. L. Longshore of Gadsden, Luther Hearn of Wadley, and Douglas Braswell of Demopolis. Miss Upchurch has asked Miss Frances Hopkins of Dothan to be maid of honor, and Mrs. W. L. Farrior of Birmingham to be matron of honor; Misses Evelyn Hix, Katherine Tolson, Margaret O'Dell, all of Birmingham, and Nell McElhenney of Ensley will be bridesmaids; little Katherine Gwin of Bessemer, and Blanche Timmerman will be flower girls; Julian Latham of Dothan, ring bearer; James Carl Martin, train bearer. Mr. Bentley will have as best man, his brother, Osce M. Bentley, of Luverne. The groomsmen and ushers are Sam Upchurch, Kendrick Upchurch, E. B. Cosper of Birmingham, Alfred Eubank of Ensley, Erman Crew and O. T. Smith of Goodwater, O. L. Bentley of Birmingham, and Frank Mullins.

Mrs. Heard Hostess.

Mrs. V. J. Heard was hostess to the members of the Wednesday Bridge Club and others on last Wednesday afternoon at her home on Ninth Street. The home was attractively decorated with a variety of fall flowers. A series of bridge games was played at three tables. Mrs. N. S. Johnson held high score, and was presented two decks of Congress cards. The hostess, assisted by Miss Hazel Kreider, served a delicious salad course with iced tea.

Enjoying this hospitality were Mesdames J. Hance Alred, H. M. Simpson, Oscar Jones, N. S. Johnson, John Browder, C. Fenn Jones, J. Watts Moore, Eric Hart, J. P. Wade, Hugh Jones; Misses Ivilyn Ingram, Evelyn Hix.

Mr. Darnell was born in this city, and is the son of William and Frances Guttman Darnell. Miss Curry gave her address here as 301 West 101st Street, this city.—Birmingham News.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayes Hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hayes were hosts at dinner on Sunday at their home on Seventh Street. The occasion was in celebration of the first birthday celebration of their little daughter, Bess. The table was centered with a white birthday cake, with one lighted candle. A color scheme of blue and white was carried out in the decorations.

Bride-Elect Honored.

Among the pre-nuptial affairs given for Miss Mary Upchurch, was a forty-two party Monday afternoon, when Mrs. Latham Ellis entertained at her home on Second Avenue. The punch table was arranged on the porch and presided over by Mrs. Grady Taylor. A profusion of roses and autumn blossoms beautifully decorated the home, a color scheme of pink and white predominating. Five tables for forty-two were arranged in the living and dining rooms. At the conclusion of the games Miss Elizabeth Duncan held high score and was given a wall vase. The guest of honor was presented a beautiful cold meat fork. The chosen color scheme was further carried out in the ices and cakes. Salted nuts were served in pink rose containers, which served as favors also. Mrs. Ellis was assisted in serving by Mrs. Grady Taylor.

Those included in this affair were Mesdames Norman Roberts, Julius Burnett, Kin Vinson, Grady Taylor, Briggs Crumpton, Lucien Duncan, Joe Higgins, Loren Smith, Omar Reynolds, John C. Page, J. P. Ellis entertained at her home on Fourth Avenue, at a linen shower, honoring Miss Mary Upchurch, whose marriage to Mr. Walter Louie Bentley of New York will be an event of October 14. For this occasion the home was profusely decorated with fall blossoms and potted plants. Guests were met at the door by Mrs. J. P. Hayes and Mrs. J. Watts Moore. The punch table was artistically decorated and large clusters of purple and white grapes were hung around the bowl, which was imbedded in sprays of sprengerii fern, interspersed with lavendar and white dahlias. Punch was served by Miss Madelyn Orr and Mrs. Grady Broadhead. Receiving with Mrs. Ellis were the guest of honor, Miss Frances Hopkins of Dothan, Miss Evelyn Hix, Mesdames E. E. Upchurch, P. I. Hopkins of Dothan, and S. J. Ezell. The bride's book was kept by Mrs. J. P. Wade. The gifts were displayed in the dining room. JUDGE REYNOLDS THANKS FRIENDS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please permit me this opportunity to express my appreciation to the people of Chilton County and Alabama for their assistance and sympathy during the proposed impeachment proceedings against me in the Supreme Court of Alabama. I have found many friends in Chilton County and elsewhere who were very sympathetic in this matter and who very willingly gave me aid and assistance, and to all these, regardless of political faith or belief, I want to express my grateful appreciation.

I consider the unanimity of the Supreme Court after consideration of this case a vindication of myself and also of my friends of the County and elsewhere who defended me during the course of these trials.

Friendship such as this makes a lasting impression, and one which I will not forget, but will gladly reciprocate should the occasion ever come in your life that my services might be needed. I make this statement with great gratitude, regardless of politics or any past affiliations, and with a sincere and abiding friendship for you.

Yours very truly,
L. H. REYNOLDS.

CEDAR GROVE

Our Dollar Talk!

ANOTHER POLITICAL GESTURE HAS FALLEN FLAT

As was expected, the Supreme Court of Alabama has thrown out the petition of W. T. Hand and J. L. Johnson seeking to have impeachment proceeding filed against Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds.

Thus concludes another chapter in the protracted effort of a few overzealous political antagonists in Chilton County to harrass, aggravate, and persecute a Republican probate judge with any and all kinds of false pretenses, just because they have so far been unsuccessful in beating him at the ballot box.

Hand and Johnson never had a case against Reynolds. If they had been in possession of anything that looked to a sensible man like cause for court action, they could have gotten into court long ago.

The action of the Supreme Court is enough to explain the baseless efforts that were instituted and pursued against Reynolds. It is enough to prove the incediary and unreasonable motives of the men who were engaged in the carrying on of the proceedings. When the highest court of Alabama turned the light of common sense upon Johnson and Hand their case went up in smoke as quickly as a fourth of July fire-cracker.

The many friends of Judge Reynolds in Chilton County and throughout Alabama are congratulating him upon being able to satisfy the Supreme Court of Alabama that he and his office are not guilty of the things that were charged.

Johnson and Hand seem to be the only two people in Alabama who did not know all the while that their "case" was a farce. They know it now. As Squire Waldrop suggests, maybe if they will now try to impeach Reynolds because he is baldheaded, they could succeed better.

POTATOES AND THE MOON

In reply to our article from the Auburn experiment station, published in last week's Union-Banner, concerning the best time to dig sweet 'taters, we have received the following from Mr. W. M. Cost, of Siluria:

"Editor Union-Banner:

I noticed in last week's Union-Banner, an article regarding when sweet potatoes should be dug to keep.

"The potato ripens after every full moon, and the time to dig is just after the full moon in October. The best time is between the full and last quarter of the moon.—W. M. Cost."

The new milliner at the Boston Store says that a woman doesn't have to read the fashion magazines anymore. All she has to do to stay up with the latest styles is to keep cutting an inch off the bottom of her dress once in a while.

Nowadays a woman doesn't have to take a stitch in time to save nine, because there aren't nine stitches on the average dress.

FROM S. E. WALDRUP

Let me ask for space in the paper to thank my friends for their support in the primary. While I got a little vote, yet I am satisfied, and feel grateful to these few friends. I see no reason why we should not elect our whole ticket. Our nominees told the people what they stood for—now when elected, quit standing for them and go to it.

We say—Hurrah for Reynolds! And I wonder what they will do next. Judge, you just sit steady in the boat of duty and let them knock their waves against your boat. They can't turn you over. I reckon somebody must feel bobbed. I suppose they will try Reynolds next time for being ball-headed—there is as much reason in that as there is in what they had before.

I again thank the people for their support. Now, let's be true to our ticket!—S. E. Waldrup.

SPEND-THE-DAY PARTY

A most delightful affair of last Monday was the spend-the-day party given by Mrs. O. F. Dawson of Collins Chapel community, in honor of the 100th birthday of her mother, Mrs. Mary Johnson.

The house was decorated with cut flowers and ferns. A beautifully embossed cake formed the center piece for the table. At noon a delicious luncheon was served to the following: Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Burnett, Mr. R. S. Burnett, Mr. and Mrs. H. E Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Gore, Mr. A. T. Robinson, Mrs. Doshie Bean, Mr. Vernon Robinson, Mrs. Emma Bussey, Mrs. Rosie Foshee, Mrs. G. W. WALNUT CREEK CHURCH POUNDS ITS PASTOR

Last Saturday night about 6 o'clock a large crowd gathered at the parsonago for a surprise singing. It was indeed a surprise, and the result was a serious pounding from which the pastor and family will take several days to recover, and several years to forget. After enjoying the singing for quite a while, the guests were invited to the dining room, finding ten large cakes, beautifully decorated with candies. These were prepared by the ladies for the occasion. After thanks had been offered, you can guess what happened. Everyone enjoyed themselves. About 10 o'clock the people went home, leaving for us the task of finding out what was left. Upon investigation we found flour, lard, coffee, sugar, soap, soda, washing powder, jellies, preserves, canned fruits of different kinds, peanuts, beautiful dishes, dipper, neck tie, handkerchiefs, hand towels, and pillow cases—two tables full. It is good to be remembered in such a nice way.

May God bless these good friends four-fold in this world, and in the world to come—Eternal Life. They will always have a warm and tender pace in our hearts.—G. B. Golden and family.

ONCE UPON A TIME

The first important event
In a baby girl's life was
Her first tooth peeping
Through the gums.
Moms just bubbled all
Over as she called Pop's
Attention to it. And—
Pops would stick his Clumsy index finger into
The baby's mouth to make Sure Moms wasn't foolin'
Him. And then, they'd
Call Gramma who'd look
Over the top of her glasses
To see the newcomer better.
After that the Aunts and
The Uncles would be invited
And they'd stand in line
For their turn to gaze
Upon the great meat chopper—
And everybody would agree
What a marvel it was.

BUT NOW—

The first tooth "ain't in it"
Any more. Nope. Now the first
Chapter in a baby's life
Worth recording comes the Day her Moms and her Pops
And her Uncles and her Aunts
And Gramma and the neighbors
All—escort her to the Village Barber Shop, see
Her climb into a chair and Hear her gurgle:

"GIMME A SNAPPA SHINGLE! AND DON'T LET THE RAZOR SLIP WHEN YOU SHAVE MY NECK!"

Affidavits in Support of Judge Reynolds By Many Prominent People

In the recent effort of Hand and Johnson to get the Supreme Court to institute impeachment proceedings against Judge Reynolds, the complainants filed an affidavit with the court made by a Miss Elenor Robinson, to the effect that she saw Judge Reynolds destroy an absentee ballot in 1922.

The following affidavits from well-known people were offered by Judge Reynolds in answer to the statements in the affidavit of Miss Robinson:

Affidavit by John W. Bateman

"State of Alabama, Elmore County.

Before me, G. W. Howard, Judge of Probate in and for said county in said State, personally oppeared Hon. John W. Bateman, solicitor for the 19th Circuit of Alabama, who says on oath that one Miss Elinor Robinson appeared before the Grand Jury of Chilton County, Alabama, twice and made complaints against Judge L. H. Reynolds, but never mentioned at any time to me about Judge Reynolds having destroyed an absentee ballot. Affiant further states that the said appearance before the said grand pury of said Chilton county was during the January term, 1923 and also during the July term of 1924.

Affiant further states on oath that the said Miss Elinor Robinson asked him for a conference in Montgomery, Alabama, the best of his recollection, the latter part of the year 1923; that at said conference she said to me that you and the officers have not done your duty; that a lawyer in Atlanta told her that if she had employed him he would have gotten money out of Judge Reynolds long before this, and that she didn't believe that the officers and I had done our duty or we could have gotten money from Judge Reynolds for her long ago. I told her that our Court was a criminal court to punish the wrong doer for the wrong done and that if she wanted money she would have to go to the civil court and not to the criminal side of said Court. That the said Miss Robinson at said conference seemed all wrought up because I had not done my duty and got her some money.—JOHN W. BATEMAN.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this the 21st day of September, 1926. —G. H. HOWARD, Judge of Probate of Elmore County, Alabama."

Affidavit by M. D. Foshee

"State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Before me, G. L. Malone, a Judge of Probate in and for said County and State personally appeared M. D. Foshee who being by me first duly sworn deposes on oath and says as follows:

I was chairman of the Republican Campaign Committee for the November election of 1922, Chilton County, Alabama. As such Campaign Chairman I hired one Miss Elinor Robinson as stenographer for about ten days during the latter part of the campaign. The said Miss Robinson appeared in Clanton about said time and made application for work and I employed her as stenographer at $2.00 per day. When her services were completed I paid her $20 and afterwards she denied getting the $20.00 and there was some dispute about this amount being paid to her, and a short time afterwards I gave her a check for the $20.00. She seemed to be dissatisfied with the pay and stated that she had come from St. Louis here and unless she could get a permanent position she couldn't afford to work said length of time for $20.00. She further stated that unless she got a permanent job it would take $100.00 to satisfy her. She also got mad with L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate at that time, because said Judge Reynolds would not give her a permanent position in his office.—M. D. FOSHEE.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this the 23rd day of September, 1926. —G. L. MALONE, Judge of Probate."

"State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Affidavit by K. M. Vinson

Before me, J. Z. Mims, Clerk of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama, personally appeared K. M. Vinson who being by me first duly sworn deposes and says as follows:

That he was employed in November, 1922, as Chief Clerk in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama, by L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate of said County.

Miss Dalene Burnett was also working in said office as assistant clerk and other help was employed at this time in said office. M. D. Foshee was Chairman of the Republican Campaign Committee and the Commissioners Court Room adjoining the offices of the Judge of Probate were used as headquarters for said Campaign Committee. The said M. D. Foshee had one Miss Elenor Robinson employed to assist him in the stenographic work of said campaign, the said Elenor Robinson commencing work about the 1st of November, 1922, and worked about ten days. On Saturday after the election in November, about the time said offices were being closed, I heard Judge L. H. Reynolds and said Elenor Robinson have an argument relative to the pay of said Elenor Robinon. The said Elenor Robinson stating that she had come from St. Louis to Clanton and if she could not get regular work in the probate office she would have to have $100 for the work she had done. Said L. H. Reynolds told Elenor Robinson that he could not give her work in said probate office, after whch she left the court house and seemed to be indignant, and shortly thereafter the office was closed and Judge Reynolds and the remainder of the clerks left the court house.

I went to said probate office the next morning which was Sunday to do some work in said probate office that I was behind on and soon after I had opened the office Judge L. H. Reynolds and his son, Omar Reynolds, came to said office, allso M. D. Foshee, chairman and J. L. Gore, who was Sheriff at that time, and also the said Elenor Robinson. They were in said Commissiorers Court room working upon some campaign matters and after working for some time the said Elenor Robinson left with some mail to be posted, after which the others left and after they had all gone I closed up the office. Since said Sunday the said Elenor Robinson has not worked at said office or any where in said court house, and I have never seen her since said date.

My duties in said office as chief clerk were of a general nature, performing any and all duties in and around said office, and Judge Reynolds was in said office very little for several days prior to said election and said L. H. Reynolds was busily engaged in the election of said campaign. A complete record was made of every absentee ballot that was sent out from said probote office giving the time, person, and date and also a record was kept of every absentee ballot returned giving the time, person and date returning same and also a record was kept of when and to whom said absentee ballolt were delivered to the election managers. I was the only clerk in the office having charge of said absentee ballots as aforesaid. Said record showed that every absentee ballot returned was delivered to said election managers. Affiant expressly denies that said L. H. Reynolds ever opened an absentee ballot in the presence of affiant, and affiant expressly denies that said L. H. Reynolds ever threw an absentee ballot in the fire or that said L. H Reynolds ever said to affiant or any one in the presence of affiant that we were not to say anything about what went on in the office. I am now with Polk Brothers Motor Company, Inc., Clanton, Ala., and I have not been employed by Judge Reynolds for the past three years.—K. M. VINSON.

Sworn to and subscribed befo e me, this the 1st day of October, 1926. —J. Z. MIMS, Clerk of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Ala."

Affidavit by J. L. Gore

State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Before me, J. Z. Mims, Clerk of the Circuit Court, in and for said County and State, personally appeared J. L. Gore, who being first duly sworn, deposes and says as follows:

I was Sheriff of Chilton County during the year 1922 and served as Sheriff for four years. I was present when a conversation took place between L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate, Chilton County, and one Miss Elenor Robinson, and was also present some of the Clerks in the Probate Office and other outside parties. I heard the said Miss Elenor Robinson tell said L. H. Reynolds that she could not afford to do the work she had done for the Campaign Committee for $20.00, and said Elenor Robinson stated that unless she got permanent work in the Probate Office she would have to have $100.00 for the work she had done as she had come from St. Louis, and $20.00 would not pay her expenses. Said L. H. Reynolds stated to the said Elenor Robinson that he could not give her a permanent place in the Probate Office, and shortly thereafter the said Elenor Robinson left the Court House seeming very indignant. Shortly thereafter the Clerks and other parties left said Probate Office and said offices were closed. Said conversation occurred on Saturday after the election in November, 1922, and the next following morning which was Sunday several parties met at the Court House in the Commissioners Court Room, adjoining the Probate Offices, which was used as Campaign Headquarters, including M. D. Foshee, Chairman, said L. H. Reynolds, and his son, Omar L. Reynolds, L. H. Reynolds, Affiant, said Elenor Robinson, and K. M. Vinson, Chief Clerk in the Probate Office, who was working in said Probate Offices. After working for some time winding up matters n the Campaign the said Elenor Robinson left the Court House with some mail to be posted, shortly thereafter the remaining parties left said Court House and said Offices were closed. This is the last work that said Elenor Robinon has ever done in said Court House in Chilton County.—J. L. GORE.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 1st day of October, 1926.—J. Z. MIMS, Clerk of the Circuit Court of Chilton County.

FEED MADE the DIFFERENCE

A CUSTOMER writes us from Georgia that he had a cow that would only give 24 pounds of milk a day.

Our representative in his local town influenced him to buy 2 bags of Alfocorn Milk Maker, which is sufficient feed for a 30-day test on one cow. He kept a perfect chart, and at the end of 30 days this same cow was giving 40 pounds of milk every day. Today his entire herd of 16 cows has doubled his income because he fed them exclusively on Alfocorn Milk Maker and good roughage.

12 Year Old Boy Accidentally Kills Self With 12 Gauge Gun

Young Son of Claudy Deason is Victim of Fatal Accident While Hunting with Little Brother and Two Men.

Curtis, the 12 year old son of Mr. Claudy Deason, who lives on the Birmingham highway at Reynolds' pond, four miles north of Clanton, died instantly Wednesday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock, when the 12-gauge shot gun which he was hunting with was accidentally discharged and the load entering the right jaw.

Reports say that the boy, together with his smaller brother and two men, Joshua and Calvin Johnson, had been hunting and had sat down on the banister of a bridge. Curtis held his gun, a single barrel 12 gauge shot gun, in his hands. Somehow the gun slipped from his hands, falling with the muzzle upward. The hammer struck the middle banister of the bridge causing the load to discharge. The entire load entered the right jaw and throat, only slightly breaking the skin on the upper right chest. The boy fell over and scarcely moved after the gun fired.

The unfortunate accident happened on a little road about a half mile west of the home of Mr. Deason.

The body was taken in charge by Martin, undertaker, and being prepared for burial. Enterment will be made today (Thursday)

CHILTON TIGERS WIN THRILLER FROM BIBB COUNTY HIGH, 13-0

Chilton County High School's football "Tigers" defeated Bibb County High on the latter's field last Friday afternoon, 13 to 0. That's the story in a few words, but it doesn't tell the half of it.

Chilton kicked to Centerville to start the game. They reeled off a first down in short order, but here Chilton's line began functioning and never let up until the last whistle. Bibb seemed to have hit a rock wall, and were forced to punt. Culpepper received the ball on his own 20-yard line, and was downed with little gain. Chilton worked the ball to the 10-yard stripe, but a penalty for off-side killed chances for a touchdown. A little later Chilton received the ball in midfield and worked it to the 5-yard line. Here Gore threw a pass to O. Sanford, which was incomplete and over the goal line, giving Bibb the ball on her own 20-yard line. Bibb's backs couldn't pierce Chilton's line, however, and Chilton received the ball on her own 40-yard line. Here Nivens, Chilton's big full-back, began his big work of the day. The "Galloping Ghost" ran roughshod over Bibb, helped along considerably by Chilton's line, who were now opening holes big enough to drive a bus through. He, with Sanford, and occasionally Gore and Culpepper, worked the oval to the 2-yard line, but here Bibb stiffened, and the same backs who had been tearing off from 5 to 12 yards each down, couldn't put it over. Soon followed another bad play when Gore, not knowing the down, threw a pass on fourth down.

Coach Bruner took them to one side during the intermission at the half, and, while giving them their due for their good work, roasted them high and low, and all hands were included, for some errors he had seen in their playing. Coach Harkins must have pepped up his squad a bit too, for they came back in the third quarter and put up the best fight they made throughout the game, making it look dangerous from Chilton's standpoint, for a few minutes. The danger was soon over however. Red Wagoner, who was time-keeper, got too much fired up over the game and began coaching. This gave Chilton a 25-yard penalty.

But—in the last quarter—it came! The ball was Bibb's on the 50-yard line, when the time-keepers announced that only 4 more minutes remained. The Tiger had been growling fiercely all afternoon, but he let out a mighty roar at this point. Bibb took to the air, trying to score in the last minute. They completed one for a short gain. On the next pass, Nivens intercepted and ran 80 yards through the entire Bibb team for a touchdown. Culpepper added the extra point.

Chilton kicked off to Bibb, and then the old Tiger, who had been denied his prey so long, and had just tasted blood, roared again, and this contained a note of complete rout for the enemy. Bibb tried a pass on the first play, Gore intercepted for Chilton, and cut loose behind perfect interference, for a run that was fully as spectacular, if not as long, as Nivens' had been. It was good for 75 yards, and another touchdown. Sanford missed the extra point. Score 13 to 0.

Chilton kicked to Bibb again, and the tiger kept on growling. On the first play, O. Sanford intercepted for Chilton, and made a nice 35-yard run, but out-ran his interference and the safety man pulled him down on Bibb's 20-yard line. Here the whistle blew, ending the game.

Bibb did well for their size, etc., everything considered, but were outclassed by at least three touchdowns. It was easy to be seen after the first quarter that theirs must be a defensive game, and Bibb did little ground gaining except in the third quarter, when they put over three first-downs in a row.

For Chilton's line, it is sufficient to say that the holes were there when needed, and Bibb's line plays were, for the larger number, stopped cold at the line, with a few tackles behind the line thrown in for good measure.

The line didn't look like the line that faced Cloverdale—it was easily three times as effective.

In the backfield, Culpepper's toe work was good as usual, and Nivens ripped through the line almost at will, for from one to twelve yards, with gains from time by Gore and O. Sanford. Nivens and Gore had been limping for two or three quarters before the big chance came, but both must have forgotten their hurts, for both did the Dan Patch act in grand style, when they got loose with the old pig-skin tucked in their arms.

After a while it will get to be a well known fact that it will not do to try passes on Chilton, and anyone wanting bona fide evidence can just ask Cloverdale and Bibb, but by the time it gets out, Chilton will have tucked away a nice bunch of foo'ball games.

Chilton's team looks like a conference of proud dads and their illustrious sons, ranging as they do from L. Sanford, the little 108-pound end, to "Nn-Nox" Knox, a 200-and-something-pound guard.

The locals tackle Coosa County High on their own rocky slopes at Rockford next Friday, October 16, and the doughty, yet not over-confident lads are looking forward to "bringing home the bacon."

OVERHEAD IN SCHOOLS

NOTE—This is the first of a series of articles on overhead cost in the schools, by R. W. Cowart, Secretary of the Alabama Education Association.

"Since a good deal of discussion is precipitated when the subject of overhead costs in the schools is mentioned, probably some facts regarding it will be interesting at this time," said R. W. Cowart, Secretary of the Alabama Education Association. "The total cost for overhead in elementary and high schools is approximately $522,000 per year. This includes the salaries of 67 county superintendents, 42 city superintendents, and 7 assistant superintedents, the expenses of county boards of education incident to their meetings and $5 per day for each board member for not exceeding 12 days. It also includes the salaries of all stenographic, clerical, and janitorial help in the offices of the superintendents, office rents, supplies, attendance officers' salaries and expenses, cost of the census, and the like.

"A little over 4% of all money spent for the current operation cost of the schools is spent for overhead. When the cost of buildings and equipment is included, which take a good portion of the superintendents' time, this percentage of funds going to overhead is reduced to 3.6%. The percentage of school funds spent for overhead in Alabama compares very favorably with that in other states.

"While there are some who would say that our overhead cost is too much, it would hardly be possible to get the work done for less money. The percentage of the total funds devoted to overhead may appear high, but the actual compensation paid to individuals doing the administrative work is low, compared with the salaries of executives in other fields. It might be well to consider the fact that Alabama could double her educational expenditure without increasing overhead costs to any appreciable degree. The same officers could administer a 9-months' school program as easily as a 5-months' program with little additional expense in general control costs. It is not that overhead is too high; it is that the amount spent for schools is too low.

"If we could abolish all overhead expense in elementary and high schools, the funds so released would buy only 6 days more schooling each year. There would be a service lost to the schools, however, that would prove a greater loss than the gain of 6 days schooling.

COTTON REPORT

Our cotton reporters raised their estimate of the present crop, from September 16 to October 1, by about 149,000 bales. The condition is now found to be 65% of normal, which indicates an acre-yield of 168 pounds of lint. On the acreage being picked, this would give Alabama a total crop of 1,310,000 bales. This is within 47,000 bales of the crop last year.

The increased production was estimated in spite of the storm period of damage which certain counties suffered during the period between this report and the last. The storm, accompanied by heavy rains, passing through practically all counties south of the Blackbelt, and measuring by reports received, the disturbance probably destroyed about 37,000 bales. In the remainder of the state estimates were raised equivalent to about 186,000 bales. The leaf worm had left the bolls perfectly apparent in the north half of the state, and from this clear view of the volume of fruit set and safe, reporters found their impression of the size of the crop taking a sharp upward turn.

There were ginned prior to October 1 in Alabama 565,824 bales, or 340,000 bales during the last two weeks. Excepting the two days of rain which accompanied the storm, the weather was ideal for picking and ginning, which was taken advantage of by the farmers with such extra labor as was available. More cotton was ginned in the past two weeks, than during the same period last year.

DARGIN

Our B. Y. P. U. was entertained by Miss Myrtle Lagrone Saturday night.

Our regular meeting was postponed Sunday on account of the illness of the little daughter of the pastor, Bro. Weaver.

Mr. J. H. Wood of Calera was in our community Friday and Saturday.

J. L. Crim and son, Carmon, and J. D. Forster passed through our community Monday en route to Columbiana.

Mr. E. M. Confer of Calera visited our community Saturday.

The speaking at Dargin October 2 was well attended.

The Shelby County section in The Union-Banner last week was poorly represented. Come on, news-writers, with the news, and lets fill it up.

SHELBY

Our new postmistress, Miss Leona Burton, of Mostellers, will take the office soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Curlee spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Curlee's mother, Mrs. Boaz, in the Kingdom.

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Tyndall and little daughter, Francis Joyce, spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mrs. Tyndall's mother, Mrs. W. E. Finley.

We are glad to know that Mr. W. W .Wingard of Clanton, who was operated on for appendicitis, is improving.

Miss Lucile Finley spent part of last week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Wingard, in the Kingdom.

Mr. Charley Jones' family will soon move to Calera.

The Republican cause is booming here now.

FOURMILE

J. A. Wheeler and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Roper attended the singing at Mt. Era Sunday.

Clyde Fancher has gone to Birmingham to work.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Holcombe spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Wilder.

Miss Mildred Clark and brother, Jack, spent Saturday night with J. E. Cherry and family.

November 2nd will soon be here. Let every Republican voter go out and vote your honest convictions. Don't be misled by promises. It does seem like a certain element of the Democratic party would try to have you feel that if you don't fall down and worship them, work and vote for them, that you are not worthy to utter the name of the Lord, and will cast your name out as evil. But, honest, we are proud of the principles of our great Republican party, which stands for government by the people. We realize that there are many good people who are Democrats, but it seems that their leading politicians in Shelby County are out trying to mislead the people. So, beware of promises and vote your honest convictions on November 2. And let's work together for the best interest of Shelby County.

CALERA SEES BRIGHT PROSPECT

Substantial developments are under way in Calera and there are bright prospects ahead.

Work has been started on the big lime plant of the Alabama Lime & Stone Corporation in Calera. A crew of 30 men, under the supervision of E. D. Wall, construction foreman, is at work on the plant. The Alabama Power Company is extending its line to furnish light and power. When it is completed the new plant will be the largest of its kind in this section of the country, according to Mr. Wall. It will manufacture on a large scale lime and stone for building purposes and agricultural lime as well.

The stores are well stocked with merchandise and business is good. Customers from various parts of the county and from adjoining counties come regularly to Calera to buy their needs. Calera stores have established the reputation, it is said, of carrying everything needed in the home and on the farm, so that there is no risk taken even if one drives a considerable distance to get to Calera.

P. Baer, who for years has enjoyed a large business in dry goods, ready-to-wear and similar lines, has just completed a handsome building on the lot adjoining his store in which he will carry a large and complete stock of furniture. Recognizing the need of such a store, Mr. Baer is planning to meet that need. The new building is 20x100 with pressed brick and plate glass front, and is one of the most attractive in the town.

Calera is greatly interested in her school, and it is the opinion of many that the community is having this year one of the best schools in its history. The record of last year is being surpassed. At the close of the first month the enrollment was 169 in nine grades, as compared with 157 in ten grades last year. All the teachers but one were in the school last year, and Mr. Allen, the principal, states that through their cooperation the school has been well organized and is running smoothly. The Parent-Teacher Association that did such excellent work last year is active again with the promise of even a better record. It is expected that the new city officials who were installed Monday will have for one of their first acts the levying of the tax that will make it possible for the school bonds already voted to be sold. The site has already been provided and with the bond money available work on a new building could be started soon.

The work of the school is being strengthened by the decision of the school board to send all pupils above ninth grade to the high school at Montevallo. This is being done, about 20 pupils going every day in a bus, which also accomodates those who attend Alabama College.

CALERA

Quite a few of our people were Birmingham visitors during the fair last week.

The eyes of the country are now set on Calera. Forty or fifty men are now employed by the Alabama Lime & Stone Corporation, and new men are coming every day. The business men of Calera can tell the difference in their Saturday's business already.

Mayor H. T. Brown is having the post office building remodeled and overhauled, which will then present the appearance of a real city post office. Our postmaster, W. B. Ozley, has just rights to feel proud of his extra room.

J. H. Denham is moving into the Broadhead house in the north part of town.

There is a great demand for small houses, and rooms, in Calera, due to the fact that so many people are coming here to work.

P. Baer has just completed one of the best and neatest business houses in town, and is putting in a nice stock of furniture.

SINGING AT WILTON

There will be singing at Wilton the Third Sunday afternoon, October 17, at 2 o'clock. Everybody invited to come and bring your new books.—J. H. Wood.

ONE can't feel well when there is a retention of poisonous waste in the blood. This is called a toxic condition, and is apt to make one tired, dull and languid. Other symptoms are sometimes toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. No more RHEUMATISM

IT'S GONE! That awful agony! Rheumatism can't stand the rich, red blood that S. S. S. helps Nature build.

But rheumatism will bring pain and misery to your joints and muscles just as long as you are without plenty of rich, red blood in your system.

It's the red-blood-cells that S. S. S. helps Nature build that drive out of your system the impurities that cause rheumatism. And until you do build up your blood to where it is pure and rich and red, you simply can't get rid of rheumatism.

And S. S. S. is the thing. Red blood conquers rheumatism. Everybody knows that.

S. S. S. means millions of red-blood-cells—means health all over. No more rheumatism. Nights of rest—days of joy, filled with the happiness of accomplishment — made possible by a body brimful of red blooded life, energy and vitality.

That's what the end of rheumatism means—that's what S. S. S. brings to you. Get S. S. S. from your druggist. The larger bottle is more economical.

ACTIVE SCENES CLOSE TO MONTGOMERY

The Advertiser:

first trip I made by automobile Birmingham to Montgomery d to be quite an undertaking, ting of rough roads, mud holes, nd hollows, also a cracked crank aused by striking a large rock, ie time consumed was 12 hours. vas in 1912.

1916 I drove from Montgomery mingham on a good gravel road unday morning without a single n 3 hours and 23 minutes. To- t is repeatedly being driven in and a half hours.

The speed of an automobile is not what I wish to set forth, but the fact that Alabama is getting good roads, and through them opening up the state

Did you read in Sunday's Advertiser about the good roads now being built in Chilton county, You may ask: What interest have I in Chilton county? But the point is this: For many years there has existed a land in Alabama rich in resources, well watered, fertile fields, fine timber, and a wealth of minerals, but hidden in the shadows of surrounding mountains and reached only by rough, winding trails.

Today this land is rapidly being developed, the Alabama Power Company was first to see the possibilities of the water power, this very minute I am writing by a light, the current of which flows from Chilton county.

Have you ever been to Mitchell Dam? Have you ever taken a boat ride through that lovely mountain region surrounding that beautiful lake?

Have you ever stood on the dam and looked over rushing waters down the river to distant hills? Have you ever been to the falls on Fall Branch or driven out the Knights Ferry road and stood on the top of Mount Manning and viewed the hills of six counties? If you have not done all this and more, you are missing a wonderful opportunity.

Why not get an early lunch some day, take the family car and leave the city by going west on Bell street out past the aviation field, across the river over the new bridge and go north through Prattmont

As you leave the jug factory look at the iron pipe driven into the ground under the oak tree; it shows a United States survey 632 feet above sea level, 100 yards up the road on a hill to the right is the highest place in Autauga County. Montgomery has an altitude of 160 feet, at Court Square.

Now on down the road—about 20 miles from town have a look at the views on either side. No, this is not North Carolina, just a good imitation. Thirty miles out, as you swing around a curve, you meet the concrete highway, this is what we hope soon to have reach Montgomery.

Now, step on the gas. When you reach Verbena look at the fine new rock school building on the high hill to your left. Pass by Verbena, cross the bridge and turn sharply to the right, up the hill, and at the forks take the right hand road, this will carry you to Mitchell Dam.

Good roads have opened this beautiful section. The Mitchell Dam lake is 18 miles long and 270 miles around the flood line; the new dam now under construction six miles north of Wetumpka will form a lake over 20 miles long and back the water up the spillway of Mitchell Dam.

Hunting and fishing in this section are fine. Montgomery people are fortunate in having such a place so close by to go to.

It is only 38 miles from Montgomery and less than an hour and a half drive.

If you have not already made this trip you will be well repaid in doing so and aside from the many undeveloped possibilities to be found here it is an ideal playground for both Birmingham and Montgomery.

WELDON'S STRING BAND BACK FROM ATLANTA

Mr. E T. Weldon reports that he and his string band had a mighty fine time on their trip to Atlanta last week, making the trip in a Ford car. While in Atlanta the Clanton boys rendered a radio program in the competitive concert of many southern musicians. They have not yet heard how they were rated in the contest. Their program was picked up by a number of radio fans in Clanton who enjoyed it immensely.

The Weldon band is composed of E. T. Weldon, Joe Groom, J. C. Price, and Walter Ward. On their return from Atlanta the boys came by Birmingham. The Starr Music Co., of that city engaged them to furnish the music for the Merchants Luncheon Friday night of this week, which program will also be broadcast from Station WBRC.

JUDGE LOUIS REYNOLDS STRONG FOR COUNTY ROAD CONSTRUCTION

Judge Louis Reynolds, probate judge of Chilton county and generally regarded by state officials as one of the most painstaking and capable judges in the state, was in Montgomery Monday. Judge Reynolds was in Montgomery on legal business. The Chilton probate judge still finds time to talk about good roads. He ranks with Captain John Craft, the late W. S. Keller and John Rogers as a pioneer good roads man. The voice of Judge Reynolds was crying in the wilderness when the people generally did not dream of the benefits that would come through the construction of good highways.

The conductor of this column has been talking good roads off and on with Judge Reynolds for over twenty years. The early dream of the judge is about to come true. He said there should be a good road by every farmer's door, or adjacent to his home and property, so that he could get to market with his goods

Judge Reynolds brings the information to Montgomery that the two-cent gasoline tax which goes to the counties is enabling county authorities to build lateral roads, and that gradually every section of Chilton county is being reached by a first class highway built by the county and maintained by the county.

"Those in charge of road construction in my county are using the proceeds of the gasoline tax to construct roads into the various sections of the county," said Judge Reynolds. "Good roads are gradually coming to every citizen of the county."—Atticus Mullin, in The Montgomery Advertiser.

Better Service For Chevrolet Owners

The Chevrolet Motor Co., in one division of its service department, is spending over $500,000 annually on a service promotion program. This program consists of aiding its dealer organization in improving its shop methods and equipment as well as its personnel, in order to give Chevrolet owners better and more efficient service.

Service promotion deals with the efficient layout, equipping and operating of the dealer's service station. It offers a standardized plan of shop layout, making available special Chevrolet tool equipment, and provides assistance to the dealer organization in properly installing these methods. The flat rate method of charging for repair work is suggested in this plan as it insures an equitable charge for both the owner and the dealer.

The proper training of the dealer's personnel is taken care of by the operation of 22 permanently located service schools in different parts of the United States. These schools are attended by Chevrolet dealers, their service managers, shop foremen, and mechanics, who receive an intensive training course in the proper methods and tools to use in repairing Chevrolet cars. Special courses are provided for dealers, their service managers, and shop foremen, on the subject of shop management.

As a result of this increased efficiency in its dealer's service, Chevrolet is achieving widespread recognition and the quality of its servce is becoming more and more a factor in promoting new car sales.

Another step forward is the perfection of its drive-away system, and to make sure that its cars are delivered into the hands of its customers in perfect condition. The Chevrolet Motor Company has sent out instructions to all its assembly factories and dealers stating that in the future no cars may be towed on drive-aways.

"Careful study has shown us that the practice of towing drive-aways may result in impairment to the towing car, the car towed, or both," said C. E. Dawson, assistant general sales manager of Chevrolet, explaining the order.

"The towing of one car by another, no matter how scientifically they are coupled, always places strain upon the first car. When this is a new car the possibility of damage is increased. Its bearings are tight and its piston clearance is but a few thousandths of an inch, causing a tendency to tighten up and overheat even under normal usage. The chance of overheating is especially great when a new car is used for towing.

"The second car suffers too, in many instances, it has been found. It inevitably gets the first car's dust, which it would escape if following at a normal driving interval and it sometimes is damaged by stones cast up by the leading car."

The order abolishing towed driveaways is already in effect.

Judge Reynolds Writes To Republican Voters

Editor Union-Banner:

We are going to have speaking here by Hon. C. B. Kenemar Saturday and I hope we will have a good crowd. We owe it to Mr. Kenemar to turn out and fill the court house with ladies and men. Nearly everybody will be in Clanton Saturday afternoon any way. The speaking will be at 2:00 o'clock.

I hear it rumored that one or two of our nominees will be defeated on November 2. I don't believe it, as we have good men nominated for every office. We know that they are just as good and better competent to fill the offices they are running for than the Democrats.

The Democrats have not got a chance to elect a single officer in the county except by the help of Republicans. Will some Republican show any excuse why they should desert their party and vote for Democrats? What do the Democrats offer?

Will the voters of this county stop for one moment and think what the Democrats offer them for their support? Will you voters look at the leaders of the Democratic party for one moment? Do you know that a large portion of their nominees and leaders have just left the Republican party because they could not get an office in the Republican party? If Republicanism is good, then the best place to get all the benefits from it is in the Republican party.

May I ask in all seriousness, what the leaders in the Democratic party stand for? We only know people by the past. Will you voters view the past record of the Democratic leaders for a moment? Will you imagine what would be the results of an administration run strictly on prejudice, malice and spite?

Two leaders of the Democratic party have done nothing for the last few years but abuse the people who did not agree with them—they do not stand for anything, but against the Republican party. In fact, some of the main leaders have worked against something for years, and have never advanced a constructive idea or advocated anything for the upbuilding of Chilton county.

I hope the court house will be overflowing with people Saturday evening. I have just a few words I want to say, and I wish every voter in the county could hear it.

I hope Democrats will come out. We have some splendid people in this county who are Democrats from principle and vote for what they think is best. They would not wrong anybody—they want the best for the people of this county.

In conclusion, I want to say that I have never seen a time in my experience in public llife in the county when it was more dangerous to defeat the Republican nominees and elect Democrats than it is at this time.

You know what the Republican party stands for—you know its policy on roads; you know what the administration will be if you elect their nominees. On the other hand, God only knows what the policy will be if you elect the other crowd, when half of them stand for one thing and half for someting else and no one knows what either half stands for.

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS.

CHILTON HIGH TRIMS COOSA IN LOOSELY PLAYED GAME

Chilton County High defeated the Coosa football warriors on the latter's field at Rockford last Friday 13 to 0.

Chilton went to Rockford all hopped up with the idea that they were "some punkins" and but for the fact that they outclassed the Coosa squad in weight, and all other things it takes to win football games, their banner would have been trampled in the dust. Over-confidence is one of the worst things that any football team ever had to deal with, and Chilton took along a neckful of it to Rockford.

They began playing with that Rockford bunch like a kitten with a mouse, but soon found out that the mouse could bite. Chilton finally woke up to the fact that they had a worthy foe on the field, instead of the set-up expected. Added to this, the whole Chilton team seemed to be listless, off, playing in a don't-care manner, and finally won 13 to 0, when the kind of pep and team play shown at Centerville would have beaten Coosa 50 to 0. Of course they didn't just lie down and let Coosa go where she wanted, but from Chilton's standpoint she put up a poor fight, and flunked flat-footed, compared with their former form on the field.

We like to boost Chilton. We like to tell glowing stories of the prowess of her men on the field, but we must have something to praise—we can't whoop up a big holler over nothing. The sort of playing the Chilton team got out of their system Friday does not hold faith with those former gridiron warriors of Chilton—Fitts, Popwell, Pinckard, Lee Sartor, Hayes, Crit Jones, Thompson, and a host of others who have struggled for Chilton—got in the game and fought to the last ditch that the name—Chilton—might mean something in athletic circles. Let's wake up and do our best, whatever that may be.

Coach Bruner is doing his best; the town is supporting the team; a good sized bunch of fans follow the team wherever they go; and so, we expect them to fight.

It is expected that a game will be played on the Chilton field toworrow afternoon. This was an open date on Chilton's schedule which Coach Bruner has been trying to fill for some time, but at this writing no game is scheduled. If possible to secure contract, however, the game will be advertised in time for all who want to attend, to do so.

This bank has the distinction of being the first bank organized in Chilton County. It was, in the beginning, the financial center for the then little village of Clanton. It has become outstanding in Central Alabama.
Its history embraces seasons of panic and pestilence, good times and bad times, war times and peace times; but from the time of its beginning to this day of grace—almost a quarter of a century—it has discharged all trust and met all obligations with absolute fidelity.

Campaign Chairman Urges Republicans To Vote In General Election Nov. 2nd

Editor Union-Banner:

Just a few words to the people of Chilton County. It is now just a few more days until we will be called upon as citizens to go to the polls and cast our ballots and thereby signify or designate men to serve us for the next four years as officials to administer the affairs of our government.

Every citizen should go to the polls and cast his or her vote on November 2nd. A person's franchise is a sacred obligation assumed as well as a privilege, and the exercise of it involves great responsbilities which we as citizens should not attempt to shirk, but we should enter heartily into the exercise of this franchise. The responsibility is upon us whether we exercse it or not. We cannot stay away from the polls and say that we are not responsible for the evils of government, for it is everyone's duty to try to remedy the defects.

Every white man and woman in Alabama should be allowed to go to the polls on November 2nd and cast their vote for men to serve them in the various offices of the State and county, but because of the complicated Democratic election laws of Alabama, only a small per cent of its white population is permitted that great privilege — the foundation of our great government. I long to see the time in Alabama when a sufficient number of her citizens will assert their freedom and political independence at the polls to cause these obnoxious laws to be repealed and laws enacted in their stead so that indeed and in truth Alabama will have a government of the people, by the people and for the people.

I heard a noted Baptist preacher say last year, while enumerating the various things that would prove a blessing to the State and to the South, that two strong political parties in the South would prove a blessing, but he said from the sacred stand, "I have been a Democrat for two or three generations back, and will be the balance of my life." Now, my friends, if you will show me any civic freedom in this good man I will eat your hat. This is just one of the thousands of good men in Alabama who are existing in political slavery, and just so long as such slavery exists in Alabama in such great numbers her laws will still be "of the few, by the few and for the few."

Our local county politics seems to be quiet. I presume that since the unbiased and unhampered citizens of the county have gone unmolested and from a goodly number of candidates from the rank and file of the people have selected a bunch of candidates whom it would be an honor for any man or woman in the county to vote for, think that as a matter of fact their task is done and there is no more to do and as one Democrat told me the other day, he guessed the Republican ticket as a whole would be elected by a large majority in Chilton, they generally do. But we must not be too confident. The Democrats have nominated an unusually good ticket this time. It seems that they are trying to make some improvements here of late. They have a good percentage or ex-Republicans on their ticket. I am glad to note this, for if they should ever get into power in this county, I hope it will be on the account of its mixture with the Republicans.

I hear it whispered around some bit that the Democratic party in the county has obtained $2500 or $3000 from the state organizatinn to buy its way in office this time if possible. I put them on notice now that I do not believe the people of Chilton County can be bought this time nor the next time, but God pity the people if the time ever comes when they can be bought with the Democrats' filthy lucre.

Now, my friends, I know, you know, and the Democrats will agree that they are not going to elect the officers of Chilton county this time. They haven't the numbers to do it with. But the Republicans are going to elect their nominees. They are in the majority. The only hope of the Democrats is to get the Republicans to elect their candidates for them. May I say again that they have good men on their ticket—they are my friends and I am their friends, but when they ask me to vote for them they are ask-something of me that would not do for me or you under any circumstances in a political way, then, why the absurdity of such a thing. You have men on your own ticket nominated in a legal primary, just as good as they are.

Suppose, my friends, that we should elect the Democratic candidates for them this time—had you ever stopped to think that your county would then have a minority government. A minority would be governing a large majority. We have learned by past experience and observation that when the election is over then they are through with the Republicans who helped them.

Now my friends, not only Republicans but Democrats, every man and woman in Chilton county should go to the polls on November 2nd and cast their vote for the party of their choice. If you believe in Republican prnciples and government—the government that has made our great naton what it is, make your mark or cross under the elephant. The Republicans have a state ticket as well as a county ticket. You can vote for a governor on the Republican ticket the same as on the Democratii ticket. If you believe in present day Democratic rule—if you believe that the white children of Chilton county are entitled to $7.57 a year for schooling and the white children in Lowndes county $69 each per year—if you believe that by far the greater bulk of our state funds should go to the higher institutions of learnng and not to the rural districts and small children in our towns and cties—if you believe that the state and county boards of Education ought to have absolute control of the educaton of your child, should say who teaches it, when it should be taught and what it should be taught—if you beleve in the present method of selection and adoption of school text books, if you should not be allowed to fix tax values on your home and real estate, then you make your mark under the Democratc emblem.

I am expectng every Republican to go to the polls November 2nd and assert his or her independence and political freedom by placing a cross mark under the Republican emblem. I say without fear of successful contradiction that the Republicans have as good a ticket, state and county, as could be selected. It is true there were as good men defeated in the primary as those nominated, but that was a fact of inevitable consequence and should have been and am quite sure this was realized by every candidate before the primary. There was not a candidate in the primary but for whom I would have voted, but it was a matter of impossibility. I lost a big per cent of my votes, but I consder the winners are just as good men as those I voted for. So, I will say to those defeated as the old lady said to her daughter who was crying at her sister's wedding: "Do not worry, it will be your time next."

So, let everyone be sure and come to the election and insist on your neighbor coming, and let us roll up a bigger majority this time than ever before. We can and will do it if we will just all come out and vote.

Yours for the Republican ticket,—
J. Z. MIMS, Chairman Chilton County Republican Campaign Committee.

AFTER EVERY MEAL

COLLINS CHAPEL

The United Singing Society met in regular session here Sunday afternoon, and did some good singing in spite of the fact that the new Stamps book was used, and the songs were new to the class. The following directors led from one to six songs each: A. H. Glasscock, Akins Collins, Jasper Oaks, E. L. Glasscock, A. H. Glasscock directing the second time. Organists were Miss Genie Collins, and Mrs. Belle Dorminey.

After a short discussion it was decided to postpone the election of officers until the all day singing, which will be held here on the Fifth Sunday, October 31. We are expecting to have with us that day, Prof. J. A. Lesley of Northport, Ala., and many other noted singers of the state and county. All singers and lovers of music are especially invited to come and take part with us, for we are expecting one of the best singings of the season that day. Don't forget your lunch; however, all singers will be cared for. Bring your families, your neighbors, friends, sweethearts, song books, and a well filled basket, and let's make it a great day of rejoicing in the name of our Lord and Master.

Remember the singing at Oak Hill next Sunday afternoon, as a good program is arranged for the occasion. All of the society is urged to attend; all others are invited, as we enjoy having visitors from other societies and communities. Let's all who possibly can, go to Oak Hill next Sunday afternoon as a matter of duty we owe not only to the society, but to those who have been so faithful in keeping our society up and making it the success that it is.—Frank Oslin, Sec'y.

BABE RUTH WON A CHEVROLET

Babe Ruth not only won everlasting base ball renown with his trio of home run swats in the fourth game of the world series, played in St. Louis, but he also won a Chevrolet.

One of the circuit clouts crashed through the plate glass window of an automobile salesroom near the Cardinal park and bounded off the side of a Chevrolet coupe on display inside. In acknowledgement of his feat the Bambino was presented with the coupe.

"Times have changed," said Ruth with a broad grin. "Some years ago it would have been a serious offense for any one of us to break a window with a base ball. Now it brings a new automobile."

Pimples

What can I do?

"OH, why can't I have a skin like other girls? Why do I have to have these ugly pimples, blotches and blackheads?

"If I could only find something that would clear up my skin and give me back my soft, rosy complexion, I know I would be the happiest girl in the world! What can I do?"

Is that you talking? If it is, you don't have to worry a minute! Just build up the rich, red blood in your body. Then your skin will be as clear and soft as anybody's.

That's what S. S. S. has been doing for generations—helping Nature build rich, red blood! You can build red-blood-cells so fast that the impurities that cause breaking out on the skin hardly get into the system before the pure blood annihilates them — kills them right out — stops them from breaking out through the skin.

And then this rich, red, pure blood feeds and nourishes the tissues of the skin and keeps it looking healthy.

That's all there is to it. Healthy, vigorous, red blood such as S. S. S. helps Nature build, makes you healthy all over. It beautifies your skin — drives away pimples, blackheads, blotches, rash, boils and eczema—gives you back your appetite—builds firm, plump flesh and fills you full of new life and energy.

All drug stores sell S. S. S. Get the larger bottle. It's more economical.

Unseen Sources of Long Life

The basic sources of automobile value are not always apparent to the eye.

A motor car, like a house, may LOOK a great deal more substantial than it really is.

Because of this difficulty, more and more thousands are turning to Dodge Brothers product for insurance against disappointment.

The years have proved, and each year proves anew, that Dodge Brothers are as deeply concerned with the UNSEEN goodness of their motor car as with the seen.

The mileage it will deliver, the safety it will provide, the expense and trouble it will save the owner over a period of years, are quite as important to Dodge Brothers as the more obvious details of equipment and style.

GENERAL ELECTION IS ON TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 2ND

Republicans of Chilton County are reminded again that the general election is to be held on Tuesday, November 2, which is one week from next Tuesday. The campaign has been unusually quiet since the primary, but Republicans should not take that to mean that there is no necessity for going to the polls and casting a vote. Your vote will be needed to elect the Republican candidates, and you should not fail to discharge your duty of voting.

Don't overlook the date, Tuesday November 2, and vote for the Republican candidates.

THE CHURCH OF CHRIST

We wish again to call the attention of the public to the fact that the Church of Christ at Clanton has secured the services of Resce H. Rogers of Birmingham, to preach for the congregation at Clanton. Mr. Rogers is a man of unusual ability and does some very fine preaching.

We take this means of extending to all a hearty invitation to be with the congregation in any of the services at any time you will. Each Sunday at 11 a.m. and at 7 p.m., we have preaching services; each Saturday evening at 7 there is one hour devoted to studying the Bble. We urge anyone who will to meet with us in our Bible study. In this study there is nothing taught other than the plain Bible truths. Come and help us.

COOKING SCHOOL A SUCCESS

The cooking school conducted in the office of the Alabama Power Co., on the afternoons of last week by Mrs. Stafford of the H. C. Cole Milling Co., was a pronounced success. Mrs. Stafford proved herself not only a master in the art of cooking but also a splendid instructor and a charming hostess. From the beginning Mrs. Stafford had the rapt attention and inspired the full confidence of her pupils. The classes increased in size until on Saturday afternoon probably a hundred attended the cooking lessons. The afternoon classes were composed of Clanton's representative housewives, who were eager to learn new ideas in cooking—ideas that might relieve the monotony of daily tasks and make of their menial work a pleasure instead of a drudgery.

Mrs. Stafford stressed the importance of every housewife being provided with best implements for cooking. First, she should have stored in her pantry a sack of "Omega", the last letter in flour, and also a sack of "White Ring." Omega should be used for all yease breads. White Ring is self rising; the leavening is wholesome and is mixed perfectly. Nothing needs to be added to White Ring for development of the most delicious biscuit, excepting a small portion of shortenng and some either sweet or fresh butter milk.

At each demonstration hot coffee with a well planned menu was served. Betty Lyles Wilson's rolls of Omega flour were pronounced excellent. The hot biscuit peanut bread and cakes of both kinds of flour were delightful.

All cooking was done on a Hot Point electric range furnished by the Aabama Power Company; therefore the smoothest texture invariably prevailed in everything that was baked. A Helen Boone kitchen cabinet loaned by the Farmers Hardware Co., proved a source of much convenience to the demonstrator and was much admired by the guests. Lucky guests were given a beautiful cake and two sacks of flour on each afternoon. On Saturday afternoon the grand prize a handsome lineoleum square was won by Mrs. Will Hayes.

Recipes for making the various breads and cakes that were served Mrs. Stafford's pupils following each afternoon's lessons, will be published in next week's issue of the Union-Banner in order that a large number of the Clanton women who expressed a desire for these recipes and who were deprived of attending the classes on account of limited accommodations of the apartment in which the school of cooking was conducted, may be gratified.

Bentley-Upchurch.

Characterized by the most elegant simplicity and beauty was the marriage of Miss Mary Hanson Upchurch, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Upchurch, and Mr. Walter Louie Bentley, of New York, which was solemnized Thursday evening, October 14th, at 8 o'clock at the Clanton Baptist Church.

The church was beautifully decorated. Trellised arches, with Southern smilax entwined, formed a background for masses of ferns. The chancel was covered with smilax and ferns, and smilax was also draped about the doors and windows. An immense bouquet of pink and white roses, showered with orchid and yellow pom-pom dahlias, formed a central motif among the banked ferns. On either side were floor vases of Columbia roses and white waxen tapers, burning in tall candelabra, shed a soft glow over this effective setting for the wedding party.

Preceding the ceremony, a program of nuptial music was rendered, with Mr. Douglas Braswell, of Demopolis, pianist; and Mrs. W. L. Longshore, of Gadsden, violinist. Miss Frances Hopkins, of Dothan, sang "For You Alone," and Mr. Luther Hearn, of Wadley, "I Promise You."

To the strains of the "Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin" the wedding party entered. During the ceremony, "To A Wild Rose" was played softly. Mendelssohn's Wedding March was used for the recessional.

The first to enter were the ushers, Messrs. O. L. Bentley, Birmingham; Frank Mullins, Clanton; Erman Crew and O. T. Smith, Goodwater; followed by the groomsmen, Sam Upchurch, brother of the bride; Kendrick Upchurch, Montgomery; E. B. Cosper, Birmingham; Alfred Eubanks, Ensley.

Entering next were the bridesmaids, wearing chiffon dresses in pastel shades, made robe de style. They carried arm clusters of Columbia roses tied with pastel shades of tulle. Miss Evelyn Hix, Birmingham, wore green; Miss Katherine Tolson, Birmingham, coral pink. Miss Nell McElhenny, Ensley, was in turquoise blue; and Miss Margaret Odelle, Birmingham, in yellow.

Mrs. W. L. Farrior, of Birmingham, was matron of honor, and wore a becoming frock of orchid chiffon. Miss Frances Hopkins, of Dothan, served her cousin as maid of honor, and was lovely in flesh chiffon, with silver lace trimmings. They too, carried Columbia roses, tied with pastel shades of tulle.

Little Misses Katherine Gwin, of Bessemer, niece of the groom, and Blanche Timmerman, of Clanton, scattered rose petals in the pathway of the bride. They were adorablle in dainty frocks of pink and blue.

Little Julian Latham, of Dothan, was ring bearer, and James Carl Martin, of Clanton, trail bearer.

The bride, whose beauty and charm was accentuated by her radiance of happiness, was lovely in her wedding gown of ivory satin, adorned with Duchess lace beaded in seed pearls and rhinestones. Her veil of tulle and lace fell from a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses showered with lilies of the valley.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Mr. Oce M. Bentley, of Luverne, served his brother as best man.

The impressive ring service was performed by the father of the groom, Rev. O. P. Bentley, of Luverne, assisted by Dr. S. J. Ezell.

Miss Upchurch is the only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Upchurch. She holds degrees from both Judson and Howard Colleges, and has also studied at Sophie Newcomb. She is a member of the Alpha Delta Pi Sorority.

Mr. Bentley is a graduate of Howard College, and holds a master's degree from the University of Chicago. He is a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity of Howard College, and was a professor in the department of economics at that institution for two years.

Immediately following the ceremony, Dr. and Mrs. Upchurch entertained with a reception at their home. They were assisted in receiving by Judge and Mrs. Gwin, sister of the groom, of Bessemer, and Dr. and Mrs. P. I. Hopkins, of Dothan.

The home was profusely decorated with cut flowers. The bride's cake, a beautiful three-tier cake, elaborately embossed in roses and lilies of the valley, topped with an arch, under which stood a miniature bride and groom, formed the center piece for the dining table. Ices in the shape of wedding bells were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Bentley left during the evening for Jacksonville, Fla., there taking a boat for New York, where they will reside.

Among the out-of-town guests for this event were Dr. and Mrs. P. I. Hopkins, Miss Frances Hopkins, Percy Hopkins, Julian Latham, Jr., of Dothan; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Weaver, Lillian and Sam Matthews, of Miami, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Longshore, of Gadsden; Judge and Mrs. Gwin, James Bentley Gwin, Mrs. Bryan Waller, of Bessemer; Mr. and Mrs. Mardis Bentley, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Odell, Miss Hattie Bentley, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Tolson, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hargrove, Miss Alpha Bentley, Miss Elizabeth Stephens, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Farrior, Mrs. O. L. Bentley, and Mr. Ashur Bragan, of Birmingham; Mr. W. C. Not a Family of Musicians

A self-made western millionaire built the finest house in his home town. He imported decorators to furnish it, and managed to get it finished by the time his eldest son arrived from the East where the youth had been completing his education.

The proud father escorted the young man through the shining new mansion, followed by the other members of the household. When the grand tour had been completed the millionaire inquired whether the son had any suggestions to make.

"Well," said the young man, "to me it seems complete in every possible detail except one."

"What's missin'?" demanded the parent.

"You ought to have a chandelier in the main drawing-room," said the boy.

"All right," said the father. I'll order one by telegraph tonight but I'll bet a thousand dollars there ain't a d—n one in the family can play it."

$700,000,000 a year—the Railroad's contribution to

THIS country cannot stand still. It must go forward to meet the ever-increasing conditions of this progressive age.

As Railroad transportation is by far the most important factor in promoting the country's progress, railroad development must not be halted.

To afford the best possible facilities and service, the United States railroads have spent in the past six years $4,233,000,000, most of which was borrowed capital. This represents a yearly investment of over $700,000,000 to take care of the demands of commerce.

In order to provide adequate transportation service to its patrons, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad has authorized and spent in a little over six years, or since the end of Federal control on March 1, 1920, a total of $150,700,000 over and above its regular operating expenses and taxes.

This money has been spent to provide modern locomotives and cars, safety devices, double track, and many other improvements.

To keep up this high standard and make provision for the future, there must be an adequate margin between railroad revenues and railroad expenses. This can be secured only as the public makes its influence felt, so as to insure the railroads equitable taxation, fair rate regulations, and just laws.

QUALITY AT LOW COST

EXTRACTS FROM REPUBLICAN STATE PLATFORM ADOPTED AUGUST 18TH, 1926

No Hope From Present Democratic Regime

We make no charges against the Democratic party so serious as the charges made and proven by and on themselves. The primary election campaign leaves one fact absolutely established: Alabama needs a political house-cleaning. Can anyone indulge the hope that the present triumphant faction of the Democratic party will be an improvement over its predecessors?

Education

With a State rich in material resources we know that a way can be found to provide the necessary funds for keeping the public schools open nine months in the year, and if entrusted with power we will find ways and do this.

School Book Trust

We favor so arranging the course of study and the selection of the text books in such a way as will result in benefit to and advancement of the children in school as well as saving to the parents who buy the books. Every one knows that this matter is now handled in the interest of the school book trust, its distributors and agents.

We pledge ourselves to do all in our power to divorce the schools and public education from partisan politics, sectarian control and school book graft.

Roads

We voted for a bond issue five years ago for good roads on the pledge that it would only be spent as the Federal government matched it dollar for dollar, and that highways would be constructed on the most practical and useful routes. In violation of this solemn pledge made to the people in order to get their votes for the bond issue, the present administration has spent a large portion of this money on roads and pieces of roads purely as a matter of political expediency and favoritism and under such circumstances that the Federal government would not match many of such expenditures with Federal aid, thus not only squandering our own funds but losing the funds we should have received from this source. In place of road building being carried on as a strictly business proposition, it has been made a political football and used for the upbuilding of a political machine, and the net result is we have about one-half the roads we should have had, and road building has been almost discontinued while a wild scramble has been staged as to who should enjoy the rich prerequisite of handling another large bond issue.

Road building and maintenance should be taken out of politics, and conducted as a great business affair of the State. The funds for the building and maintenance of these roads should be provided so far as possible by the collection of a reasonable tax on gasoline and motor vehicles, but due care should be taken to avoid making such taxes too burdensome on these modern necessities of travel and commerce. Additional funds should be procured by such reasonable bond issue as may be necessary to carry on with expedition the building of roads, at all times having due care for the safeguarding of the State's finances.

Convicts

The convict lease system is a blot on the good name and repute of the State. We have for years declared for its abolition, we favor its abolition now instead of cajoling the people with insincere promises every four years as the Democratic State officials have been doing.

Law Enforcement

We believe all good citizens should do their part in making this country more law abiding by themselves observing and obeying all of the state and national laws and insisting that others do likewise, and we believe in the strict enforcement of all the laws both state and national through the duly constituted and legal channels only, and where necessary we favor the enactment of such additional laws as may be necessary to make more law, and the eradicating of evils and lalw, and the eradicating of evils and abuses.

Pardoning Power

It is a reproach to the State for the pardon and parole power to be exercised as a matter of favor to politicians or as reward to political or personal henchmen. We do not disapprove of the liberal use of the parole power when exercised for the good of the State and encouragement of the convict, but to pay political debts through the abuse of this sacred trust is reprehensible beyond all expression.

National Prosperity

Never before have any people, anywhere, at any time, attained to such a state of prosperity and happiness as those of the United States. Under President Coolidge's fiscal policies taxes are lessened, the treasury overflows, and the great war debt of billions melts away, while the people engage in the pleasing dispute over which is the more prosperous, labor or capital.

Republican Economy Nationally

President Coolidge as the leader of the Nation, not only by a clarion call of words but by actions, has inaugurated economies and retrenchments in national expenditures which have already resulted in the saving of many hundreds of millions of dollars to the taxpayers of the United States and a corresponding reduction in the burdens of national taxes, to the great relief of every kind of business and all the people of every class in the country.

Democratic Extravagance At Home

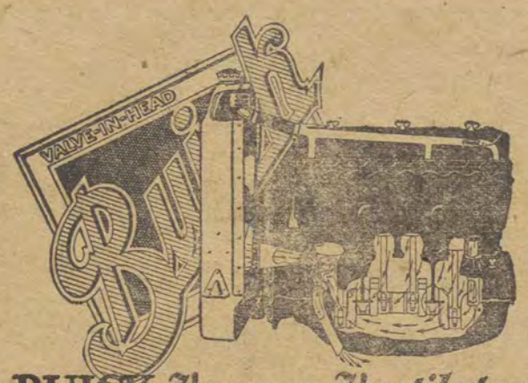
It is a regrettable fact that by the relief afforded us from national taxation due to the wise Federal policies of the Republican party, the Democratic State, County and municipal governments in Alabama have only been encouraged to reach the deeper into the taxpayers' pockets.

Protective Tariff

We reaffirm our unfaltering belief in the principle of a protective tariff. The history of this great country from the time of Washington to Coolidge completely vindicates this wise policy. We rejoice that our own people here in Alabama, and in the great industrial Birmingham district are now reaping a share of the prosperity that prevails throughout the country, due to the Republican protective tariff policy enacted into law.

No Soup Kitchens or Bread Lines

We rejoice that the Republican party has given protection to the iron, the steel, the farm and poultry and other products of Alabama, and has provided work for idle labor in the mills, the factories, the shops and on the farms in Alabama, thereby bringing back prosperity to the bankers, the merchants and every class of people in this State.



Women Voters

We urge the women voters of the State to look well to the interest of the State before they vote. If the women voters will take an independent stand for the right, their influence and vote will be a controlling factor in election, but to follow in the footsteps of their predecessors is to make their vote and influence negligible.

Conclusion

We appeal to the thinking, patriotic people of all classes who have no self-ish ax to grind to join with us in registering a protest against the degenerate condition into which the Democratic party has fallen.

If entrusted with power, we will exert our utmost endeavors to put into effect the foregoing policies and to free Alabama from the political abuses from which it is suffering.

The fair is an annual event, having been inaugurated by this progressive community some years ago. Everybody is invited to attend, and enjoy the day.

WEST CHILTON

These crisp October days tell us winter is approaching.

The cotton crop is nearly gathered; the low price makes people blue; that means economy and retrenchment on more lines than one; it makes people look for the bargain counter. But it is not so bad as in 1914—then the low tariff was bearing on us.

Woman Surprises Friends

"After a spell of Typhoid Fever 7 years ago I began to suffer from indigestion and gas in my stomach and colic attacks. This gradually became so bad that my doctor advised an operation for gall stones. A friend advised me to try MAYR'S which I did with splendid results. My friends were astonished at my rapid improvement. I have no more bloating and can eat anything I wish." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract, and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded at Alred Drug Co., and druggists everywhere.

CURIOUS PERSIMMONS

Raymond Duffey of Mt. Creek brought The Union-Banner a mighty big persimmon one day last week. It was the Japanese kind and of course much larger than the ordinary kind that grow wild in the woods. Yes, Duff, we tried to eat the thing.

Delbert Brand brought in a bunch of blue persimmons from the woods. He found a tree full of them. They are the first of the kind we ever saw.

From persimmons the story now goes to the subject of twins, or rather triplets, Mr. F. M. Connell bringing in three apples grown together.

CARD OF THANKS

I thank Drs. Gragg and Marcus, and the entire hospital force for the good treatment I received while in the hospital. I also wish to thank Mr. Mell Martin for his nice treatment, getting me to the hospital and back home. My friends were very thoughtful of me. A smile and a hand-shake from a friend in a time like that helps a person wonderfully. I pray God's richest blessings on each and every one who had a hand in making me comfortable while at the hospital.—Pearle Wood.

MRS. MARY A. WALDROP

Died at her home in Bessemer on October 9, Mrs. Mary Armstrong Waldrop; she was nearly 58 years old. Her death was very sudden. She was a descendant of some of the pioneer families locating around Macedonia about 100 years ago, and was born and raised in West Chilton, where she leaves many friends and relatives to mourn her departure. Her kindness, cheerfulness, and friendliness will be remembered. We entertain for her a hope of eternal life in the ages to come. She rests now in her last sleep in Macedonia cemetery, waiting the resurrection summons to life. She was buried the afternoon of the 11th, in the presence of a large assembly; Rev. Dunlap of Lawley conducted the funeral. The floral offerings were quite beautiful.

TOM KEMP WRITES

To the voters of Chilton County:

As a candidate for member of the Board of Education, and not being able to see all of you in person, I take this means of presenting my claims for the office. My life has been lived here among you, and my energies have been spent, not in trying to have one political party win out over the other, but in trying to make a living in a quiet way for my family and to do my share in support of our schools, churches, etc.

Should you cast your vote for me and I am elected, I will do everything in my power to see that each and every child in our county receives its prorata share of public funds, and that the rural child has the some advantages as the small town or city child has in educational advantages as nearly as I can consistently do.

This a part of my declaration of principles. If they are worthy of your consideration and vote, I will appreciate it.

Trusting that your honest convictions will govern in the matter, I am yours for the best interest of the county, schools and churches.—TOM KEMP, (Paid political adv., by Tom Kemp, Clanton, Ala.)

WOOD and COAL—If you want good dry stove wood or Acton Red Ash Cahaba Lump Coal, just call or see me for service. Bob Baker. 10-23-d

JOHN L. GORE WRITES TO REPUBLICAN VOTERS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space to say a few words to the Republican voters of Chilton County.

Next Tuesday, November 2, you will go to the polls to exercise your franchise, and to say who will administer your county government for the next four years.

On August 10, a primary was held for the voters to say who should be their nominees to fill the various offices. I believe we have a good set of men nominated.

J. D. Collins is no stranger to the voters of this county. He served the cousty eight years as Tax Collector; he filled the office with honor to himself and to the Republican party. I am sure he will fill the Sheriff's office in the same manner.

S. M. Pate, the nominee for Tax Assessor, who has served the county for the past six years, has filled the office with honor to himself and the Republican party.

J. T. Rockett, nominee for Tax Collector, has served the county for the past six years, and filled the office with honor to himself and the Republican party, and has accounted for every dollar that has come into his hands.

The men nominated for commissioners and school board are a fine set of men, and will fill the office with honor.

I believe every voter should consider well before casting his ballot; not vote prejudice, but vote for the best interest of the county. Why should Republicans vote for a Democrat? Have the Democrats given any reason why you should vote for them? Sometimes we get careless and forget the past. In 1910, the Republicans split their ticket and elected a Democrat Judge of Probate. What happened? $238,000 was spent on one or two roads in the county and the other roads of the county had nothing done to them. In 1925, the county court was abolished. By whom? S. M. Adams, Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee of Chilton County. I want to ask the Republican voters—Why was the county court abolished? Any sane man knows it was done because Chilton County had a Republican probate judge. Did the abolishing of the county court cost the taxpayers anything? The records show that in the years of 1919-1922 and 1923, there was transferred by order of the Commissioners Court from the Fine and Forfeiture Fund to the Road and General Fund, $8,262.52; the Fine and Forfeiture Fund has been bursted since the County Court was abolished. Does that give any reason why you should vote the Democratic ticket?

I want to call your attention to what the present administration has done for the county. Approximately $75,000 has been spent on the roads, and the money has been spent on all the roads, and today the county has the best country roads it has ever had. Besides this, the present administration has set aside $50,000 to pay on the bonded indebtedness of the county, due 1947. Does that give any reason why the Republicans of Chilton County merit your vote at the polls next Tuesday?

I want to say, in conclusion, that I earnestly ask that every Republican voter go to the polls on next Tuesday and vote the Republican ticket, and victory is sure. But if our Democratic friends should be elected, take off your hat to them, and help them make good officers; don't be running to Montgomery, paying counsel, to try to impeach them because they differ with you in politics.

Yours for the Republican ticket,
JOHN L. GORE.

FROM A. F. MIMS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words in regard to the election on November 2. I would like to insist on all Republicans going to the polls that day and casting their vote for the Republican nominees. I am just as anxious for all the nominees of the Republican ticket to be elected as I would had I received the nomination myself. Don't forget to go to the polls that day, and carry everybody with you, so that we may elect our ticket by a big majority. I would like to see every state officer as well as the county officers elected on that day, so let everyone do all he can between now and November 2, to get all our folks out to the election, and I am sure we will win by a big majority in the county.

Yours for the success of the Republican Party,—ALFRED F. MIMS.

MORE BIG POTATOES

The largest sweet potato of this season has been sent in by Mrs. M. B. Bell of Jackson's Chapel. It weighs a bit over six pounds after having been dug two weeks.

The longest potato was brought in by N. W. Latham of Maplesville. It was two feet long.

Final Appeal to Voters From Republican Campaign Committee

The Republican Campaign Committee of Chilton County herewith presents the following statement to the voters of the County which we hope will be of interest at this time, giving a brief summary of comparison between the County candidates of the Democratic and Republican parties. Also a few facts concerning the two parties in the past which may be of interest to the voters at this time.

Mr. Sam Pate, the Republican nominee for Tax Assessor, has held that position for six years, and he has made almost a perfect record. We never hear anyone complain of errors in their assessments. We doubt whether there is a better qualified man for Tax Assessor in the County than Mr. Pate, and besides his qualifications, his whole life work has been with the people of this County His father before him was known as a man of the people and was called "honest Sam Pate." Now why any Republican should vote against him and vote for Mr. M. C. Broadhead we can not understand. What has Mr. Broadhead ever done or said for the interest of the common people of this County that would justify any Republican in leaving his party to vote for him?

Mr. Tom Rockett, the Republican nominee for Tax Collector, has, since his early boyhood, been with the plain people of this County, always at their meetings, lending whatever influence and aid he could to help the masses of the people in all their struggles in this County to preserve their rights and liberty. He has served this County as Tax Collector for the last six years, and no one would attempt to criticize his record. And yet the Democrats claim that many Republicans will leave their party and vote for Mr. Renfroe Mullins. Let's compare Mr. Mullins' record with Mr. Rockett's record. Both have been raised in Chilton County. Both have seen the liberties of the common people of this County at stake. Mr. Rockett was alwayar ready to do what he could for the plain people. Mr. Mullins was always on the other side. Mr. Rockett keeps his home and lives among his people. Mr. Mullins sells his home in Chilton County and moves his family to Montgomery.

Mr. Dudley Collins, the Republican nominee for Sheriff, is one of the very best citizens of this County. He has made a success of everything he has undertaken. He served this County several years as Tax Collector without ever being criticized for any of his official acts either by the people of this County or any official examiner. Mr. Collins was raised by one of the best men that ever lived—one who always was interested in the welfare of the common people and always stood for what was right and just; and Dudley Collins has ever walked in his footsteps, and we have always found him since his early manhood, working at all times for the good of the people where he lived. He has always taken an interest in the public welfare of the people. We always find him at every public meeting at work for good roads, good schools, in fact he takes an interest in all public meetings where he can serve the interests of the common people. Yet, with this record, Democrats are claiming that Republicans will break away from their party and vote for Mr. Bud Jones against him.

Wouldn't it be well for Republicans to stop and reflect for one moment and ask themselves why should they forsake Dudley Collins, a man that has stood by them all their lives, and vote for Bud Jones, a man that was never known to go out of his way to help the common people in the struggles for their liberties?

Mr. Percy M. Pitts, the Republican nominee for Representative, is a fine young man. He has always been with the people. His father before him was one of the leading Republicans of Shelby County, and died in the harness, working for the Republican party. Mr. Pitts has been in this County for many years and has always shown an interest in the welfare of the people. His public life is an open book, and the public always knows where he stands on all public questions, and when he is elected the people will have a man that will represent the interest of all the people of the County, and he will not try to pass laws to spite somebody, but will at all times work and vote for the interest of the people.

Now consider Mr. J. B. Atkinson, the Democratic nominee. He has also lived in this County for several years, and the people for years have been in doubt as to what he stood for or to what party he belonged. Sometimes the Democrats would claim him, and sometimes he would claim to be a Republican. Two years ago he took a great interest in an independent ticket. In fact, the Democrats would not own their own party, but tried to fool the people by running on the independent ticket. The campaign has about closed and we dare say but very few people know or have an idea how Mr. Atkinson stands on any public question. But we do know what vicious legislation was passed by the last legislature by Senator Adams. We know that the County Court was abolished. This Court had been clearing about $3,000 a year which was transferred to the Road Fund. Now we know since the Court has been abolished the County has not received one penny from this source. In other words, a little spiteful legislation has been and is costing the people of this County about $3,000 per year, and in addition, considerable expense in extra jurors. The above legislation was not only passed by Senator Adams, but Mr. J. L. Johnson, Mr. W. B. Corley, and Mr. J. B. Atkinson were all advocates of the law, and the same crowd is now leading the Democratic party. Do we know what to expect if Mr. Atkinson is elected to the legislature?

Mr. John Bean, the Republican nominee for Commissioner in the First District, has always been a Republican. He has never been wishy-washy. He has always been open and frank with the people, and when he is elected, the people will know what to depend on. Mr. Richard Robinson is the Democratic candidate against Mr. Bean. His neighbors have been in doubt for years as to what his politics were, or to what party he belonged. Yet we have had some very warm campaigns. If a man will try to fool the people before he is elected to office, what will he do after he is elected?

Mr. Tommie Maddox, the Republican nominee for Commissioner in the Second District, has spent all his life in Chilton County and has never failed to do what he could for the upbuilding of this County. Everybody that knows him recognize him as a Republican, and he will make this County a splendid Commissioner.

Mr. R. J. Williams, the Democratic

HENRY HAND ARRESTED ON PROHIBITION CHARGE

Sheriff Littlejohn and Deputy Foshee went to the home of Henry Hand near Clanton last Friday morning to search his premises on a warrant for alleged stolen property. The officers did not find the goods for which they were searching under the warrant, but they found a quantity of home brew in Mr. Hand's house, for which they made a charge against him for violating the prohibition law. Hand was arrested and brought to Clanton, and was released upon making bond.

WIFE OF MR. HENRY KLINNER DIED SUNDAY NIGHT

Mrs. Ulmer Klinner, age 33, wife of Mr. Henry Klinner of Maplesville, Route 2, died at the family home on Sunday night, and was buried Monday at Antioch. Mrs. Klinner was the daughter of Mr. Bob Roper.

MR. J. T. RICH DEAD

Mr. J. T. Rich, nearly 80 years of age, died at the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. R. B. Moody, in Bessemer, on October 23. Mr. Rich suffered a stroke of paralysis and bleeding heart last Tuesday night, and died Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. Burial was at Poplar Springs Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Howell conducting the funeral, and Jacobs, undertaker, of Bessemer, in charge.

Mr. Rich lived in Clanton for 12 years, until about a year ago, when his wife died. Since that time he has lived in Bessemer. He will be greatly missed by many relatives and friends in Clanton and Chilton County. His kindness, cheerfulness, and friendliness will ever be remembered. He has always lived a devoted Christian, honest, and a loyal citizen, and has expressed himself as being willing and ready to go any time the Lord called him.

He is survived by one son, W. O. Rich, of Bessemer; three brothers, one sister, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his death.

We want to thank the pastor and people of West Side Baptist Church for their kindness and service rendered during his sickness and death; also for the floral offerings.—Mrs. F. O. Robinson.

ANOTHER CURIO—TWIN EGG

Mr. J. R. Short, of Maplesville, R 2, added another curiosity to our list last Saturday—a twin egg. One of the eggs is about 3-4 of an inch in diameter, and joined to another a little smaller. The egg was laid some time in July, Mr. Short said.

PERCY M. PITTS WRITES VOTERS

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I desire to take this method of speaking to you regarding my candidacy for Representative of our great County of Chilton, as the Republican nominee. Should you see fit to honor me with election on November 2nd, I will endeavor to conduct myself in such a way as a Representative of the whole people, and support worthy legislation which is to the interest of all classes and not to any group of individuals.

With the exception of two years that I spent in the late World War as First Lieutenant, several months of which I spent over-sea, I have practiced my profession since 1913, spending the past six years in your County.

First, I desire to state that I am of the opinion that what we need in our County and State is not so many laws of a frivolous nature, but only those laws which are necessary. Multiplicity of laws creates less respect for laws. What we need is not so many frivolous laws, but more law enforcement, and more respect for the law.

Should I be your next Representative I will do all in my power as such to sponsonr any legislation which will help our educational needs, especially in the rural districts. I believe that the greatest problem that we have to deal with today is to see that your child and my child have the educational chance to which they are entitled. I'm reliably informmed that our scholastic population in this State is close to one million, most of whom are in the rural sections. I am not opposed to the State supporting our higher in-

SECTION FOREMAN KILLED BY TRAIN AT VERBENA

Thomas J. Pinson, 65, for many years section foreman in the employ of the L. & N. Railroad, was instantly killed near Verbena late Monday afternoon, when a freight train collided with a small hand car upon which Mr. Pinson and nine other railroad workmen were en route to Verbena.

The accident occurred a short distance north of Verbena as the hand car was rounding a curve. Mr. Pinson was the only occupant of the hand car to suffer injuries. All the others jumped to safety when the freight train suddenly came up in front of them.

The body of the dead man was brought to Clanton and placed in charge of undertaker J. Mell Martin, who prepared it for burial. Funeral services were conducted Wednesday, and burial in charge of the Masonic fraternity, of which Mr. Pinson was an honored and much beloved member. He is survived by his widow and several children.

CHILTON HIGH — MARBURY TO PLAY HERE NEXT FRIDAY

After a two-week rest, Chilton's Tigers will take on the team from Marbury High School on the local pasture next Friday afternoon, October 29th, at 3 p. m.

After this comes the following engagements:

Marbury High, November 5, at Marbury.

Autauga County High, November 12, at Clanton.

Shades-Cahaba High, November 19, at Clanton.

Shelby County High, Wednesday, November 24, (day before Thanksgiving), at Clanton.

While the games with Marbury are not expected to be hard, yet reports indicate that the two encounters will not be walk-aways for anybody.

Then comes Autauga High, said to have a fast and capable squad, with a bag full of tricks. They will bear watching. After this, comes Shades-Cahaba, where Chilton is doped as the underdog, and will have to show some stuff to tie, and will have to put up the best fight she has made so far this season, to win. With but four days rest, the local lads then tackle Shelby High, (Columbiana), the top of the heap. Shelby is said to have one of the best, if not the best high school team in the state, and has been sweeping her opponents before her. This is expected to be the best fight of the season, and to trim Shelby will be a nice feather in Chilton's cap.

Its history embraces seasons of panic and pestilence, good times and bad times, war times and peace times; but from the time of its beginning to this day of grace—almost a quarter of a century—it has discharged all trust and met all obligations with absolute fidelity.

ALL DAY SINGING AT COLLINS CHAPEL

There will be an all day singing at Collins Chapel next Sunday, October 31, and all singers and lovers of music are invited. Come, bring your families, neighbors, sweet-hearts, song books, and a well-filled basket, and let's make it the best day of the season. We are expecting some of the best musical talent the state and county afford.

CARD OF THANKS

I thank Drs. Gragg and Marcus and the entire hospital staff for the good treatment I received while in the Central Alabama Hospital. My friends were very kind to me. Their presence at a time like that were appreciated very much. I thank them for the flowers they gave me, while there and after I came home. Remember me always as a friend.—Carrie Glass.

FRIENDSHIP CHURCH

Rev. E. A. Norris preached at Friendship at the 11 o'clock service last Sunday. The pastor, Rev. Lowery, was present, but Rev. Norris being there, kindly consented to preach. Everybody seemed to enjoy the sermon.

Regular monthly singing was held in the afternoon, and the best singing in some time was enjoyed by quite a crowd. Although the books were new to everybody, the singing was exceptionally good. Directors were: J. Z. Mims, J. W. Cagle, R. A. Smith, Jesse Baker, S. V. Miller, Herbert Lowery, O. L. Devaughn, and T. E. Wyatt.

Visitors were present from Clanton and other surrounding communities, all of whom we were glad to see. We cordially invite you to come back again every Fourth Sunday afternoon.

PLEASANT GROVE

There will be an all day singing at this place next Sunday, October 31, in the Harp and Harmony book. Everybody come, bring your books and a well-filled basket.—J. M. Williams.

PLEASANT RIDGE

Most of the farmers of this community are done picking cotton, and some are done gathering corn.

I want to say a few words to the renters. Don't give up and say—"I am going to public works," for it will not do. If it were not for the poor old farmer, the public worker could not live—he could not get bread to eat. Let us try to stay with the farm if we can, and not give up because cotton has gone to the bottom, for it may be all for the best. I am a renter myself, so don't be discouraged; I live in hope. It has been said—"If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."—A Renter.

TO THE VOTERS OF SHELBY COUNTY

In this article I desire to say a few things relative to myself and the principles for which I stand as the Republican nominee for Representative of Shelby County in the Legislature of Alabama.

I was born April 3, 1888, at Marble Valley, Ala. My grandfather was known as "Old Uncle Billy Baxley," and my father as "Uncle William" or "Bud" Baxley.

I was reared on a farm and received my education in the public school at Marble Valley, Fourth District Agricultural School, Sylacauga, Ala; the Abilene Christian College, Abilene, Texas; and the David Lipscomp College, Nashville, Tenn.

I have taught in the public schools of Alabama, have farmed more or less all my life, have at all times taken an active part in church work, worked five years as lecturer and business manager for a farm organization, and am now engaged in the real estate business at Calera.

I favor a compulsory poll tax law for all white men and women in the present poll tax age limit. This would mean approximately $1,000,000 more for our public schools, which would give our boys and girls a 9-months school term, and no man's taxes would be raised.

I favor a change in the school book system, and standardizing a state book system of our own—one with the "monkey" business left out.

I favor an immediate change in the convict mining system, a severance tax consistent with good government, better roads and more highways without raising the farmer's taxes—no tax increase unless it be on luxuries, fewer laws and lawyers in the State Legislature.

Submitted for your careful consideration, and cheerfully submitting to our verdict on November 2, I beg to remain,

Your humble servant,
A. B. BAXLEY.

Calera, Ala., October 27, 1926.

NOVEMBER 2ND

This is the last issue of the paper that you will read before you go to the polls November 2nd.

As one of the candidates, I want to say, like one of old, "We have fought a good fight, we have kept the faith; hence, we hope there is laid up for us a crown (victory) of righteousness"—and not for us only, but for all who support the Republican ticket.

Personally, I have been unable to meet all the voters in the County, but trust that you will not hold that against me on election day.

One thing I desire to mention is, so far as I know, no unfair methods have been used during the campaign by any of the Republican candidates to get votes; I can not say as much for the Democrats.

The absentee ballot has been and is being used to destroy good government. The "thing" is a curse to the County, and when I get in the Legislative halls, I shall do my best to place it where it belongs—way out of existence.

But it is not my intention to give my platform in this article, but merely to mention it to bring to your attention the necessity of getting our voters, both men and women, to the polls. I have found some good women who do not believe in women voting. For these I have a feeling, and yet I feel for the little boys and girls who are coming up under the government and environment we make and throw around them; and with these children in mind, the good women of the County must work and vote in self-defense, even though they feel that woman suffrage is an imposition on them. Use your car and see that your neighbors get to the polls, and victory will be ours, unless there is more unfairness than we even think. With fair play, we have the battle won, but don't go to sleep. I warn and caution, lest you forget.

Yours for the success of the Republican ticket,

A. B. BAXLEY,
Candidate for Legislature.

ENTERPRISE, BEAT 6

Gentlemen and ladies, the time is almost at hand when we shall go to the polls and elect our officers. I hope every loyal citizen will go and vote his very best judgment. As for myself, I am satisfied with the Republican ticket. We said in the primary that we wanted these men. Although some lost their votes, or part of them, yet a majority said they wanted the men who were nominated. So, don't forget; now is the time to show your hand. Don't let some selfish one mislead you. We can't give up our principles for just anything. How can a working man accept any other than Republican officials?

Let's all go to the polls next Tuesday and pile up the biggest majority we have ever voted and all feel good toward each other. I am glad that I have got no ill feeling toward any of the candidates—not even to the Democrats; but if I did have I could not afford to vote against the majority of my ticket and mine is the Republican ticket.

A man came to me today and said he had heard that Beat 6 was divided and the people were going to split their tickets. But I was glad to tell him that I thought he was mistaken. I don' believe we have a man who is that sort, and I am sure we have got no ladies who will do this. This man also said that Beat 11 was divided, but I can't believe that yet. So do not worry about Beat 6, for we are still here ready to do our part.

But let each voter not forget that we all have influence and let's be sure we do not lead someone wrong, or fear we be judged for it.

A Republican friend as ever.
C. L. WILKINS.

No Alarm Clock Needed--

WE NOW COME TO THE CLOSE OF ANOTHER POLITICAL CAMPAIGN

This is the last issue of The Union-Banner before the close of the present political campaign. The election will be held on next Tuesday, November 2nd.

We urge the voters to think seriously over the political situation and be sure to come out to the election and cast your votes. It is the duty of every citizen to take his or her part in the election of public officials by casting a legal ballot at the elections.

The Union-Banner has always supported the candidates of the Republican party in Chilton County in the past. We are glad that we can truthfully say that those officials which the Republican party has put in office in our County have made a good and honorable record. The business of the County has been well administered under the program and policies of the Republican party.

The men whom the Republican party have nominated in this campaign are men who have been actively engaged heretofore in furthering the interests of the county in the manner which the Republican party has sought to serve those interests. We have every reason to believe that these men will make good officials. Some of them have held office in our county before and their records are unassailable.

We have no personal criticism to offer concerning the Democratic candidates. But we believe the interests of the county will be better served by placing in office the men who are backed by the Republican party because we believe the program of public service which has been, is and will be followed by the Republican party better for our county than the control of our county affairs would be under the influence and domination of the Democratic party.

Do not fail to go to the election on next Tuesday and vote your honest convictions, which we hope will be in favor of the election of the Republican nominees.

FIFTH SUNDAY MEETING

The Fifth Sunday meeting of the Chilton County Association will be held at Cane Creek Sunday, October 1st. All churches in this association are urged to send representatives. The program will be published next week. Please watch the paper for the program.

THE SOUTHERN STATES REPUBLICAN LEAGUE

Object

The League is organized to advance the principles of the Republican Party as enunciated in its National Party Platforms, and for the purpose of extending the scope and usefulness of the Republican Party throughout the seventeen states included in this organization.

We believe that the formation of an organization bringing together Republicans who are residents of the states herein enumerated will prove beneficial to all concerned and that a better understanding of the principles of the Republican party will be obtained by having an organization made up exclusively of those who are residents of the Southern States united in a League wherein the membership may have an opportunity of meeting together and discussing from time to time all those matters which directly concern the future welfare of the people of the states represented in this organization.

We announce it as our fixed purpose to do all in our power to help promote and advance the best interests of the people of the Southern States and to invite Republicans of other parts of the United States to join us in abolishing sectional prejudices of all kinds.

We pledge ourselves to stand for honesty in our Government and for rigid economy in the administration of all our Public Affairs.

We have every confidence in the common sense, honesty, patriotism, and statesmanship of Calvin Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes, and we pledge to them our unqualified support in the great work which they have assumed as President and Vice President of the United States.

We make the following declaration of our creed of belief:

Creed

We believe in the principles of the Republican Party as enunciated in the last National Republican Convention held at Cleveland, O., in June, 1924.

We believe in the Party that has produced such Presidents as Abraham Lincoln, William McKinley, and Theodore Roosevelt.

We believe in the rule of the majority.

We are opposed to the control of legislation by minorities.

We believe in party organization.

We believe in the principle of a tariff for the protection of American Industries and American Labor.

We believe that the best interests of the Southern States will be served by the organization of a wide-awake progressive Republican Party in all the Southern States, which shall have at heart and keep in mind the best interests of the South.

Under our form of Government we favor the maintenance of two responsible party organizations. For many years the Democratic and Republican have been the two great parties which have at times almost equally divided our citizenship. We therefore favor the idea of the continuance of two great Political Parties as we believe that the best interests of the country or any portion of this country will be better served if there exists two great party organizations one of which, when summoned by the mandate of a majority of the people at National Elections, shall assume control of the affairs of the Nation as is fixed by our Constitution.

We believe in the Lincoln idea of government of the people, by the people and for the people under responsible party direction.

We unqualifiedly believe in the Constitution of the United States as it is now framed and we unreservedly stand for its firm support and preservation.

Only members of the white race shall be eligible for membership in this organization.

A ROAD OF GIGGLES FOR THE TIRED MOTORIST

Met a friend to-day who boasted he'd picked up his car for a song. But, the darn thing wouldn't even hum—when he tried to start the motor. And, believe us, he made a face like a flat tire.

Even if cranks are not needed in the latest model cars any more—you will find many a crank in them.

After making several wide detours, a motorist usually finds his road map comes in handy—for starting a belated camp fire.

We used to dodge automobiles. At the rate they're multiplying though now—all that will be left to the pedestrian will be to pick out the make he prefers to be hit by!

Speeding is like tennis. A cop swats you with a ticket and you go bouncing into the nearest court.

Brakes are invisible ornaments on a reckless driver's car. Especially, after he has filled his own carburetor with moonshine.

After seeing the bright lights, many a sap has turned on the bright lights of his own car only to have his own bright lights knocked out.

Quite often the motorist is the "self starter." That's when he has to get out and push his bus to the nearest garage for repairs.

Not all the nuts are attached to the car. Some of them bounce around loosely in the back seat and distate to the driver.

FOR the expectant mother's comfort and well being, there is nothing that equals Mother's Friend. Its highly refined oils and other wonderful ingredients quickly commends it to the thoughtful mother. Through the daily use of Mother's Friend the skin is made soft and pliable—thus aiding Nature to do her part without the unnecessary discomfort and pain. This is why Mother's Friend has proven such a blessing to expectant mothers for over three generations. Mother's Friend is the formula of an eminent physician. It is safe for you to use because it contains no harmful drugs and is applied externally.

DRAMATIC CLUB ORGANIZED

A group of enthusiastic young Clanton people met in the music room of the high school on October 19th and organized what is to be known as Clanton's own Dramatic Club. A name for the club has not been voted on yet. Several good names have been sent in but this has not been decided yet.

From the peppy meeting which the club held, it is readily seen that every member is interesid and will do hir or her share. It is a civic movement—one which will help to show that Clanton has some of the best talent there is to be found anywhere. We have real talent, and it is to be proven. Just watch our step — a chance is all we ask.

The organization of the club in Clanton is just one of the many forward steps taken to show the progress of our town. We can and will put on plays which will be both uplifting and beneficial to our community. Clanton has got what it takes to make a successful dramatic club and, all we ask is the support of the public.

The following officers were elected: Frank Mullins, president; Buck Roberts, 1st vice president; Barney Burnett, secretary-treasurer; Jack Wade, business manager; Harry Margolis, publicity manager; Mrs. McDavid, critic.

Several committees were arranged: A committee to draw up a Constitution and By-Laws; a Reading Committee, and others which go to make up a successful dramatic club. Watch for the announcement of our first play.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Bentley spent last Tuesday in Charleston with Mr. Sam Upchurch, en route to New York.
